Guide to this edition

The reading text derives from the al-ʿAlawī 1994 edition, with comparison to Bou Akl's printed 2015 Arabic edition, French translation and apparatus. The Escorial manuscript has not been independently inspected. English translation and vocalization are editorial.

Teaching-note acknowledgement. Selected English wording and interpretive commentary in §§2, 4, 7 and 9 were reviewed against two 2026 classroom handouts by Shaykh Ruzwan Mohammed: Lesson 1: The Classification of Knowledge and the Emergence of Uṣūl al-Fiqh (on §§1–5) and Lesson 2: The Proper Scope and Method of Uṣūl al-Fiqh (on §§6–9). The handouts informed specific decisions and are credited in the scholarly notes. They are neither Arabic textual witnesses nor endorsements of the edition; final editorial responsibility remains with Gnamma Research.

Numbering. R identifies this edition's 258 reading units; BA identifies Bou Akl's 311 numbered units. These are reference systems, not original chapter numbers. The later copyist's colophon and ownership notice remain separate.

Two complementary contents lists

1. Recorded parts and chapters translates the 46 headings in the Arabic edition and preserves their hierarchy. 2. Editorial section guide gives our descriptive titles for all 258 numbered reading units. These titles are editorial aids, not headings in Ibn Rushd's text; they are confined to the guide and its detailed bookmarks.

The body gives prominence to the recorded rubrics, with small section references for lookup. The opening discussion has no separately recorded heading. A printed rubric alone does not establish manuscript provenance.

Reference tools

The subject index precedes the historical dictionary. The dictionary retains 153 term dossiers and 157 selected complete historical articles with full working English translations. Shared articles are printed once. Its source-control and headword-relation sections distinguish exact matches, derived forms and related evidence.

"Complete" describes each selected article, not exhaustive coverage of every dictionary. In particular, ʿumūm al-balwā has related lexical support, not a verified historical article under that exact compound. Comprehensive Tāj al-ʿArūs, Kashshāf and Lisān coverage is not claimed. Translations remain editorial working translations.

Contents 2 · Editorial section guide

Our descriptive labels for all 258 numbered reading units. These are editorial reading aids, not headings in Ibn Rushd's text. The recorded parts and chapters appear in Contents 1; both lists lead to the same passages.

Introduction

1. Purpose, brevity, and the craft of legal reasoning ..... 8
2. Three kinds of knowledge: assent, action, and rules of inquiry ..... 8
3. Why later jurists need an explicit method ..... 9
4. Implicit competence and induction from early legal opinions ..... 10
5. The four parts of the discipline ..... 10
6. The proper subject of uṣūl and a comparative method ..... 11
7. Retaining al-Ghazālī's arrangement ..... 11
8. The introductory questions a learner needs ..... 12
9. Why the logical prolegomenon is omitted ..... 12

Part I · Legal judgements

10. Definition, divisions, elements, and manifestation of rulings ..... 13
11. Revealed judgement and intrinsic or relational goodness ..... 13
12. Why general acceptance does not establish rational necessity ..... 14
13. The obligation to inquire and the challenge to revealed authority ..... 14
14. An objection from infinite regress ..... 14
15. Miracles, assent, and necessary knowledge ..... 15
16. The status of acts before revelation ..... 15
17. The five rulings and the distinction between farḍ and wājib ..... 16
18. Obligations with alternatives and extended times ..... 17
19. Alternative duties, welfare, and divine foreknowledge ..... 17
20. Legal examples suffice without resolving the metaphysics ..... 17
21. When does an extended-time obligation become binding? ..... 18
22. Intention distinguishes postponement from abandonment ..... 18
23. Necessary means and the minimum sufficient performance ..... 19
24. From definitions to universal questions ..... 19
25. Death during the time and reasonable postponement ..... 19
26. Abrogation of obligation and the logic of opposites ..... 20
27. Is the permissible commanded or legally burdensome? ..... 20
28. Can one act be obligatory and forbidden in different respects? ..... 21
29. Prohibitive wording versus a qualified prohibition's meaning ..... 22
30. A methodological objection to the placement of the question ..... 22
31. Forbidden places of prayer and prayer on usurped land ..... 22
32. Does a ruling about an act determine its contrary? ..... 23
33. Legal contrariety versus physical incompatibility ..... 23
34. When prohibiting one contrary obliges the other ..... 24
35. Conclusion of the classification of rulings ..... 24
36. The three elements of a legal judgement ..... 24
37. Divine authority and delegated human obedience ..... 24
38. Understanding the address: children and impaired reason ..... 25
39. A defective reading about partial intoxication ..... 26
40. Addressing the sober about later intoxication ..... 26
41. Eternal command and the limits of the present discipline ..... 26
42. Puberty as a practical legal sign ..... 26
43. The voluntary act and intention of obedience ..... 27
44. Choice, necessary assent, and the will to obey ..... 27
45. Human agency and the impossibility of burdens beyond capacity ..... 28
46. Further questions concerning responsible action ..... 28
47. Coercion, intention, and degrees of harm ..... 29
48. Active restraint and mere non-performance ..... 29
49. Commands before fulfilment of their conditions ..... 30
50. Legal conditions are not conditions of physical possibility ..... 31
51. Conversion, apostasy, and a distinct command to make up acts ..... 31
52. No demand to combine or abandon exhaustive contraries ..... 31
53. Hard cases: usurped fields and unavoidable injury ..... 32
54. Manifesting causes and the attributes of rulings ..... 32
55. Legal signs and perceptible causes ..... 32
56. Validity in worship and the validity of contracts ..... 33
57. Timely performance, repetition, and making up ..... 34
58. The traveller's fast: concession or an alternative duty? ..... 34
59. Does an expectation of death shorten the prescribed time? ..... 35
60. Original requirements and concessions under necessity ..... 35
61. The first part concluded ..... 35

Part II · Sources of proof

62. The four sources and original negation ..... 36
63. Divine speech and the bounds of theological inquiry ..... 36
64. The Qurʾānic corpus, variant additions, and the basmala ..... 36
65. Literal, figurative, arabicized, and ambiguous expressions ..... 38
66. The authority of the Sunna and the routes of transmission ..... 38
67. First rank: explicit attestation of direct hearing ..... 39
68. Second rank: "The Messenger said" ..... 39
69. Third rank: reporting a command rather than its wording ..... 39

70. How linguistic usage is established ... 40
71. Fourth rank: “We were commanded” and “It is Sunna” ... 40
72. Fifth rank: practices in the Prophet’s lifetime ... 40
73. The reporting formulas concluded ... 41
74. The degrees of assent yielded by transmission ... 41
75. Recurrent transmission: certainty without a fixed number ... 41
76. How premises produce assent, even when unarticulated ... 42
77. Sensory actuality, contextual evidence, and common legal knowledge ... 43
78. The conditions of certainty from mass transmission ... 44
79. Can a solitary report ever produce certainty? ... 44
80. Four questions governing solitary reports ... 44
81. The rational and legal warrant for acting on a solitary report ... 45
82. Does the command to warn establish the duty to accept a report? ... 46
83. One transmitter need not satisfy the numerical rules of testimony ... 47
84. Hearing in childhood and transmitting after puberty ... 47
85. Accurate retention, religious identity, and transmission ... 48
86. Probity as a disposition rather than a mere label ... 48
87. How much moral integrity must a transmitter possess? ... 48
88. Unknown character and the presumption of trustworthiness ... 48
89. The Bedouin’s crescent testimony and an uncertain printed reading ... 49
90. Probity aims at probable truthfulness, not an arbitrary threshold ... 49
91. Wrongdoing based on interpretation and the acceptance of reports ... 50
92. Probable wrongdoing: the example of disputed nabīdh ... 50
93. Minimum conditions differ from grounds of preference ... 50
94. Four questions about criticism and attestation ... 51
95. How many people must attest a narrator’s probity? ... 51
96. Stating grounds and resolving conflicting evaluations ... 51
97. What conduct counts as an attestation of probity? ... 52
98. The majority position on the Companions’ probity ... 52
99. The civil wars and interpretive error ... 53
100. Five levels of receiving a report ... 53
101. Hearing the teacher read ... 53
102. Reading before a silent teacher ... 53
103. Authorization without a reading ... 54
104. Handing over a book with permission to transmit it ... 54
105. Handwriting, accurate copies, and acting without direct hearing ... 54
106. The narrator’s certainty is not the recipient’s probability ... 55
107. When a teacher denies or forgets a report ... 55
108. An addition reported by one reliable narrator ... 56
109. Reporting meaning: synonymy and translation ... 56
110. Why an independent jurist needs the Lawgiver’s wording ... 57
111. Omitted links, connected chains, and “from” formulae ... 58
112. Solitary reports concerning matters of widespread need ... 59
113. Neither universal acceptance nor universal rejection is justified ... 60
114. Both Qurʾān and Sunna are subject to abrogation ... 61
115. Does abrogation remove a ruling or reveal its time limit? ... 61
116. What the jurist needs to know about abrogation ... 61
117. Removing a part, a condition, or a recommended observance ... 62
118. When an addition changes the identity of an obligation ... 62
119. Abrogation without a substitute ... 63
120. Replacing a lighter duty with a heavier one ... 63
121. Abrogating recitation, ruling, or both—and the demand for proof ... 63
122. Consensus reveals earlier abrogation but cannot itself abrogate ... 65
123. The unequal force of reports during and after the Prophet’s life ... 65
124. May mass-transmitted Sunna abrogate the Qurʾān? ... 65
125. Certainty itself can admit degrees ... 66
126. Analogy may clarify a text but may not repeal it ... 67
127. A Companion’s assertion of abrogation needs a transmitted basis ... 67
128. Conditions implicit in the definition of abrogation ... 67
129. How the later of two conflicting texts is established ... 68
130. Consensus as certainty beyond surviving explicit texts ... 69
131. Cumulative scriptural evidence for the authority of consensus ... 69
132. Why consensus is not merely a rational inference from numbers ... 70
133. Why lay agreement adds no independent proof ... 71
134. All qualified jurists of one age, not every age ... 71
135. Can later agreement override an earlier disagreement? ... 71
136. Why the Ẓāhirīs restrict consensus to the Companions ... 72
137. Unanimity, majority, and the evidential limits of silence ... 72
138. Medinan practice must be traced as transmission ... 73
139. Must an agreeing generation die out before consensus binds? ... 73
140. The essential account is enough to understand further objections ... 74
141. Original freedom from liability and the burden of proof ... 74
142. Five forms of continuity and the problem of a changed subject ... 75
143. Conclusion of the four sources ... 75

144. A Companion’s opinion attracts weight but is not infallible ... 76
145. Earlier revealed laws are not an independent source ... 76
146. Preference and welfare require a recognized legal warrant ... 77
147. Conclusion of Part Two ... 77

Part III · Meaning and inference

148. The distinctive task: understanding prophetic indications ... 78
149. Verbal form and intelligible import ... 78
150. Action and approval as nonverbal indications ... 78
151. Four classes of verbal indication ... 78
152. Simple expressions, compounds, and complete utterances ... 78
153. Original assignment, transfer, and specialized legal usage ... 79
154. Omission, addition, and substitution in figurative speech ... 80
155. Clarity and obscurity arise from meaning as well as form ... 80
156. A classification useful for legal inference ... 80
157. Unambiguous expressions and determinate pronoun reference ... 80
158. Equivocation: qurʾ, ʿayn, and the marriage bond ... 81
159. Clarification encompasses every valid means of understanding ... 81
160. May clarification be delayed when action is required? ... 81
161. How speakers rely on context and hearers seek clarification ... 81
162. A figurative meaning needs an intelligible indication ... 83
163. Partial knowledge can precede a more specific explanation ... 83
164. Transfer through resemblance, relation, and indirect expression ... 85
165. Substituting a universal for a particular, or the reverse ... 85
166. Why apparent meanings bind and interpretation needs proportionate proof ... 85
167. Three degrees: clothing, the balance, and touching women ... 86
168. Established usage, ambiguity, and certain interpretation ... 87
169. General meaning is a real feature of language ... 87
170. Forms of generality and their unequal apparent force ... 88
171. A remote restriction of the guardian-permission report ... 88
172. Restricting the requirement of a nightly fasting intention ... 88
173. Does the tithe report include vegetables? ... 89
174. General wording with a known or unknown specific intention ... 89
175. Disputed boundaries of generality ... 89
176. A particular occasion does not confine a general answer ... 90
177. Equivocation is not the generality of a universal ... 90
178. Who is included by “people” and by a masculine plural? ... 90
179. Can a plural be restricted below its minimum? ... 91
180. Three is the normal plural; two or one requires a clue ... 91
181. Specification or contradiction? The importance of chronology ... 92
182. Specific evidence can govern without a known chronological order ... 92
183. Why an exception must accompany its statement ... 93
184. Connected and disconnected exceptions; one or several sentences ... 93
185. How can an exception belong to another genus? ... 93
186. A disconnected exception belongs to the understood wider meaning ... 94
187. How far does an exception reach over coordinated clauses? ... 95
188. An exception larger than the remainder ... 95
189. Unqualified and qualified wording in the same or different contexts ... 95
190. From general to specific expressions ... 96
191. Specific expressions may stand for an intended universal ... 96
192. From verbal form to understood meaning ... 98
193. Context determines the force of an implied meaning ... 98
194. Omitted meanings: villagers, marriage, fasting, and a prayer cycle ... 98
195. Description, condition, restriction, and endpoint ... 99
196. From assertions to prescriptions ... 100
197. Command, request, and supplication depend on the relation of speakers ... 100
198. Questions about obligation, timing, and repetition ... 101
199. Linguistic convention and legal usage must be distinguished ... 102
200. The imperative’s legal force must be learned from revelation ... 102
201. Neither timing nor repetition follows from the form alone ... 102
202. Further questions about command forms ... 103
203. A command after prohibition may merely remove the restriction ... 103
204. Does making up a timed observance need a new command? ... 104
205. Compliance discharges a duty only when all its conditions are met ... 104
206. Does prohibition entail invalidity? ... 105
207. Returning to the earlier account of the forbidden ... 105
208. Absolute prohibition and dislike: the need for an indication ... 105
209. From commands to the contextual indications called qiyās ... 105
210. The jurists’ definition of analogy: original, derivative and ground ... 106
211. Nonexistence, negation and the scope of the definition ... 106
212. Most legal qiyās is substitution within an understood meaning ... 107

213. What warrants substitution: relevant contextual indications ..... 108
214. Certain, probable and indeterminate extensions ..... 108
215. The stronger case: a fortiori indication ..... 109
216. Equal extension: the legal meaning beyond a named individual ..... 109
217. Suitable grounds, recognised goods and the limit of legislation ..... 109
218. Resemblance and uncertainty about the operative ground ..... 110
219. Analogy in fixed penalties and expiations ..... 111
220. Testing, division and concomitance ..... 112
221. Eliminating candidates for the universal meaning ..... 112
222. Positive and negative concomitance are not enough ..... 112
223. Why much juristic qiyās is not a syllogism ..... 113
224. Meaning can be apparent without an apparent verbal form ..... 114
225. The disputed claim of Companion consensus on qiyās ..... 114
226. The class and limits of qiyās; action and approval remain ..... 115
227. What tacit approval establishes ..... 116
228. Actions that explain a revealed command ..... 116
229. Peculiar, unexplained and conflicting Prophetic actions ..... 116

Part IV · Juristic reasoning

230. Inquiry, authority and weighing evidence ..... 118
231. The jurist, the question and the act of inquiry ..... 118
232. How much Qurʾānic knowledge is required? ..... 118
233. Hadith competence, collections and transmitter evaluation ..... 118
234. Consensus and the indispensable knowledge of Arabic ..... 119
235. Theology and detailed fiqh: what is actually required? ..... 119
236. Issue-specific independent inquiry ..... 119
237. Is there a determinate ruling to be found? ..... 120
238. Essential attributes, Ẓāhirī restraint and determinate rulings ..... 120
239. Ibn Rushd's answer: discourse determines the ruling ..... 120
240. Al-Ghazālī's first argument for universal correctness ..... 121
241. Evidence signifies; inclination does not make a ruling ..... 122
242. Al-Ghazālī's second argument: absence of sin ..... 122
243. An error can be pardoned without becoming correct ..... 123
244. Degrees of culpability and the clarity of evidence ..... 123
245. Attainable truth and merciful pardon ..... 124
246. Conflict: suspension, caution or free choice? ..... 124
247. The Ẓāhirī response: return to original nonliability ..... 125
248. From independent inquiry to following authority ..... 126
249. Trust, probability and following the Prophet ..... 126
250. Why juristic expertise is a collective obligation ..... 126
251. May a mujtahid follow a more knowledgeable jurist? ..... 127
252. Memorised school doctrine is not an independent source ..... 127
253. Why inherited opinions cannot replace living inquiry ..... 128
254. No period should lack an active mujtahid ..... 128
255. The valid and invalid uses of following authority ..... 129
256. Why an exhaustive catalogue of preferences is unnecessary ..... 129

Opening discussion

أَمَّا بَعْدُ حَمْدًا لِلَّهِ مُعَلِّمِ الْبَيَانِ[Q1]، وَمُوجِبِ النَّظَرِ وَالِاسْتِدْلَالِ، وَمُخْتَصِّ الْإِنْسَانِ بِإِقَامَةِ الْحُجَجِ الْبَالِغَةِ[Q2] وَضَرْبِ الْأَمْثَالِ، وَالصَّلَاةُ عَلَى مُحَمَّدٍ خَاتَمِ الرُّسُلِ وَنِهَايَةِ التَّمَامِ وَالْكَمَالِ، فَإِنَّ غَرَضِي فِي هَذَا الْكِتَابِ أَنْ أُثْبِتَ لِنَفْسِي، عَلَى جِهَةِ التَّذْكِرَةِ، مِنْ كِتَابِ أَبِي حَامِدٍ رَحِمَهُ اللَّهُ فِي أُصُولِ الْفِقْهِ الْمُلَقَّبِ بِالْمُسْتَصْفَى، جُمْلَةً كَافِيَةً بِحَسَبِ الْأَمْرِ الضَّرُورِيِّ فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ، وَنَتَحَرَّى فِي ذَلِكَ أَوْجَزَ الْقَوْلِ وَأَخْصَرَهُ، وَمَا نَظُنُّ بِهِ أَنَّهُ أَكْثَرَ ذَلِكَ صِنَاعِيٌّ. وَقَبْلَ ذَلِكَ فَلْنُقَدِّمْ مُقَدِّمَةً نَافِعَةً فِي غَرَضِ الْعِلْمِ الْمَطْلُوبِ هَا هُنَا وَمَنْفَعَتِهِ فَنَقُولُ:

To proceed, after praising God, who teaches articulate expression[Q1], makes inquiry (النظر) and inference (الاستدلال) obligatory, and singles out the human being for establishing conclusive arguments[Q2] and setting forth examples; and after invoking blessings upon Muḥammad, the seal of the messengers and the culmination of completeness and perfection: my purpose in this book is to set down for myself, as a reminder, a sufficient account of what is necessary in this craft (الصناعة), drawn from Abū Ḥāmid's book on the principles of jurisprudence entitled al-Mustaṣfā—may God have mercy upon him. In doing so we shall seek the briefest and most concise expression, and what seems to us most technically appropriate to this disciplined art. Before this, let us offer a useful introduction concerning the purpose and benefit of the knowledge sought here. We say:

Q1. Cf. Qurʾān, al-Raḥmān 55:4 ↗ (عَلَّمَهُ ٱلْبَيَانَ). Ibn Rushd's «معلّم البيان» is a possible verbal echo, not a quotation; deliberate allusion is not certain.

﴿ عَلَّمَهُ ٱلْبَيَانَ ﴾.

Qurʾānic comparison only · al-Raḥmān 55:4 · possible verbal allusion, NOT an authorial quotation

Q2. Cf. Qurʾān, al-Anʿām 6:149 ↗ (فَلِلَّهِ ٱلْحُجَّةُ ٱلْبَٰلِغَةُ). The Qurʾān has the singular «الحجة البالغة»; Ibn Rushd writes the plural «الحجج البالغة». This is a possible verbal echo, not a quotation or proven citation.

﴿ فَلِلَّهِ ٱلْحُجَّةُ ٱلْبَٰلِغَةُ ﴾.

Qurʾānic comparison only · al-Anʿām 6:149 · possible verbal allusion, NOT an authorial quotation

N001 · grammar. Grammatical note: ḥamdan is editorially read as an accusative expression of praise, whereas wa-l-ṣalātu introduces the blessing. Bou Akl 2015 (Arabic p.118, French p.119, §1) renders akthara dhālika ṣināʿī as what is most technically appropriate. The reading is interpretive; neither French nor the proposed English is an independent manuscript witness.

BA15-I01 · interpretive. Book title and method. The 2015 textual introduction (pp.107–116) documents the historical titles Mukhtaṣar al-Mustaṣfā and al-Ḍarūrī, an Escorial unique manuscript, and a 552 AH authorial colophon. The French introduction pp.3–9 situates this among Ibn Rushd's early compendia; neither "abridgement" nor "necessary" reduces the project to simple summary.

Forms of knowledge and the sciences are of three kinds. There is knowledge whose end lies solely in the assent (iʿtiqād) it produces in the soul: for example, knowledge of the world's temporal origination, the doctrine of the indivisible part, and similar matters. There is knowledge whose end is action. Some of this is universal (كلية), and its benefit for action is indirect, while another part is particular (جزئية) and its benefit for action is more direct. Particular knowledge includes knowledge of the rulings governing prayer and almsgiving, and comparable particulars among obligatory duties and recommended practices. Universal knowledge includes knowledge of the principles on which these branches are built—the Book, the Sunna, and consensus—and knowledge of the rulings derived from these principles in general, their divisions, and what attaches to them insofar as they are rulings (أحكام).

There is also knowledge that provides the rules and conditions through which the mind is guided towards correctness in these two forms of knowledge: for example, knowledge of indications (الدلائل) and their divisions, of the conditions under which they are indications and those under which they are not, and of the cases in which the passage from the observed to the unobserved is employed and those in which it is not. Let us call this a method of examination and a rule. Its relation to the mind is like that of the compass and straightedge to sense perception in matters where error cannot be ruled out.

وَإِمَّا مَعْرِفَةٌ تُعْطِي الْقَوَانِينَ وَالْأَحْوَالَ الَّتِي بِهَا يَتَسَدَّدُ الذِّهْنُ نَحْوَ الصَّوَابِ فِي هَاتَيْنِ الْمَعْرِفَتَيْنِ، كَالْعِلْمِ بِالدَّلَائِلِ وَأَقْسَامِهَا، وَبِأَيِّ أَحْوَالٍ تَكُونُ دَلَائِلَ وَبِأَيِّهَا لَا، وَفِي أَيِّ الْمَوَاضِعِ تُسْتَعْمَلُ النُّقْلَةُ مِنَ الشَّاهِدِ إِلَى الْغَائِبِ وَفِي أَيِّهَا لَا. وَهَذِهِ فَلْنُسَمِّهَا سِبَارًا وَقَانُونًا، فَإِنَّ نِسْبَتَهَا إِلَى الذِّهْنِ كَنِسْبَةِ الْبَرْكَارِ وَالْمِسْطَرَةِ إِلَى الْحِسِّ فِي مَا لَا يُؤْمَنُ أَنْ يُغْلَطَ فِيهِ.

N002 · textual. Escorial manuscript as recorded and printed by Bou Akl (2015, BA §2, Arabic p.118; manuscript [أ] versus al-ʿAlawī [ع] in the apparatus) preserves ومنها جزئية وقريبة في كونها مفيدة للعمل after the universal class. The al-ʿAlawī 1994 edition omitted this entire balancing clause. The present revised Arabic restores the manuscript-attested words, not a conjecture. Editorial vocalization follows the restored syntax.

N003 · lexical. سِبَار is rendered ‘method of examination’ in the running text. Its concrete classical sense is a measuring or testing instrument, recorded under سبر in Ibn Manẓūr’s Lisān al-ʿArab; Ibn Rushd immediately compares its role to that of a compass and straightedge. The literal ‘probe’ would overemphasize the instrument in English and obscure its function as a method for checking the soundness of inquiry. It does not name a separate philosophical discipline. Lexical control: ↗ Source acknowledgement (translation and explanation): compare Shaykh Ruzwan Mohammed, Lesson 1: The Classification of Knowledge and the Emergence of Uṣūl al-Fiqh (2026), Part B, p. 5, and Part C, p. 7 (unpublished classroom handout supplied privately). This teaching source informs the presentation of sibār as an examination method; the original lexical evidence remains independently identified above.

BA001 · scholarship. Rudolph’s examination of this passage, explicitly indebted to Bou Akl’s 2015 edition, proposes a double disciplinary reading: theoretical/practical/instrumental knowledge is meaningful both for kalām/uṣūl/fiqh and for natural-theoretical/practical/logical arts. The comparison does not turn Ibn Rushd’s instrumental knowledge into demonstrative logic exclusively. Control: Ulrich Rudolph, “Al-Ghazālī on Philosophy and Jurisprudence,” in Adamson (ed.), Philosophy and Jurisprudence in the Islamic World (2019), p. 72, referring to Bou Akl 2015, Arabic p. 118, French p. 119. For the current edition’s completed 2015 collation of this passage, see textual note BA15-V002.

BA15-I02 · interpretive. Scientific architecture. Bou Akl 2015 intro pp.7–9 distinguishes theoretical, practical-universal, practical-particular and instrumental knowledge. The instrumental third book guides interpretation of already given discourse; it is comparable to logic but is not identical with demonstrative syllogistic. Its crucial classificatory distinction is that universal practical knowledge, including kinds of rulings and their sources, does not thereby become a science of the procedures that regulate inference.

It is likewise clear that the discipline known as jurisprudence (fiqh) has been subject to these two conditions in our own time and during the period following the death of God's Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace—when his Companions dispersed through the lands and the reports transmitted from him diverged. For this reason the Companions—may God be pleased with them—had no need of this craft, just as the Bedouin Arabs had no need of rules to protect them in their speech or their metres.

What we have said makes the purpose of this craft intelligible and disposes of the objection that the people of the earliest generation did not investigate it. We do not, however, deny that they employed its capacity: you can discern this from their legal opinions —may God be pleased with them. Indeed, many of the universal notions (المعاني الكلية) laid down in this craft were validated precisely through induction (istiqrāʾ; الاستقراء) from their legal opinions, case by case.

Editorial translation note: صُحِّحَتْ is rendered ‘were validated’, preserving the restrictive force of إنما for the many propositions specified without implying that every rule of uṣūl arose this way. Compare Shaykh Ruzwan Mohammed, Lesson 1 (2026), Part B, p. 6, on induction from the Companions’ particular fatwās. This is a pedagogical comparison, not a variant Arabic reading.

The parts of this craft, according to its division in this book, are four. The first part comprises inquiry into rulings (الأحكام); the second, into the sources of rulings; the third, into the proofs (الأدلة) employed to derive each ruling from its respective source, and how they are employed. The fourth comprises inquiry into the qualifications of the practitioner of independent judgement (المجتهد), who is the jurist.

From our preceding account of the purpose of this craft and the genus of sciences to which it belongs, you know that its proper inquiry lies only in the third part of this book. The other parts belong to the kind of knowledge whose end is action. Hence they named this craft after some of what they made a part of it, calling it ‘the principles of jurisprudence’ (أصول الفقه). Inquiry conducted according to the requirements of the craft demands that this third part receive a separate treatment, since it differs in genus from those other parts, and that, concerning those, one of two courses alone be adopted. Either they should be posited according to the most widely accepted doctrines concerning them—for example, the views of the People of the Sunna.

Or the disagreements concerning them should be outlined and enumerated, and the conditions and rules provided through which rulings are derived according to each opinion about those principles. This would explain, generally, how some of those opinions follow from others and how they correspond to the branches: one would explain, for example, how derivation proceeds according to the Ẓāhirīs (أهل الظاهر, commonly called Literalists) and according to those who affirm analogy (القياس)—in general, according to each of the widely accepted opinions. This course is more useful in this craft. Through such inquiry this kind of knowledge would possess a craft that is complete, universal, and sufficient for the inquiry of all who practise independent judgement (الاجتهاد).

We have nevertheless decided to follow the customary practice of the theologians (mutakallimūn) working in this discipline and, in dividing it, to seek the arrangement found in this book, since it is the best considered and the most likely to conform to the requirements of the craft. This first part is divided into four parts: inquiry into the definition of a ruling (الحكم), its divisions, its constituent elements, and what manifests it.

First Section

الْقِسْمُ الْأَوَّلُ

R 11 · BA 12–14 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 41, 42 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 124

According to the People of the Sunna, a ruling (الحكم) is defined as the address of the Law (خطاب الشرع) when it concerns the acts of legally responsible persons by requiring an act or its omission. Where this address has not occurred, no characterization as good or bad attaches to acts; on this account, goodness and badness are not intrinsic attributes of acts.

أَمَّا حَدُّ الْحُكْمِ عِنْدَ أَهْلِ السُّنَّةِ فَهُوَ عِبَارَةٌ عَنْ خِطَابِ الشَّرْعِ إِذَا تَعَلَّقَ بِأَفْعَالِ الْمُكَلَّفِينَ بِطَلَبٍ أَوْ تَرْكٍ. فَإِذَا لَمْ يَرِدْ هَذَا الْخِطَابُ لَمْ تَتَعَلَّقْ بِالْأَفْعَالِ صِفَةُ تَحْسِينٍ أَوْ تَقْبِيحٍ، فَيَكُونُ الْحُسْنُ وَالْقُبْحُ عَلَى هَذَا لَيْسَ وَصْفًا ذَاتِيًّا لِلْأَفْعَالِ.

The Muʿtazilites held that goodness and badness are intrinsic attributes of acts. Some are apprehended through rational necessity, as with lying and thanking a benefactor; others, with the Law's assistance, as with ritual purification and prayer, because of, for example, the utterance that restrains indecency and the cleanliness they involve. The benefit of knowing this disagreement within this craft becomes apparent when investigating analogy from a suitable, plausible ground (القياس المناسب والمخيل), with all its kinds, and when investigating whether those exercising independent judgement are correct or mistaken.

The argument of the People of the Sunna is that ‘good’ and ‘bad’ have several meanings in the technical usage of the theologians (mutakallimūn). The first and most familiar is what accords with or opposes the purpose of the person judging it good: one person, for instance, may find a dark complexion good and another find it bad. This is a relational matter, unlike the blackness and whiteness belonging to things in themselves. The second is what the Law has declared good or bad. The third meaning of ‘good’ is what a person is permitted to do. All these are relational, not intrinsic, attributes. This means that goodness and badness have no existence ‘outside the concrete entity.’

أَمَّا أَهْلُ السُّنَّةِ فَحُجَّتُهُمْ أَنَّ الْحُسْنَ وَالْقُبْحَ يُطْلَقُ فِي عُرْفِ الْمُتَكَلِّمِينَ عَلَى مَعَانٍ: أَوَّلُهَا وَأَشْهَرُهَا مَا يُوَافِقُ غَرَضَ الْمُسْتَحْسِنِ أَوْ يُخَالِفُهُ، حَتَّى يَسْتَحْسِنَ سُمْرَةَ اللَّوْنِ مَثَلًا وَاحِدٌ وَيَسْتَقْبِحَهَا آخَرُ. وَهَذَا أَمْرٌ إِضَافِيٌّ لَا كَالسَّوَادِ وَالْبَيَاضِ الْمَوْجُودَيْنِ لِلْأَشْيَاءِ بِذَاتِهَا. وَالثَّانِي مَا حَسَّنَهُ الشَّرْعُ أَوْ قَبَّحَهُ. وَالثَّالِثُ مِنْ مَعَانِي الْحُسْنِ مَا كَانَ لِلْإِنْسَانِ مُبَاحًا فِعْلُهُ. وَكُلُّ هَذِهِ أَوْصَافٌ إِضَافِيَّةٌ لَا ذَاتِيَّةٌ. وَمَعْنَى ذَلِكَ أَنْ لَيْسَ لِلْحُسْنِ وَالْقُبْحِ وُجُودٌ خَارِجَ الْعَيْنِ.

N006 · textual. Printed pp. 41–42 read اللفظ and خارج العين. The latter is unusual; it has been rendered literally rather than silently changed to خارج الذهن (‘outside the mind’).

N007 · translation. المناسب والمخيل concern the suitability and apparently purposive rationale of a legal analogy; ‘imaginal’ would obscure the juridical use here. The following argument distinguishes intrinsic from relational evaluation. Earlier in the same §11, «في عرف المتكلمين» refers specifically to the technical terminology of theologians, not to common usage among 'speakers' generally.

The Muʿtazilites, for their part, argued that goodness and badness are intrinsic attributes of things from the agreement of rational persons in affirming them without qualification by a relation—for example, the goodness of truthfulness and the badness of lying; in general, from these propositions' being widely accepted and agreed upon. It is evident that intelligible matters may also happen to be widely accepted, but that the converse does not hold.

Discussion of this question does not belong to the science with which we are engaged. Neither of these two arguments seems sufficient to settle it. The Muʿtazilites argued that obligation in certain matters—thanking a benefactor and the like—is apprehended by reason. Restricting its apprehension to the Law would leave the messengers unable to answer when they call people to inquiry (النظر). Unless we know that inquiry is obligatory, we shall not inquire; unless we inquire, we shall not establish the Lawgiver's claim concerning that to which he calls us; and unless we establish his claim, there is no way to believe what he calls us to. Whether what we are called to is true in itself or not, on this account there is no way for us to attain knowledge of it.

The theologians pressed a difficulty upon the Muʿtazilites concerning their claim that the obligation to inquire is apprehended rationally. If this obligation is rationally apprehended, that must be either necessarily or through acquisition. If necessarily, no one would be heedless of the knowledge of God. If acquired by inquiry, the question turns back upon them: how is the obligation to undertake the inquiry leading to the obligation to inquire into the Law's claim apprehended? And so on without end.

What should be said here, in my judgement, is that assent (التصديق) to the Lawgiver's claim when a miracle appears in accordance with it belongs to the kind of necessary knowledge. Assent arises necessarily from witnessing this, or through the miracle's being established by recurrent transmission (تواتر). The question whether inquiry is obligatory or not arises only where knowledge is gained through inquiry and inference (النظر والاستدلال). Straining after any further account here merely confuses beliefs or causes needless trouble. If each person called to the Law were to take upon himself such difficulties when considering what the Law calls him to, the faith of many people would never arise, or would arise only rarely.

In general, God's calling people to faith in the Law by such paths would, for most people, amount to imposing what is beyond their capacity. That knowledge of this is necessary does not entail that no one can fail to acknowledge it. Just as being necessary is not a condition of what is agreed upon, so being agreed upon is not a condition of what is necessary. None of this belongs to the present science.

الْقَوْلُ فِي الْقِسْمِ الثَّانِي مِنَ الْجُزْءِ الْأَوَّلِ

Discussion of the Second Section of the First Part

وَهُوَ يَتَضَمَّنُ النَّظَرَ فِي أَقْسَامِ الْأَحْكَامِ وَحُدُودِهَا وَمَسَائِلَ تَلْحَقُهَا فَنَقُولُ: إِنَّ الْحُكْمَ، وَهُوَ الَّذِي تَقَدَّمَ رَسْمُهُ، يَنْقَسِمُ إِلَى طَلَبٍ وَتَرْكٍ أَوْ تَخْيِيرٍ فِيهِمَا وَهُوَ الْمُسَمَّى مُبَاحًا. وَالطَّلَبُ يَنْقَسِمُ إِلَى وَاجِبٍ وَنَدْبٍ، وَالتَّرْكُ يَنْقَسِمُ إِلَى مَحْظُورٍ وَمَكْرُوهٍ.

This section comprises inquiry into the divisions of rulings (الأحكام), their definitions, and questions attaching to them. We say: the ruling whose description was given above is divided into a demand to act, a demand to omit, or a choice between the two; the last is called permissible (مباح). The demand to act is divided into obligation and recommendation; omission, into prohibition and disapproval.

وَحَدُّ الْوَاجِبِ أَنَّهُ مَا وَرَدَ خِطَابُ الشَّرْعِ بِتَرْجِيحِ فِعْلِهِ مَعَ تَوَعُّدٍ بِالْعِقَابِ عَلَى تَرْكِهِ مِنْ حَيْثُ هُوَ تَرْكٌ لَهُ بِإِطْلَاقٍ، وَإِنَّمَا زِدْنَا فِي الْحَدِّ قَوْلَنَا: مَعَ تَوَعُّدٍ بِالْعِقَابِ عَلَى تَرْكِهِ، لِأَنَّ الْوَاجِبَ عَلَى مَذْهَبِ أَهْلِ السُّنَّةِ لَا يُتَصَوَّرُ دُونَ الضَّرَرِ أَوِ النَّفْعِ، وَزِيَادَتُنَا فِيهِ أَيْضًا: مِنْ حَيْثُ هُوَ تَرْكٌ لَهُ بِإِطْلَاقٍ، تَحَفُّظًا مِنَ الْوَاجِبِ الْمُخَيَّرِ.

The obligatory (الواجب) is defined as that whose performance the address of the Law prefers, with a threat of punishment for omitting it insofar as this constitutes its unqualified omission. We added ‘with a threat of punishment for omitting it’ because, according to the People of the Sunna, obligation cannot be conceived apart from harm or benefit. We further added ‘insofar as this constitutes its unqualified omission’ as a precaution concerning an obligation that permits a choice.

وَالتَّوَعُّدُ بِالْعِقَابِ رُبَّمَا وَرَدَ قَطْعًا وَرُبَّمَا وَرَدَ ظَنًّا. وَأَصْحَابُ أَبِي حَنِيفَةَ يَخُصُّونَ الْأَوَّلَ بِاسْمِ الْفَرْضِ وَالثَّانِيَ بِاسْمِ الْوَاجِبِ، وَلَا مُشَاحَّةَ فِي الْأَسْمَاءِ إِذَا فُهِمَتِ الْمَعَانِي.

The threat of punishment may be established with certainty or by probable judgement (ظنا). Abū Ḥanīfa's followers reserve the name farḍ for the first and wājib for the second. There is no dispute over names once their meanings are understood.

وَحَدُّ النَّدْبِ أَنَّهُ الْمُرَجَّحُ فِعْلُهُ مِنْ غَيْرِ تَوَعُّدٍ بِالْعِقَابِ عَلَى تَرْكِهِ. وَمِنْ حَدِّ الْوَاجِبِ نَقِفُ عَلَى حَدِّ الْمَحْظُورِ لِأَنَّهُ مُقَابِلُهُ، وَكَذَلِكَ مِنْ حَدِّ النَّدْبِ نَقِفُ عَلَى حَدِّ الْمَكْرُوهِ. وَحَدُّ الْمُبَاحِ مَا دَلَّ الشَّرْعُ عَلَى التَّسْوِيَةِ بَيْنَ فِعْلِهِ وَتَرْكِهِ، وَذَلِكَ إِمَّا أَنْ يَرِدَ الْخِطَابُ بِالتَّخْيِيرِ فِيهِمَا، أَوْ بِرَفْعِ الْحَرَجِ عَنْهُمَا، أَوْ يَدُلَّ دَلِيلُ الْعَقْلِ أَنَّهُ عَلَى الْبَرَاءَةِ الْأَصْلِيَّةِ بِعَدَمِ الدَّلِيلِ الشَّرْعِيِّ عَلَى تَعَلُّقِ حُكْمٍ بِهِ، عَلَى مَا سَيَأْتِي بَعْدُ.

The recommended (الندب) is defined as that whose performance is preferred without a threat of punishment for its omission. From the definition of the obligatory we apprehend that of the prohibited, its opposite; likewise, from that of the recommended we apprehend that of the disapproved. The permissible is that concerning which the Law indicates equality between performance and omission. This occurs either through an address allowing a choice between them, through removal of blame from both, or through a rational indication that original freedom from liability (البراءة الأصلية) remains because there is no legal proof attaching a ruling to it, as will be explained later.

G-B2-0037 · grammar. أسلوب القصر بـ«إنّما» — «له بإطلاق، وإنما زدنا في الحد قولنا: مع». [Restriction: only / nothing but; identify what is being limited by the construction.]

G-B2-0039 · grammar. قيد الجهة بـ«من حيث» — «على تركه من حيث هو ترك له بإطلاق، وإنما». [Insofar as / in the respect that; limits the scope of the assertion.]

The obligatory is divided into what is determinate and what allows a choice among a limited set of alternatives, either concerning the act or concerning the time. They call an obligation whose act is not fixed, but admits a limited set of alternatives, an obligation allowing a choice (الواجب المخير); one whose time is not fixed, an obligation with an extended time (الواجب الموسع).

وَالْوَاجِبُ يَنْقَسِمُ إِلَى مُعَيَّنٍ وَإِلَى مُخَيَّرٍ بَيْنَ أَقْسَامٍ مَحْدُودَةٍ، وَذَلِكَ إِمَّا فِي الْفِعْلِ وَإِمَّا فِي الزَّمَانِ. وَيُسَمُّونَ الْغَيْرَ مُعَيَّنِ الْفِعْلِ بَيْنَ أَقْسَامٍ مَحْدُودَةٍ الْوَاجِبَ الْمُخَيَّرَ، وَالْغَيْرَ مُعَيَّنِ الزَّمَانِ الْوَاجِبَ الْمُوَسَّعَ.

The Muʿtazilites denied both the rational possibility of such an obligation and its occurrence in the Law. They said: if the three alternatives in expiation are equal in their character with respect to the servant's welfare, all ought to be made obligatory because they are equally conducive to it. This is based on their doctrine of welfare and the best possible welfare.

Yet, even if this principle were granted, the contrary of what they posit would follow: if each alternative equals the others in bringing about welfare, employing all of them is pointless, as is selecting one particular alternative; and they do not allow such purposelessness in God. They appear not to have guarded their own principles in this question. They also argued that God's knowledge concerns the alternative the servant will perform, which is therefore necessarily determinate in itself; no choice is conceivable in such a case.

Discussion of this question does not belong to the science with which we are engaged. Here it is enough to say that such a thing does occur in the Law, as with the alternatives in expiation and the established consensus that most prayers have extended performance periods. The Muʿtazilites are bound to encounter the same difficulty they raised here in the case of the permissible. In general, this objection attaches to the possible insofar as it is possible.

N010 · textual. Printed p. 45 reads اتباع أوقات (‘observing the times’); the context concerns the extended time allowed for prayer. No conjectural replacement of اتباع by اتساع has been made.

Some jurists rejected calling such a thing obligatory. They said that, with respect to time, it is characterized by obligation only at the end of the period, since punishment attaches to failing to perform the prayer then. At the beginning of the period, however, they call it recommended, since omitting the prayer at that point incurs no penalty. A similar objection applies to an obligation offering a choice: no individual alternative can be considered obligatory, as the final moment of the prayer period can, unless the other two alternatives become unavailable; only then does the obligation of the third become conceivable. What should be said of such a case is that it resembles obligation in one respect and recommendation in another. Its resemblance to obligation lies in the discharge of the duty by praying at the beginning of the period; its resemblance to recommendation is that mentioned in the objection.

Chapter

فَصْلٌ

They likewise disagreed whether that without which an obligation cannot be fulfilled should itself be called obligatory. The proper account is that this is divided into what the servant has no choice in producing—for example, the capacity to walk—which is not characterized as obligatory but is a condition of imposing an obligation; and what the servant can produce by choice, which should be characterized as obligatory, such as the ritual purity required for prayer. The obligation of such a thing seems to be for the sake of something else, not for its own sake. Another division of the obligatory therefore emerges: some things are obligatory for the sake of something else, and some are obligatory in themselves.

The obligatory is also divided into what is measured by a determinate amount and what is not, such as wiping the head and remaining still in bowing. In the latter case, the obligatory amount is the least to which the name applies; what remains is recommended. This is conceivable only for acts occurring successively or following one upon another—in general, where their parts do not occur simultaneously.

وَكَذَلِكَ اخْتَلَفُوا فِيمَا لَا يَتِمُّ الْوَاجِبُ إِلَّا بِهِ هَلْ يُسَمَّى وَاجِبًا. وَوَجْهُ الْقَوْلِ فِيهِ أَنَّ هَذَا يَنْقَسِمُ إِلَى مَا لَيْسَ لِلْعَبْدِ فِي فِعْلِهِ اخْتِيَارٌ كَالْقُدْرَةِ عَلَى الْمَشْيِ مَثَلًا، فَهَذَا لَا يُوصَفُ بِالْوُجُوبِ بَلْ هُوَ مِنْ شَرْطِ تَكْلِيفِ الْوُجُوبِ، أَوْ إِلَى مَا لِلْعَبْدِ فِي فِعْلِهِ اخْتِيَارٌ، وَهَذَا فَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ يَتَّصِفَ بِالْوُجُوبِ كَالطَّهَارَةِ الْمُشْتَرَطَةِ فِي الصَّلَاةِ. وَكَأَنَّ وُجُوبَ مِثْلِ هَذَا إِنَّمَا هُوَ مِنْ أَجْلِ غَيْرِهِ لَا مِنْ أَجْلِ ذَاتِهِ، فَتَنْشَأُ هَهُنَا قِسْمَةٌ أُخْرَى لِلْوَاجِبِ وَهُوَ أَنَّ مِنْهُ مَا هُوَ وَاجِبٌ مِنْ أَجْلِ غَيْرِهِ وَمِنْهُ مَا هُوَ وَاجِبٌ لِذَاتِهِ.

Such is the account of the definition and division of the kinds of rulings (الأحكام). There remains the discussion of universal questions attaching to them.

فَهَذَا هُوَ الْقَوْلُ فِي تَحْدِيدِ أَنْوَاعِ الْأَحْكَامِ وَتَقْسِيمِهَا، وَقَدْ بَقِيَ الْقَوْلُ فِي مَسَائِلَ كُلِّيَّةٍ تَلْحَقُهَا.

The first question is this. If the legally responsible person dies during the allotted period without having discharged the duty, he does not die disobedient: the early generations agreed on this. Whoever declares him sinful is mistaken, for we know with certainty that they did not declare sinful someone who died after enough time had elapsed to perform the prayer.

If it is asked how omission with a resolve to act can be allowed when he does not know whether the outcome will be safe, we answer: such omission is allowed only until a time he judges it more probable than not that he will survive to, just as one administering discretionary punishment may strike up to a point at which death is not the predominant probability. Hence Abū Ḥanīfa—may God have mercy upon him—said that pilgrimage may not be postponed for a year, since survival until then is not predominantly probable; fasting and almsgiving, however, may be postponed for one or two months. Al-Shāfiʿī—may God have mercy upon him—regards survival for a year as predominantly probable for young people.

فَإِنْ قِيلَ فَكَيْفَ يَجُوزُ التَّرْكُ مَعَ الْعَزْمِ وَهُوَ لَا يَعْرِفُ سَلَامَةَ الْعَاقِبَةِ، قُلْنَا لَا يَجُوزُ التَّرْكُ مَعَ الْعَزْمِ إِلَّا إِلَى مُدَّةٍ يَغْلِبُ عَلَى ظَنِّهِ الْبَقَاءُ إِلَيْهَا، كَمَا يَجُوزُ لِلْمُعَزِّرِ أَنْ يَضْرِبَ إِلَى حَدٍّ لَا

يَغْلِبُ عَلَى ظَنِّهِ الْهَلَاكُ. وَلِذَلِكَ قَالَ أَبُو حَنِيفَةَ رَحِمَهُ اللَّهُ لَا يَجُوزُ تَأْخِيرُ الْحَجِّ إِلَى سَنَةٍ لِأَنَّ الْبَقَاءَ إِلَيْهَا لَا يَغْلِبُ عَلَى الظَّنِّ. وَأَمَّا تَأْخِيرُ الصَّوْمِ وَالزَّكَاةِ إِلَى شَهْرٍ أَوْ شَهْرَيْنِ فَجَائِزٌ. وَالشَّافِعِيُّ رَحِمَهُ اللَّهُ يَرَى الْبَقَاءَ إِلَى سَنَةٍ غَالِبًا عَلَى ظَنِّ الشَّبَابِ.

Second Question

مَسْأَلَةٌ ثَانِيَةٌ

Rulings are divided, as previously explained, into the obligatory and, at the opposite extreme, the prohibited, which is the forbidden. Between them lie two intermediates: the recommended and the disapproved. It is clear that where opposites admit an intermediate, removing one does not entail the existence of the other. Whoever claimed that when obligation is abrogated a thing returns to its previous prohibition was therefore mistaken. That would follow only if there were no intermediate between the obligatory and the forbidden. More evident still [is the error of supposing] that it returns to its previous permissibility, since permissibility is not contained within the genus of these opposites, namely demand (الطلب).

الْأَحْكَامُ تَنْقَسِمُ إِلَى وَاجِبٍ كَمَا تَقَدَّمَ، وَمُقَابِلِهِ فِي الطَّرَفِ الْأَقْصَى الْمَحْظُورِ، وَهُوَ الْحَرَامُ، وَبَيْنَهُمَا مُتَوَسِّطَانِ، وَهُمَا النَّدْبُ وَالْمَكْرُوهُ. وَبَيِّنٌ أَنَّ الْمُتَقَابِلَاتِ الَّتِي بَيْنَهَا مُتَوَسِّطٌ لَيْسَ يَلْزَمُ عَنْ رَفْعِ أَحَدِهَا وُجُودُ الْآخَرِ، فَلِذَلِكَ أَخْطَأَ مَنْ زَعَمَ أَنَّ الْوُجُوبَ إِذَا نُسِخَ رَجَعَ إِلَى مَا كَانَ قَبْلُ مِنْ حَظْرٍ. وَإِنَّمَا كَانَ يَكُونُ ذَلِكَ لَوْ لَمْ يَكُنْ بَيْنَ الْوَاجِبِ وَالْحَرَامِ وَاسِطَةٌ. وَأَبْيَنُ مِنْ هَذَا أَنْ يَرْجِعَ إِلَى مَا كَانَ قَبْلُ مِنْ إِبَاحَةٍ، إِذْ لَيْسَ يَتَضَمَّنُهَا جِنْسُ هَذِهِ الْمُتَقَابِلَاتِ الَّذِي هُوَ الطَّلَبُ.

Here the untenability of the claim that the permissible is commanded becomes clear. It is likewise clear that it does not belong to the imposition of legal responsibility (التكليف), since this is the demand for something involving a burden. Whoever calls it an imposition of responsibility, meaning that we are obliged to believe it permissible in the Law or obliged to believe that it belongs to the Law, strains the terminology. In general, this is a linguistic inquiry more suited to another place. The preceding account also makes clear that the recommended is commanded, since it involves a certain demand and requisition. As for the claim that ‘command’ applies only where omission incurs

وَهُنَا يَبِينُ سُقُوطُ قَوْلِ مَنْ قَالَ الْمُبَاحُ مَأْمُورٌ بِهِ. وَكَذَلِكَ يَتَبَيَّنُ أَنَّهُ لَيْسَ مِنَ التَّكْلِيفِ، إِذِ التَّكْلِيفُ طَلَبُ مَا فِيهِ كُلْفَةٌ. وَمَنْ سَمَّاهُ تَكْلِيفًا وَذَهَبَ فِي ذَلِكَ إِلَى أَنَّهُ الَّذِي كُلِّفْنَا اعْتِقَادَ إِبَاحَتِهِ فِي الشَّرْعِ، أَوْ أَنَّهُ الَّذِي كُلِّفْنَا اعْتِقَادَ كَوْنِهِ مِنَ الشَّرْعِ، فَهُوَ مُسْتَكْرَهٌ فِي التَّسْمِيَةِ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَهَذَا النَّظَرُ لُغَوِيٌّ وَهُوَ أَلْيَقُ بِغَيْرِ هَذَا الْمَوْضِعِ، وَمِمَّا تَقَدَّمَ أَيْضًا مِنْ هَذَا الْقَوْلِ تَبَيَّنَ أَنَّ الْمَنْدُوبَ مَأْمُورٌ بِهِ إِذْ هُوَ طَلَبٌ مَا وَاقْتِضَاءٌ. فَأَمَّا مَنْ زَعَمَ أَنَّ الْأَمْرَ إِنَّمَا يُطْلَقُ عَلَى مَا فِي تَرْكِهِ عِقَابٌ،

Third Question: The Forbidden Is the Contrary of the Obligatory

وَإِذَا كَانَ حَدُّ الْمُتَضَادَّيْنِ أَنَّهُمَا اللَّذَانِ لَا يَجْتَمِعَانِ فِي شَيْءٍ وَاحِدٍ بِالْعَدَدِ فِي وَقْتٍ وَاحِدٍ مِنْ جِهَةٍ وَاحِدَةٍ، فَلَا يَجُوزُ فِي الشَّرْعِ تَعَلُّقُ الْحَظْرِ وَالْإِيجَابِ بِشَيْءٍ وَاحِدٍ مِنْ جِهَةٍ وَاحِدَةٍ فِي وَقْتٍ وَاحِدٍ. فَأَمَّا تَعَلُّقُهُمَا بِشَيْئَيْنِ أَوْ فِي وَقْتَيْنِ فَذَلِكَ مَا لَا خِلَافَ فِيهِ، وَلَا يَرْجِعُ النَّهْيُ عَنْ أَحَدِهِمَا عَلَى الثَّانِي بِالْفَسَادِ، سَوَاءٌ كَانَ ذَلِكَ فِي شَيْئَيْنِ أَوْ فِي زَمَانَيْنِ. وَكَذَلِكَ يَلْزَمُ إِذَا تَعَلَّقَ النَّهْيُ وَالْإِيجَابُ بِشَيْءٍ وَاحِدٍ مِنْ جِهَتَيْنِ مِثْلَ أَنْ يَرِدَ الْأَمْرُ بِشَيْءٍ مُطْلَقًا، ثُمَّ يَرِدَ النَّهْيُ عَنْ ذَلِكَ الشَّيْءِ بِعَيْنِهِ مُقَيَّدًا بِصِفَةٍ أَوْ لِعِلَّةٍ مُصَرَّحٍ بِهَا.

If contraries are defined as two things that cannot coexist in one numerically identical thing, at one time and in one respect, then prohibition and obligation cannot in the Law attach to one thing in one respect at one time. Their attachment to two things or at two times is, however, undisputed; prohibiting one does not invalidate the other, whether the distinction concerns two things or two times. The same must hold when prohibition and obligation attach to one thing in two respects—for example, when something is commanded without qualification, and then that very thing is prohibited as qualified by an attribute or on account of an expressly stated cause.

إِلَّا أَنَّهُمُ اخْتَلَفُوا فِي مِثْلِ هَذَا الْجِنْسِ هَلْ يَعُودُ النَّهْيُ بِالْفَسَادِ عَلَى الْأَصْلِ الْمُوجَبِ مِنْ جِهَةِ مَا قُيِّدَ؟ فَزَعَمَ أَبُو حَامِدٍ رَحِمَهُ اللَّهُ أَنَّ هَذَا يَنْقَسِمُ عِنْدَهُمْ إِلَى مَا يَرْجِعُ إِلَى غَيْرِ الْمَنْهِيِّ لِسَبَبٍ مِنْ خَارِجٍ، وَإِلَى مَا يَرْجِعُ إِلَى صِفَةٍ فِي الشَّيْءِ. فَمَا يَرْجِعُ إِلَى غَيْرِ الْمَنْهِيِّ فَلَا يَرْجِعُ عَلَى الْأَصْلِ بِالْفَسَادِ، وَأَمَّا الَّذِي يَرْجِعُ إِلَى صِفَةٍ فِي الْمَنْهِيِّ عَنْهُ فَذَهَبَ الشَّافِعِيُّ إِلَى أَنَّهُ يَعُودُ عَلَى الْأَصْلِ بِالْفَسَادِ، وَحَيْثُ أَوْقَعَ الطَّلَاقَ فِي الْحَيْضِ صَرَفَ ذَلِكَ إِلَى الْإِضْرَارِ وَأَلْحَقَهُ بِالْقِسْمِ الْأَوَّلِ.

In cases of this kind, however, they disagreed whether the prohibition invalidates the originally obligatory act insofar as it is qualified. Abū Ḥāmid—may God have mercy upon him—stated that they divide this into what concerns something other than the prohibited act, owing to an external cause, and what concerns an attribute of the thing itself. What concerns something other than the prohibited act does not invalidate the original act. Concerning what relates to an attribute of the prohibited act, al-Shāfiʿī held that it invalidates the original act; where he gave effect to divorce during menstruation, he referred the prohibition to the infliction of harm and included it in the first division.

وَأَبُو حَنِيفَةَ لَا يَرَى فِي الْمَوْضِعَيْنِ النَّهْيَ يَعُودُ بِفَسَادِ الْأَصْلِ، سَوَاءٌ وَرَدَ الْمَنْهِيُّ عَنْهُ مُقَيَّدًا بِصِفَةٍ أَوْ سَبَبٍ مِنْ خَارِجٍ، وَزَعَمَ أَنَّ كَوْنَ الْحَدَثِ مُبْطِلًا لِلصَّلَاةِ إِنَّمَا ثَبَتَ بِدَلِيلِ الْإِجْمَاعِ.

Abū Ḥanīfa does not consider the prohibition to invalidate the original act in either case, whether the prohibited act is qualified by an attribute or by an external cause. He held that ritual impurity's invalidation of prayer was established only by the proof of consensus.

وَأَنَا أَرَى أَنَّ النَّظَرَ فِي هَذِهِ الْمَسْأَلَةِ إِنَّمَا هُوَ مِنْ جِهَةِ صِيغَةِ لَفْظِ النَّهْيِ، فَإِنَّ مَنْ يَدُلُّ عِنْدَهُ لَفْظَةُ ⟨النَّهْيِ عَلَى الْحَظْرِ جَعَلَ وُرُودَهُ فِي شَيْءٍ مُقَيَّدًا بِصِفَةٍ بَعْدَ⟩ إِيجَابِهِ مُطْلَقًا قَرِينَةٌ تُخْرِجُ النَّهْيَ عَنِ الْحَظْرِ إِلَى الْكَرَاهَةِ، وَأَكْثَرُ مِنْ ذَلِكَ وُرُودُهُ فِي شَيْءٍ لِأَمْرٍ مَا مِنْ خَارِجٍ بَعْدَ إِيجَابِ ذَلِكَ الشَّيْءِ مُطْلَقًا، وَسَنَتَكَلَّمُ فِي هَذَا فِيمَا بَعْدُ.

I consider that inquiry into this question concerns only the verbal form of prohibition. For one who understands the form of prohibition to signify that an act is forbidden, a prohibition applying to that act under a particular qualification, after its unconditional obligation has been established, is a contextual indicator (qarīna) that turns the apparent prohibition from strict forbiddance into disapproval. This is more clearly so if a prohibition attaches to the act on account of some external matter after the act has been enjoined without qualification. We shall discuss this later.

وَأَمَّا إِذَا نُظِرَ فِيهَا مِنْ حَيْثُ الْمَعْنَى، فَإِنَّ وُرُودَ النَّهْيِ عَنِ الشَّيْءِ مُقَيَّدًا بِأَمْرٍ مَا، سَوَاءٌ كَانَ سَبَبًا أَوْ صِفَةً، بَعْدَ إِيجَابِهِ مُطْلَقًا فَإِنَّهُ يَعُودُ عَلَى الْأَصْلِ بِالْفَسَادِ مِنْ جِهَةِ مَا هُوَ مُقَيَّدٌ. وَالَّذِي فَهِمْتَ هَهُنَا مِنْ وُرُودِ النَّهْيِ عَنِ الشَّيْءِ مُقَيَّدًا بَعْدَ إِيجَابِهِ مُطْلَقًا، هُوَ بِعَيْنِهِ يَنْبَغِي أَنْ تَفْهَمَهُ فِي وُرُودِ الْإِيجَابِ بِشَيْءٍ مَا مُقَيَّدًا بَعْدَ النَّهْيِ عَنْهُ مُطْلَقًا.

If, however, the question is considered from the standpoint of meaning, prohibiting a thing as qualified by some matter—whether a cause or an attribute—after making it obligatory without qualification invalidates the original act insofar as it is qualified. Precisely what you have understood here concerning a qualified prohibition issued after an unqualified obligation should be understood concerning a qualified obligation issued after an unqualified prohibition.

N012 · textual. REVISED after direct examination of Bou Akl 2015 Arabic p.138 §38 and French p.139: the originally dangling phrase is a copyist omission. The brackets ⟨…⟩ now restore the syntactic subject and conditional clause as Bou Akl proposes. Restoration is conjectural, not witnessed wording.

N013 · crux. Bou Akl 2015 prints an extended supplement from the prohibition-signifies-forbiddance position through the qualified prohibition after an unconditional duty. Without it, the prior English made the relation between wording, qualification and prohibition unclear. This edition accepts the restoration provisionally (Arabic p.138; French p.139; commentary §38).

N014 · textual. Bou Akl 2015 §38 supplies a conjectural restoration of the compressed construction. It must be distinguished from a directly transmitted Escorial reading. Compare the following contrast between verbal form (ṣīgha) and operative meaning (maʿnā).

BA15-R01 · textual. Qualified prohibitions; more than a gloss. The restoration supplies the predicate distinguishing a form normally taken as strict prohibition from a prohibition concerning a qualified act after its unconditional obligation. Whoever permits prayer in a valley, a bathhouse, or camels' resting places should interpret the prohibition concerning these as disapproval rather than forbiddance, following the doctrine that prohibiting something as qualified by an external matter, after permitting or commanding it without qualification, supplies a contextual indicator shifting the expression of prohibition from forbiddance to disapproval. This applies if he holds that the form of prohibition entails forbiddance. For someone who does not hold this, the matter is easy.

Whoever invalidates prayer on usurped land because it consists of prohibited movements and spatial positions does so through ignorance of the definitions of contraries: obligation and prohibition attach to it in two different respects. That is why the Companions—may God be pleased with them—agreed not to command wrongdoers to repeat their prayers upon repentance. These movements and spatial positions are commanded in one respect and prohibited in another. Similarly, prostration before an idol without intending [worship of it] is forbidden in one respect and an act of drawing near [to God] in another.

H1. For prayer in a bathhouse, see Sunan Abī Dāwūd 492; for prayer where camels rest, Ṣaḥīḥ Muslim 360a. These are separate reports. The precise source of the prohibition concerning the valley mentioned here remains unidentified.

Fourth Question

مَسْأَلَةٌ رَابِعَةٌ

R 32 · BA 41 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 50 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 140

People have disagreed whether making something obligatory prohibits its contrary, and whether prohibiting it makes its contrary obligatory. We say:

اخْتَلَفَ النَّاسُ فِي وُجُوبِ الشَّيْءِ هَلْ هُوَ حَظْرٌ لِضِدِّهِ، وَحَظْرِهِ وُجُوبٌ لِضِدِّهِ، فَنَقُولُ:

R 33 · BA 41 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 50 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 140

As for when the two contraries are defined according to their proper definition and the term is not used loosely, making a thing obligatory prohibits its contrary. For, as previously explained, whatever is indispensable to fulfilling an obligation is obligatory, whether it is an act or an omission. This question is conceivable only in legal contrariety (التضاد الشرعي). As for perceptible contrariety, abandoning the contrary is indispensable for the imposition of responsibility to be possible: it belongs to the conditions of the act.

BA-T021 · textual. قراءة الإسكوريال كما أثبتها بو عقل: «يصح»، مقابل «يصلح» في طبعة العلوي. (Escorial reading as reported by Bou Akl, 2015, Arabic p. 140; variant against al-ʿAlawī.)

G-B2-0073 · grammar. أسلوب القصر بـ«إنّما» — «وهذه المسألة إنما تتصور في التضاد الشرعي. وأما». [Restriction: only / nothing but; identify what is being limited by the construction.]

G-B2-0075 · grammar. أسلوب التسوية — «كما تقدم، وسواء كان ذلك فعلا أو تركا». [Whether one alternative or another; both possibilities fall under the same assessment.]

BA-F020 · textual. طبعة بو عقل، شاهد الإسكوريال [أ]: «أما إذا حد المتضادان»؛ مقابل قراءة العلوي [ع]: «إنه إذا حد المتضادان». أمّا شرطٌ تفصيليّ يُجيب عنه بالفاء في «فوجوب». [Bou Akl 2015, facing Arabic–French edition; this is a reported manuscript reading, not an independent examination of Escorial 1235.]

GRAM-BA-020 · grammar. أمّا التفصيلية وفاء الجواب [Topic-setting “as for …”: the answer is introduced by فـ; not a simple declarative إنّ.]

وَأَمَّا الْمَحْظُورُ فَإِذَا كَانَ مِمَّا كَانَ لَيْسَ لَهُ ضِدٌّ، أَوْ مِمَّا لَهُ ضِدٌّ إِلَّا أَنَّ بَيْنَهُمَا مُتَوَسِّطًا، فَلَيْسَ يَلْزَمُ عَنْ حَظْرِهِ إِيجَابُ شَيْءٍ مَا. وَأَمَّا إِذَا كَانَ لَا يَخْلُو الشَّيْءُ مِنْ أَحَدِهِمَا، وَلَمْ يَكُنْ بَيْنَهُمَا مُتَوَسِّطٌ، فَحَظْرُهُ إِيجَابٌ لِضِدِّهِ، هَذَا أَيْضًا إِذَا كَانَ التَّضَادُّ شَرْعِيًّا، وَأَمَّا إِذَا كَانَ حِسِّيًّا فَهُوَ مِنْ شَرْطِ التَّكْلِيفِ.

As for the prohibited, if it has no contrary, or has a contrary but admits an intermediate between them, prohibiting it does not entail making anything obligatory. If, however, the thing cannot be without one of the two and there is no intermediate between them, prohibiting it makes its contrary obligatory. This too applies where the contrariety is legal; if it is perceptible, it belongs to the conditions of legal responsibility.

G-B2-0078 · grammar. استثناء أو استدراك بـ«إلّا أنّ» — «له ضد إلا أن بينهما متوسطا، فليس يلزم عن». [Except that / however; the contextual function determines which qualification is intended.]

فَعَلَى هَذَا يَنْبَغِي أَنْ يتأو ل السُّؤَالُ وَالْجَوَابُ فِي هَذِهِ الْمَسْأَلَةِ. وَهُنَا انْقَضَى الْقَوْلُ فِي الْقِسْمِ الثَّانِي مِنْ هَذَا الْجُزْءِ.

This is how the question and its answer should be interpreted. Here the discussion of the second section of this part ends.

الْقَوْلُ فِي الْقِسْمِ الثَّالِثِ مِنَ الْجُزْءِ الْأَوَّلِ

Discussion of the Third Section of the First Part

هَذَا الْقِسْمُ يَتَضَمَّنُ النَّظَرَ فِي أَرْكَانِ الْحُكْمِ، وَهِيَ ثَلَاثَةٌ: الْحَاكِمُ، وَالْمَحْكُومُ عَلَيْهِ، وَالْمَحْكُومُ فِيهِ.

This section comprises inquiry into the constituent elements of a ruling (الحكم). They are three: the one who rules, the person subject to the ruling, and that concerning which the ruling is made.

أَمَّا الْحَاكِمُ فَهُوَ الْمُخَاطِبُ بِالْإِيجَابِ. وَمِنْ شُرُوطِهِ، مَعَ كَوْنِهِ مُتَكَلِّمًا، نُفُوذُ الْحُكْمِ عَلَى الْإِطْلَاقِ. وَإِنَّمَا يَصِحُّ ذَلِكَ بَيْنَ الْمَالِكِ وَالْمَمْلُوكِ وَالْخَالِقِ وَالْمَخْلُوقِ، وَهُوَ اللَّهُ تَعَالَى. وَكُلُّ مَنْ لَزِمَتْ طَاعَتُهُ فَإِنَّمَا لَزِمَتْ بِإِيجَابِ اللَّهِ تَعَالَى كَالسُّلْطَانِ وَالْأَبِ وَمَا أَشْبَهَهُمَا. وَهُوَ الْقَادِرُ عَلَى الْعِقَابِ

The one who rules is the speaker whose address imposes obligation. In addition to being a speaker, he must possess unrestricted authority for the ruling to take effect. This holds only between owner and owned, creator and created; the ruler is God Most High. Everyone whose obedience is obligatory—the ruler, the father, and the like—is owed obedience only because God Most High has made it obligatory. He has the power to punish and reward, since obligation or prohibition cannot be conceived as proceeding from one without power over them. This is established in theology (علم الكلام).

وَالثَّوَابِ إِذْ لَا يُتَصَوَّرُ الْإِيجَابُ أَوِ النَّهْيُ مِنْ غَيْرِ قَادِرٍ عَلَيْهِمَا. وَتَثْبِيتُ هَذَا فِي عِلْمِ الْكَلَامِ.

G-B2-0081 · grammar. «أداة شرط غير جازمة للتكرار — «مع كونه متكلما، نفوذ الحكم على الإطلاق. وإنما». [Whenever / the more … the more …; recurrent conditional relation.]

G-B2-0082 · grammar. «الفاء الرابطة مع «إنَّما» للحصر — «لزمت طاعته فإنما لزمت بإيجاب الله تعالى كالسلطان». [The conjunction fāʾ links this point; innamā restricts the assertion (“only / rather”), rather than introducing a conditional.]

R 38 · BA 46–48 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 51, 52 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 142

Two conditions apply to the addressee; one is understanding the address containing a command or prohibition, since an obligatory demand cannot properly be directed to someone who does not understand the address. If it is objected that alms and financial liabilities have been imposed upon children, we answer: the legally responsible person is the guardian, subject to readiness to receive reason. Likewise, in requiring children to pray before puberty, it is the father who is commanded. For only one who knows the Lawgiver (الشارع) understands the Law's address, and only one who knows God knows the Lawgiver. This condition is apprehended by reason.

From this it becomes clear that legal responsibility lapses for the forgetful, the heedless, the insane, and the intoxicated. If it is asked why an intoxicated person's divorce takes effect according to those who allow it, we answer that this is a measure of severity: he has brought the harm upon himself by his own choice, after [possessing] reason, the condition of legal responsibility. Such a case cannot be conceived for an insane person. As for appealing, in support of the possibility of addressing the intoxicated, to His words —blessed and exalted is He—‘Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated’[Q1]: even if this apparent meaning is conceded in the verse, apparent meanings (الظواهر) are not set against certainties. The verse admits interpretations:

وَمِنْ هُنَا يَتَبَيَّنُ سُقُوطُ تَكْلِيفِ النَّاسِي وَالْغَافِلِ وَالْمَجْنُونِ وَالسَّكْرَانِ. فَإِنْ قِيلَ فَكَيْفَ يَقَعُ طَلَاقُ السَّكْرَانِ عِنْدَ مَنْ يُجَوِّزُهُ؟ قُلْنَا ذَلِكَ عَلَى جِهَةِ التَّغْلِيظِ، إِذْ كَانَ هُوَ الَّذِي جَنَى عَلَى نَفْسِهِ بِاخْتِيَارِهِ بَعْدَ شَرْطِ التَّكْلِيفِ وَهُوَ الْعَقْلُ. وَلَيْسَ يُتَصَوَّرُ مِثْلُ هَذَا فِي الْمَجْنُونِ، وَتَعَلُّقُ مَنْ تَعَلَّقَ فِي جَوَازِ خِطَابِهِ بِقَوْلِهِ تَبَارَكَ وَتَعَالَى: {لَا تَقْرَبُوا الصَّلَاةَ وَأَنْتُمْ سُكَارَى}[Q1] فَإِنَّهُ إِنْ سُلِّمَ ظُهُورُ ذَلِكَ فِي الْآيَةِ فَلَيْسَ يُصَادَمُ بِالظَّوَاهِرِ الْقَطْعِيَّاتُ. وَلَهَا تَأْوِيلَاتٌ:

One interpretation is that the address is directed to a person in the early stages of intoxication.

N017 · textual. At R §39 the 1994 edition p. 52 prints «المستثنى» ("the excepted person"), while Bou Akl 2015 (Arabic p. 144) reports the Escorial reading «المنتشي» ("a person in the early stages of intoxication"). Bou Akl's facing French p. 145 and the corresponding passage of al-Ghazālī's Mustaṣfā support this reading. The Arabic and English here follow the manuscript reading as reported by Bou Akl; this is not an independent inspection of the Escorial folio.

They append the objection: how can God eternally command His servants, when a condition of commanding is that the commanded person exist? Similarly, how can He command the intoxicated while intoxicated, or the insane and the child, on condition that the first recover consciousness, the second become sound, and the third reach puberty? An answer is not possible in this place, nor is the question peculiar to this inquiry. Discussing it rests on principles requiring lengthy preparation and extensive examination. As we have said, we should not investigate everything, or many things, in a single place; each should receive its own treatment in the place appropriate to it. What prompts this practice is a love of multiplying material that serves no purpose.

The second condition is puberty, and this condition is apprehended through the Law. timing varies, the Law appointed a sign that indicates it in most cases.

It should be understood that the things a human being acquires are those in which he may perform whichever of two contraries he wishes: standing, for example, is acquired by him, and he may stand or sit. If this is the meaning of acquisition (الاكتساب), there is no point in their purported exception for the obligation of inquiry that leads to knowledge, on the ground that one cannot intend to perform it as obedience before knowing it to be obligatory. For, as we have said, the obligation to inquire arises necessarily because the object of inquiry is necessarily known. A person has no choice in assenting to its obligatoriness when the miracle appears.

Nor is there any point in their exception for the will to obey, or their saying that if willing required a will, that will would require another will, producing an infinite regress. Will is desire (شوق), and the arising of desire in a human being is something like a necessary occurrence, since its producer is assent involving hope and fear. Thus the condition of a legally prescribed act is, first, that it be acquired; and second, that the cause in acquiring [the act] be belief in the command's obligatoriness, [rather than] other things he may do.

For the shaykh Abū al-Ḥasan, however, being acquired is not a condition of an act. He holds that there is no act acquired by the human being at all: what makes the human being appear to be an agent of something is an accompanying and incidental matter, without the human being being either its proximate or its remote cause. Thus, for example, the relation of someone with two feet to walking would be exactly that of someone without feet. This contradicts sense perception and is a view exceedingly foreign to human nature. Abū al-Maʿālī, in al-Risāla al-Niẓāmiyya, explained the respect in which one may properly say, within the Law, that human beings possess capacity and acquisition (اقتدارا واكتسابا).

وَمَنْ لَمْ يَكُنْ عِنْدَهُ لِلْإِنْسَانِ اقْتِدَارٌ عَلَى شَيْءٍ مَا، جَازَ عِنْدَهُ تَكْلِيفُ مَا لَا يُطَاقُ، وَبِحَقٍّ مَا فَعَلَ ذَلِكَ لِأَنَّهُ لَيْسَ عَلَى رَأْيِهِ هَهُنَا شَيْءٌ يُطَاقُ. وَالَّذِي يَنْبَغِي أَنْ نَقُولَ هَهُنَا أَنَّ تَكْلِيفَ مَا لَا يُطَاقُ مُمْتَنِعٌ عَقْلًا وَشَرْعًا. أَمَّا شَرْعًا فبقوله: {لَا يُكَلِّفُ اللَّهُ نَفْسًا إِلَّا وُسْعَهَا}[Q1]. وَأَمَّا عَقْلًا فَلِامْتِنَاعِ قِيَامِ الْمُحَالِ بِالنَّفْسِ، وَأَنَّ مِنَ الشَّرْطِ الْمَأْمُورِ بِهِ أَنْ يَكُونَ مَفْهُومًا وَمُتَصَوَّرًا مَكَانُهُ عِنْدَ الْآمِرِ وَالْمَأْمُورِ.

Whoever denies human beings capacity for anything allows the imposition of what is beyond their capacity; he is right to do so on his own account, since on his view nothing is within their capacity. What we should say here is that imposing what is beyond capacity is impossible both rationally and legally. Legally, because of His saying, ‘God charges no soul beyond its capacity.’[Q1] Rationally, because the impossible cannot be present in the soul, and because a condition of what is commanded is that it be understood and its possibility conceived by both the commander and the commanded.

One question is whether someone coerced into compliance with, or violation of, a legal requirement (التكليف) acts by choice, so as to be rewarded for the one and punished for the other. We say: someone coerced into compliance may reasonably be thought to act by choice insofar as he can do otherwise and endure the means of coercion. This varies with the harm inflicted upon him. Yet if he does not perform the act believing it to be obedience and compliance, he receives no reward; if he does believe this, he is rewarded. Even when coercion initially moves him to act, if, upon undertaking the act, he believes its performance to be obedience, he is rewarded.

فَمِنْهَا هَلِ الْمُكْرَهُ عَلَى وَفْقِ التَّكْلِيفِ أَوْ خِلَافِهِ مُخْتَارٌ حَتَّى يُثَابَ عَلَى الْوَاجِدِ وَيُعَاقَبَ عَلَى الْآخَرِ؟ وَنَحْنُ نَقُولُ فِي ذَلِكَ: أَمَّا الْمُكْرَهُ عَلَى وَفْقِ التَّكْلِيفِ فَقَدْ يُشْبِهُ أَنْ يُظَنَّ بِهِ أَنَّهُ مُخْتَارٌ مِنْ جِهَةِ أَنَّ لَهُ أَنْ يَأْتِيَ بِخِلَافِ مَا أُكْرِهَ عَلَيْهِ مُحْتَمِلًا لِمَا بِهِ أُكْرِهَ. وَهَذَا يَتَفَاوَتُ بِحَسَبِ مَا يَلْحَقُ الْمُكْرَهَ مِنَ الْأَذَى. لَكِنْ إِنْ لَمْ يَأْتِ ذَلِكَ مُعْتَقِدًا إِتْيَانَهُ طَاعَةً وَامْتِثَالًا لَمْ يُثَبْ عَلَيْهِ، فَإِنِ اعْتَقَدَ ذَلِكَ أُثِيبَ عَلَيْهِ. وَإِنْ كَانَ سَبَبُ تَحْرِيكِهِ إِلَى الْفِعْلِ الْإِكْرَاهَ، فَإِنَّهُ إِذَا أَخَذَ فِي الْفِعْلِ وَاعْتَقَدَ وُقُوعَهُ طَاعَةً أُثِيبَ عَلَيْهِ.

It is in this respect that coercing unbelievers to faith by [the threat of] killing occurs in the Law. In general, threatening punishment is a kind of coercion in this respect. Such a case is conceivable when obstinacy or some other impediment prevents a person from complying. In general, the soul that commands evil often turns a person away from a duty even while he believes it obligatory.

وَعَلَى هَذَا الْوَجْهِ جَاءَ إِكْرَاهُ الْكُفَّارِ عَلَى الْإِيمَانِ بِالْقَتْلِ فِي الشَّرْعِ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَالتَّوَعُّدُ بِالْعِقَابِ هُوَ إِكْرَاهٌ مَا عَلَى هَذَا الْوَجْهِ. وَمِثْلُ هَذَا يُتَصَوَّرُ فِي أَنْ يَكُونَ الْإِنْسَانُ يَصُدُّهُ عَنِ الِامْتِثَالِ عِنَادٌ أَوْ غَيْرُ ذَلِكَ مِنَ الْأَسْبَابِ الْمَانِعَةِ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ الْأَمَّارَةُ بِالسُّوءِ كَثِيرًا مَا تَصُدُّ الْإِنْسَانَ عَنِ الْوَاجِبِ مَعَ اعْتِقَادِ وُجُوبِهِ.

As for someone coerced into violating the Law—for example, into killing a Muslim or omitting prayer—there are two questions. First, does he sin if he acts as the coercion demands? Second, if he endures the coercion and does not act as it demands, is he rewarded or does he sin, given that a person's own life has a claim upon him?

وَأَمَّا الْمُكْرَهُ عَلَى مُخَالَفَةِ الشَّرْعِ مِثْلِ الْإِكْرَاهِ عَلَى قَتْلِ مُسْلِمٍ، أَوْ تَرْكِ الصَّلَاةِ، فَالسُّؤَالُ فِيهِ فِي مَوْضِعَيْنِ: أَحَدُهُمَا: هَلْ إِذَا فَعَلَ بِمُقْتَضَى الْإِكْرَاهِ أَثِمَ أَمْ لَا؟ وَالثَّانِي: إِنِ احْتَمَلَ الْإِكْرَاهَ وَلَمْ يَفْعَلْ بِمُقْتَضَاهُ هَلْ يُثَابُ أَوْ يَأْثَمُ، فَإِنَّ لِنَفْسِ الْمَرْءِ عَلَيْهِ حَقًّا،

What should be said is that coercion varies in degree according to its means. Apprehending these degrees, comparing them with violation of the command, and preferring one over the other are matters apprehended through the Law, especially when the means of coercion is of the same kind as the act demanded—for example, coercion by killing into killing. In general, this question is a matter of independent judgement (اجتهادية).

وَالَّذِي يَنْبَغِي أَنْ يُقَالَ فِي ذَلِكَ هُوَ أَنَّ الْإِكْرَاهَ تَتَفَاوَتُ مَرَاتِبُهُ لِتَفَاوُتِ مَا بِهِ يَقَعُ الْإِكْرَاهُ، وَمُدْرَكُ مَرَاتِبِ هَذَا التَّفَاوُتِ، وَالْمُقَايَسَةِ بَيْنَهُ وَبَيْنَ مُخَالَفَةِ الْأَمْرِ وَتَرْجِيحِ أَحَدِهِمَا عَلَى الْآخَرِ، مُدْرَكٌ شَرْعِيٌّ، وَلَاسِيَّمَا إِذَا كَانَ مَا بِهِ يَقَعُ الْإِكْرَاهُ مِنْ نَوْعِ الْمُكْرَهِ عَلَيْهِ، مِثْلَ أَنْ يُكْرَهَ بِالْقَتْلِ عَلَى الْقَتْلِ، وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَهَذِهِ الْمَسْأَلَةُ اجْتِهَادِيَّةٌ.

Another question is whether the imposition of legal responsibility (التكليف) requires restraint just as action is required. The answer is that omission is of two kinds. In one, a person, when omitting something, engages in its contrary; this is rewarded, as in fasting. In the other, omitting something does not involve engagement in a contrary; this is not rewarded. Assigning each individual case to one of these two kinds belongs to inquiry into the branches of law.

وَمِنْهَا: هَلِ الْمُقْتَضَى بِالتَّكْلِيفِ الْكَفُّ كَمَا يُقْتَضَى الْفِعْلُ. وَالْجَوَابُ أَنَّ التَّرْكَ صِنْفَانِ: صِنْفٌ يَلْحَقُ الْإِنْسَانَ عِنْدَ تَرْكِهِ

التَّلَبُّس بِضِدٍّ، فَهَذَا يُثَابُ عَلَيْهِ كَالصِّيَامِ. وَصِنْفٌ لَا يَلْحَقُ الْإِنْسَانَ عِنْدَ تَرْكِهِ التَّلَبُّس بِضِدٍّ، فَهَذَا لَا يُثَابُ عَلَيْهِ. وَإِلْحَاقُ مَسْأَلَةٍ مَسْأَلَةٍ بِهَذَيْنِ الصِّنْفَيْنِ نَظَرٌ فُرُوعِيٌّ.

Another question is whether the command to do something, such as the command to pray, applies before its condition is fulfilled, so that omission is punishable even without fulfilment of the condition. This concerns a legal condition: for example, commanding a ritually impure person to pray while impure. Or does the command apply only after the condition is fulfilled, as when prayer is commanded in a state of purity?

وَمِنْهَا: هَلْ يَتَوَجَّهُ الْأَمْرُ بِالشَّيْءِ قَبْلَ حُصُولِ شَرْطِهِ، كَالْأَمْرِ بِالصَّلَاةِ، فَيُعَاقَبُ عَلَى تَرْكِهِ مِنْ غَيْرِ حُصُولِ شَرْطِهِ، هَذَا إِذَا كَانَ الشَّرْطُ شَرْعِيًّا كَأَمْرِ الْمُحْدِثِ بِالصَّلَاةِ فِي حِينِ إِحْدَاثِهِ، أَوْ لَا يَتَوَجَّهُ الْأَمْرُ بِالشَّيْءِ إِلَّا بَعْدَ حُصُولِ شَرْطِهِ كَالْأَمْرِ بِالصَّلَاةِ فِي حِينِ الطَّهَارَةِ؟

We say: if a person can acquire the condition by choice, he may be commanded to perform the act on the supposition that its condition is fulfilled and punished for omitting it even if he has not fulfilled the condition. Someone who omits prayer is punished for it even if he has never performed ablution. So the Law has prescribed.

وَنَحْنُ نَقُولُ: إِذَا كَانَ الشَّرْطُ مُكْتَسَبًا لِلْإِنْسَانِ بِاخْتِيَارِهِ فَجَائِزٌ أَنْ يُؤْمَرَ الْإِنْسَانُ بِالشَّيْءِ عَلَى تَقْدِيرِ حُصُولِ شَرْطِهِ وَيُعَاقَبَ عَلَى تَرْكِهِ، وَإِنْ لَمْ يَأْتِ بِشَرْطِهِ كَتَارِكِ الصَّلَاةِ يُعَاقَبُ عَلَيْهَا وَإِنْ لَمْ يَتَوَضَّأْ قَطُّ، وَبِذَلِكَ وَرَدَ الشَّرْعُ.

The proof of consensus indicates that punishment attaches to one who denies the messengers even before knowing God, although such knowledge is a condition of faith in the messengers. Some appealed here to His words—mighty and exalted—‘What brought you into Saqar? They said: We were not among those who pray.’[Q1] They sought to establish that the verse contains unambiguous wording (نص) on this. Although it is not unambiguous, this is its apparent meaning (ظاهرة), since ‘those who pray’ may here mean believers, as in his saying—peace be upon him—‘I have been forbidden to kill those who pray.’ Anyone who considers such a case rationally impossible interprets the apparent meaning otherwise, as is usual with an apparent expression that admits alternatives.

Those who disallow imposing responsibility in such a case argued that there is no meaning in obliging almsgiving and the discharge of prayer when their occurrence is impossible: how can something be obligatory when it cannot be complied with? These people have confused a legal condition (الشرط الشرعي) with a condition of actual existence (الشرط الوجودي). The matter is otherwise. The command applies to this responsible person before its condition is fulfilled only on the supposition that the condition will be fulfilled; this is within his capacity and can be acquired, unlike a condition of actual existence.

Their argument that, when an unbeliever becomes Muslim, the obligation concerning [past] prayer and almsgiving falls away contains no proof. We hold that this obligation lapses upon conversion only on the basis of a legal proof. We require make-up performance (القضاء) from an apostate but not from an unbeliever because make-up performance becomes obligatory only through a separate command; the legal proof must therefore be followed. Thus someone not commanded to perform an act within its time (الأداء) may be commanded to make it up, while someone commanded to perform it within its time may not be commanded to make it up.

وَلَكِنْ هَا هُنَا فِيمَا زَعَمُوا مَسَائِلُ جُزْئِيَّةٌ تُوقِعُ شَكًّا فِي هَذِهِ الْمَسْأَلَةِ الْكُلِّيَّةِ وَهِيَ: مَنْ تَوَسَّطَ أَرْضًا مُزْدَرَعَةً مَغْصُوبَةً فَيَحْرُمُ عَلَيْهِ الْمَكْثُ وَيَحْرُمُ عَلَيْهِ الْخُرُوجُ، إِذْ فِي كُلِّ وَاحِدٍ فَسَادُ زَرْعِ الْغَيْرِ، فَهُوَ عَاصٍ بِأَيِّهِمَا فَعَلَ. وَكَذَلِكَ مَنْ سَقَطَ عَلَى صَدْرِ صَبِيٍّ مَحْفُوفٍ بِصِبْيَانٍ، وَعَلِمَ إِنَّهُ إِنْ مَكَثَ قَتَلَ مَنْ تَحْتَهُ وَإِنِ انْتَقَلَ قَتَلَ مَنْ حَوَالَيْهِ.

They claim, however, that certain particular cases cast doubt on this universal proposition. One concerns someone in the middle of a usurped cultivated field: both remaining and leaving are forbidden, since each damages another person's crop, and whichever he does he is disobedient. Another concerns someone who falls on the chest of a child surrounded by children, knowing that if he remains he will kill the child beneath him, and if he moves he will kill those around him.

Such questions are matters of independent judgement. They cast no doubt on the inadmissibility of a command to abstain from both contraries. It may plausibly be said that the person is not legally responsible in this condition. Or it may be said that in the first case he should leave to reduce the harm, and in the second remain, since moving is a new act that can proceed only from a living person. It is also possible to say that he has a choice, especially if neither act is preferable to the other in causing less harm. Here the discussion of the act, the third section of this book's first part, ends.

الْفَصْلُ الْأَوَّلُ: فِي الْأَسْبَابِ الْمُظْهِرَةِ لِلْأَحْكَامِ

First Chapter: Causes That Manifest Rulings

Know that the Law has appointed signs for rulings that entail their occurrence as perceptible causes entail their effects. Through these causes we come to know that rulings obtain; otherwise establishing them would be impossible. The detailed account of the conditions under which they entail rulings belongs to the third part of this book.

Second Chapter: What ‘Validity’ and ‘Nullity’ Signify in Rulings

اعْلَمْ أَنَّ هَذَا يُطْلَقُ فِي الْعِبَادَاتِ عَلَى أَوْجُهٍ مُخْتَلِفَةٍ، فَالصِّحَّةُ تَنْطَلِقُ عِنْدَ الْمُتَكَلِّمِينَ عَلَى مَا وَقَعَ عَلَى وَفْقِ الشَّرْعِ، وَجَبَ الْقَضَاءُ أَوْ لَمْ يَجِبْ؛ وَعِنْدَ الْفُقَهَاءِ عَمَّا أَجْزَأَ وَأَسْقَطَ الْقَضَاءَ، حَتَّى أَنَّ صَلَاةَ مَنْ ظَنَّ أَنَّهُ مُتَطَهِّرٌ صَحِيحَةٌ فِي اصْطِلَاحِ الْمُتَكَلِّمِينَ، لِأَنَّ الْقَضَاءَ لَازِمٌ بِأَمْرٍ مُتَجَدِّدٍ. وَهَذِهِ الاصطلاحات لَا مُشَاحَّةَ فِيهَا إِذَا فُهِمَ الْغَرَضُ.

Know that these terms are applied to acts of worship in different ways. For theologians, validity (الصحة) applies to what occurs in conformity with the Law, whether make-up performance is obligatory or not; for jurists, it applies to what suffices and removes the requirement of make-up performance. Thus the prayer of someone who thought himself ritually pure is valid in the theologians' terminology, since make-up performance is required by a renewed command. These are terminological conventions about which there is no dispute once the intended meaning is understood.

وَأَمَّا فِي الْعُقُودِ فَيَنْطَلِقُ الْفَسَادُ عَلَى كُلِّ حُكْمٍ لَمْ يَتَضَمَّنْ أَحَدَ مَا بِهِ يَتِمُّ الْحُكْمُ، سَوَاءٌ كَانَ ذَلِكَ شَرْطًا أَوْ سَبَبًا، وَالصِّحَّةُ مُقَابِلُ هَذَا. اللَّهُمَّ إِلَّا أَنَّ أَصْحَابَ أَبِي حَنِيفَةَ فَإِنَّهُمْ يَخُصُّونَ بِاسْمِ الْفَاسِدِ مَا كَانَ مَشْرُوعًا فِي أَصْلِهِ مَمْنُوعًا فِي وَصْفِهِ. لَكِنْ قَدْ تَقَدَّمَ مِنْ قَوْلِنَا أَنَّ كُلَّ مَمْنُوعٍ بِوَصْفِهِ مَمْنُوعٌ بِأَصْلِهِ وَعَائِدٌ عَلَيْهِ بِالْفَسَادِ مِنْ جِهَةِ مَا هُوَ مُتَّصِفٌ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَالْأَحْكَامُ إِنَّمَا تَتَّصِفُ بِالصِّحَّةِ إِذَا فُعِلَتْ بِالْأُمُورِ وَالْأَحْوَالِ الَّتِي اشْتَرَطَ الشَّرْعُ فِي فِعْلِهَا، وَالْفَسَادُ بِخِلَافِ ذَلِكَ.

In contracts, invalidity (الفساد) applies to every legal determination lacking something indispensable to its completion, whether a condition or a cause; validity is its opposite. Abū Ḥanīfa's followers, however, reserve ‘defective’ (الفاسد) for what is authorized in its foundation but prohibited in its attribute. We have already said that everything prohibited through its attribute is prohibited in its foundation and invalidated insofar as it bears that attribute. In general, rulings are characterized by validity only when carried out with the matters and conditions that the Law requires for their performance; invalidity is the contrary.

Third Chapter: Describing Worship as Timely Performance, Make-Up Performance, and Repetition

اعْلَمْ أَنَّ الْوَاجِبَ إِذَا أُدِّيَ فِي وَقْتِهِ سُمِّيَ أَدَاءً، وَإِذَا فُعِلَ مَرَّةً عَلَى نَحْوٍ مِنَ الْخَلَلِ ثُمَّ فُعِلَ ثَانِيًا سُمِّيَ إِعَادَةً، وَإِنْ أُدِّيَ بَعْدَ خُرُوجِ وَقْتِهِ الضَّيِّقِ أَوِ الْمُوَسَّعِ مَعَ تَرْكِهِ عَمْدًا سُمِّيَ قَضَاءً. وَقَدْ يُطْلَقُ اسْمُ الْقَضَاءِ عَلَى مَعَانٍ غَيْرِ هَذِهِ بَعْضُهَا أَقْرَبُ إِلَى هَذَا الْمَعْنَى، وَبَعْضُهَا أَبْعَدُ. فَمِنْهَا مَا يُتْرَكُ سَهْوًا حَتَّى يَخْرُجَ وَقْتُهُ فَهَذَا أَيْضًا يُسَمَّى قَضَاءً حَقِيقَةً، لَكِنْ يُفَارِقُ الْأَوَّلَ بِحَطِّ الْإِثْمِ عَنْ فَاعِلِهِ.

Know that when an obligation is discharged within its time, it is called timely performance (أداء). If performed once with some defect and then performed again, it is called repetition (إعادة). If discharged after its restricted or extended time has elapsed, having been deliberately omitted, it is called make-up performance (قضاء). The name qaḍāʾ is also applied to other meanings, some closer to this meaning and some more remote. One concerns what is omitted inadvertently until its time elapses. This too is properly called make-up performance, but differs from the first case in that its performer is relieved of sin.

Another concerns cases where timely performance is not obligatory, such as fasting for a menstruating woman. This puzzled some people to the point that they inferred an obligation to fast during menstruation from the obligation to make up the fast. Consensus refutes this: if she died before becoming ritually pure, she would not have sinned. Another concerns the sick person and the traveller. Since they are permitted to fast, their duty resembles an obligation with an extended time. This ought not to be called make-up performance, just as praying at the end of the allotted period is not called make-up performance. Such usage is figurative, because the familiar first period has been missed.

وَفِي الْمُسَافِرِ وَالْمَرِيضِ مَذْهَبَانِ غَيْرُ هَذَا: أَحَدُهُمَا مَذْهَبُ أَهْلِ الظَّاهِرِ أَنَّهُمَا لَوْ صَامَا لَمْ يَصِحَّ صَوْمُهُمَا لِقَوْلِهِ عَزَّ وَجَلَّ: {فَعِدَّةٌ مِنْ أَيَّامٍ أُخَرَ}Q1 وَالثَّانِي مَذْهَبُ الْكَرْخِيِّ أَنَّ الْوَاجِبَ أَيَّامٌ أُخَرُ، وَلَكِنْ لَوْ صَامَا رَمَضَانَ صَحَّ، كَمَنْ قدم الزَّكَاةَ عَلَى الْحَوْلِ. وَكِلَا هَذَيْنِ الْقَوْلَيْنِ إِنَّمَا ينبنيان عَلَى مَنْ لَا يَرَى أَنَّ فِي الْآيَةِ حَذْفًا، وَأَنَّ التَّقْدِيرَ: فَأَفْطَرَ فَعِدَّةٌ مِنْ أَيَّامٍ أُخَرَQ1، وَأَنَّ ذَلِكَ مَحْمُولٌ عَلَى الرُّخْصَةِ. وَسَتَبِينُ هَذِهِ الْمَسْأَلَةُ مِمَّا يُقَالُ فِي الْجُزْءِ الثَّالِثِ مِنْ هَذَا الْكِتَابِ.

There are two other doctrines concerning the traveller and the sick person. The Ẓāhirīs hold that if they fast, their fast is invalid, because of His words—mighty and exalted—‘then a number of other days.’Q1 Al-Karkhī holds that the obligation concerns other days, but that fasting during Ramaḍān is valid, like advancing the alms before the year's completion. Both doctrines rest upon declining to recognise an ellipsis in the verse, whose understood wording is ‘and he breaks the fast, then a number of other days,’Q1 and to construe it as a concession (رخصة). This question will become clear from the discussion in the third part of this book.

Someone who construes it as a concession might be asked about the validity of fasting by a sick person who fears death or severe harm to himself. That is a matter of independent judgement admitting either answer, and lies outside the present purpose.

Q1. Qurʾān, al-Baqarah 2:184–185 ↗. The clause occurs in both verses. The later “and he breaks the fast” is an explanatory addition, not Qurʾānic wording.

وَقَدْ أَطْلَقَ الْقَاضِي رَحِمَهُ اللَّهُ اسْمَ الْقَضَاءِ عَلَى مَا يَتْرُكُهُ الْإِنْسَانُ مُتَعَمِّدًا مَعَ غَلَبَةِ ظَنِّهِ بِالِاخْتِرَامِ قَبْلَ أَدَائِهِ الْفِعْلَ إِذَا انْكَشَفَ خِلَافُ مَا ظَنَّ، لِأَنَّهُ يُقَدِّرُ الْوَقْتَ بِحَسَبِ غَلَبَةِ الظَّنِّ. وَهَذَا لَا مَعْنَى لَهُ، لِأَنَّهُ لَيْسَ يَكُونُ ظَنُّهُ بِالِاخْتِرَامِ سَبَبًا لِخُرُوجِ الْوَقْتِ فِي نَفْسِهِ.

The Qāḍī—may God have mercy upon him—applied the name ‘make-up performance’ to what a person deliberately omits while predominantly expecting death before performing it, if events subsequently contradict that expectation. His reason is that the time is assessed according to the predominant probability. This is meaningless, since expecting death does not cause the allotted time itself to elapse.

الْفَصْلُ الرَّابِعُ: فِي الْعَزِيمَةِ وَالرُّخْصَةِ

Fourth Chapter: The Original Requirement and the Concession

اعْلَمْ أَنَّ الْعَزْمَ فِي الشَّرْعِ عِبَارَةٌ عَمَّا لَزِمَ الْعِبَادَ بِإِيجَابِ اللَّهِ تَعَالَى، وَالرُّخْصَةُ عِبَارَةٌ عَمَّا وُسِّعَ لِلْمُكَلَّفِ فِي فِعْلِهِ لِعُذْرٍ أَوْ عَجْزٍ عَنْهُ، مَعَ قِيَامِ السَّبَبِ الْمُحَرِّمِ، كَتَحْلِيلِ جُرْعَةِ خَمْرٍ لِلشَّرِقِ، وَالْمَيْتَةِ لِلْمُضْطَرِّ. وَقَدْ تُطْلَقُ الرُّخْصَةُ عَلَى مَعَانٍ غَيْرِ هَذِهِ بَعْضُهَا أَقْرَبُ إِلَى هَذَا وَبَعْضُهَا أَبْعَدُ.

Know that the original requirement (العزم) in the Law designates what binds servants through God's imposition of obligation. A concession (الرخصة) designates the latitude granted to a legally responsible person in acting because of an excuse or incapacity, while the prohibiting cause remains in place: for example, permitting a draught of wine to someone choking, or carrion to someone compelled by necessity. ‘Concession’ may also be applied to other meanings, some closer to this meaning and some more remote.

وَهُنَا انْتَهَى النَّظَرُ فِي الْجُزْءِ الْأَوَّلِ مِنْ هَذَا الْمُخْتَصَرِ، وَيَتْلُوهُ كِتَابُ أُصُولِ الْأَحْكَامِ.

Here inquiry into the first part of this abridgement ends. The book on the sources of rulings follows.

الْقَوْلُ فِي الْجُزْءِ الثَّانِي مِنْ هَذَا الْكِتَابِ

Discussion of the Second Part of This Book

وَهُوَ يَتَضَمَّنُ النَّظَرَ فِي الْأُصُولِ الَّتِي تَسْتَنِدُ إِلَيْهَا هَذِهِ الْأَحْكَامُ وَعَنْهَا تُسْتَنْبَطُ، وَهِيَ أَرْبَعَةٌ: الْكِتَابُ، وَالسُّنَّةُ، وَإِجْمَاعُ الْأُمَّةِ، وَدَلِيلُ الْعَقْلِ عَلَى النَّفْيِ الْأَصْلِيِّ، وَتَسْمِيَةُ مِثْلِ هَذَا أَصْلًا تَجَوُّزٌ، إِذْ لَيْسَ يَدُلُّ عَلَى الْأَحْكَامِ بَلْ عَلَى نَفْيِهَا. فَأَمَّا قَوْلُ الصَّحَابَةِ وَشَرِيعَةُ مَنْ قَبْلَنَا فَمُخْتَلَفٌ فِيهِ. فَلْنَبْدَأْ مِنْ ذَلِكَ في الكتاب، وَنَنْظُرْ أَوَّلًا فِي حَقِيقَتِهِ، ثُمَّ فِيمَا يَحْصُرُهُ، ثُمَّ فِي أَلْفَاظِهِ، ثُمَّ فِي أَحْكَامِهِ.

This part comprises inquiry into the sources on which these rulings rest and from which they are derived. They are four: the Book, the Sunna, the community's consensus, and reason's indication of original negation (النفي الأصلي). Calling the last a source is figurative, since it indicates the absence of rulings rather than rulings themselves. The status of a Companion's statement and the law of those before us is disputed. Let us begin with the Book, examining first its reality, then what delimits it, then its expressions, and then its rulings.

الْأَصْلُ الْأَوَّلُ

The First Source

فَأَمَّا حَقِيقَتُهُ وَمَعْنَاهُ «فَهُوَ الْكَلَامُ الْقَائِمُ بِذَاتِ اللَّهِ تَعَالَى، وَهُوَ صِفَةٌ قَدِيمَةٌ مِنْ صِفَاتِهِ»، وَالْقَوْلُ فِي إِثْبَاتِ هَذِهِ الصِّفَةِ وَتَخْلِيصِهَا بِمَا يَخُصُّهَا مِنْ غَيْرِهَا مِنَ الصِّفَاتِ هُوَ مِنْ عِلْمِ الْكَلَامِ.

As for its reality and meaning, ‘it is the speech subsisting in the essence of God Most High, an eternal attribute among His attributes.’ Establishing this attribute and distinguishing it from the other attributes by what is peculiar to it belongs to theology (علم الكلام).

N024 · translation. The definition in this passage is marked as a quotation. Its formulation is also found in al-Ghazālī’s al-Mustaṣfā; compare the wording بِمَا يَخُصُّهَا and the distinction between the source’s formulation and the author’s discussion.

فَأَمَّا مَا يَحْصُرُهُ فَهُوَ مَا نُقِلَ إِلَيْنَا بَيْنَ دَفَّتَيِ الْمُصْحَفِ عَلَى الْأَحْرُفِ السَّبْعَةِ الْمَشْهُورَةِ نَقْلًا مُتَوَاتِرًا. وَإِنَّمَا قَيَّدْنَاهُ بِالْمَصَاحِفِ لِأَنَّ الصَّحَابَةَ رَضِيَ اللَّهُ عَنْهُمْ بالغوا فِي الِاحْتِيَاطِ فِي نَقْلِهِ بِالْكُتُبِ. وَاشْتَرَطْنَا فِي نَقْلِهِ التَّوَاتُرَ لِأَنَّهُ الْمُفِيدُ لِلْيَقِينِ. وَلْيُعْلَمْ أَيْضًا أَنَّ مَا هُوَ خَارِجٌ عَنْهُ مِمَّا لَمْ يُنْقَلْ نَقْلَ تَوَاتُرٍ فَلَيْسَ مِنْهُ، إِذْ يَسْتَحِيلُ فِي عُرْفِ الْعَادَةِ أَنْ يُهْمَلَ بَعْضُهُ أَوْ يُنْقَلَ نَقْلَ آحَادٍ مَعَ اسْتِفَاضَتِهِ فِي الْجَمَاعَةِ الَّتِي لَا يَصِحُّ عَلَيْهَا الْإِغْفَالُ وَالْإِهْمَالُ وَهُمُ الَّذِينَ يَقَعُ بِنَقْلِهِمُ التَّوَاتُرُ.

Its limits comprise what has been transmitted to us between the two covers of the codex in the seven well-known aḥruf (الأحرف السبعة, modes of recitation), through recurrent transmission (نقلا متواترا, tawātur), also called mass transmission. We specified the codices because the Companions—may God be pleased with them—took the utmost precaution in transmitting it in writing. We required recurrent transmission because it yields certainty. What lies outside this and has not been recurrently transmitted is not part of it. It is impossible according to ordinary experience that any portion should be neglected or transmitted only by isolated reports, despite its wide circulation within a community incapable of such neglect or omission, whose transmission establishes recurrence.

Hence, contrary to Abū Ḥanīfa, most scholars hold that additions not recurrently transmitted do not require action—for example, consecutiveness in expiation[Q1] and similar matters. These additions do not stand in the position of solitary reports (أخبار الآحاد), since a report has neither a contrary indication nor evidence that it is false. If these additions are not considered Qurʾān, they may represent a Companion's doctrine or may be a report; action may not be based on something hovering between these two possibilities.

For this reason the Qāḍī—may God have mercy upon him—declared al-Shāfiʿī—may God have mercy upon him—definitely mistaken in treating ‘In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate’[Q2] as a verse of every sūra, although it is a verse of al-Naml. Had that been so, an explicit statement of its being Qurʾān would have been transmitted to us and no disagreement would have arisen. Al-Shāfiʿī can argue that its placement at a sūra's beginning by the command of God's Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace — and its revelation at the beginning of each sūra, are contextual indicators suggesting that it belongs to the Qurʾān; if it did not, this would have been stated expressly.

The invocation of refuge, the qunūt supplication, and similar expressions whose being outside the Qurʾān was not expressly stated are not in the same position. In general, this is a question for independent judgement, which is why the Qāḍī did not pronounce unbelief on its account. Even so, it has little usefulness for deriving rulings. Al-Shāfiʿī required recitation of ‘In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate’[Q2] in prayer only because of reports transmitted to that effect.

Q1. Cf. Qurʾān, al-Māʾidah 5:89 ↗. The passage concerns a reported reading adding “consecutively”; that addition is not in the verse’s muṣḥaf text.

Q2. Qurʾān, al-Naml 27:30 ↗. This is the basmala’s occurrence in al-Naml; the discussion concerns its status at the beginnings of sūras.

H1. For the seven aḥruf, see the report of ʿUmar and Hishām in Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 4992; the term should not be silently equated with a later classification of canonical readings. The expiation example appears to refer to the reading فصيام ثلاثة أيام متتابعات, transmitted from Ibn Masʿūd and his school, and from Ubayy, in al-Ṭabarī, Jāmiʿ al-bayān, on Qurʾān 5:89. Al-Ṭabarī expressly distinguishes this addition from the text in the muṣḥafs. For revelation of the basmala marking the division between sūras, compare Sunan Abī Dāwūd 788; that report does not itself establish obligatory recitation in prayer.

As for its expressions, some are literal (حقيقة) and some figurative (مجاز). Their presence is evident, since it is in the Arabs' language and tongue. In general, I do not think any tongue or language lacks them, though languages differ in this regard. Some deny, and others allow, that its vocabulary contains anything outside Arabic; determining this contributes little to our present undertaking. In general, if Arabic contains an expression originally foreign to it, the Arabs have Arabized and altered it in a manner entitling it to count as part of their language and to be attributed to it.

وَفِي أَلْفَاظِهِ مُحْكَمٌ وَمُتَشَابِهٌ كَمَا قَالَ عَزَّ وَجَلَّ[Q1]، وَقَدِ اخْتَلَفَ النَّاسُ فِي الْمُتَشَابِهِ، وَالْأَوْلَى أَنْ يُظَنَّ أَنَّ الْأَلْفَاظَ الْمُتَشَابِهَةَ هِيَ الَّتِي يُمْكِنُ حَمْلُهَا عَلَى مَعْنًى أَكْثَرَ مِنْ وَاحِدٍ، أَوِ الَّتِي يُوهِمُ حَمْلُهَا عَلَى الظَّاهِرِ تَعَارُضًا فِيهَا، أَوِ الْأَلْفَاظَ الَّتِي لَمْ تَتَقَدَّمْ لِلْعَرَبِ مُوَاضَعَةٌ وَلَا اصْطِلَاحٌ عَلَى مَعَانِيهَا كَالْحُرُوفِ الَّتِي فِي أَوَائِلِ السُّوَرِ، أَوْ جَمِيعَ هَذِهِ.

Its expressions include determinate and ambiguous wording (محكم ومتشابه), as He—mighty and exalted—has said[Q1]. People have disagreed about the ambiguous. It is preferable to consider ambiguous expressions to be those capable of bearing more than one meaning; or those whose apparent interpretation suggests a contradiction among them; or expressions for whose meanings the Arabs had no prior convention or established usage, such as the letters at the beginnings of sūras; or all of these.

Discussion of the Second Source: The Sunna

وَقَوْلُ رَسُولِ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ حُجَّةٌ لِدَلَالَةِ الْمُعْجِزَةِ عَلَى صِدْقِهِ، وَهُوَ حُجَّةٌ بِنَفْسِهِ عَلَى مَنْ سَمِعَهُ مُشَافَهَةً. فَأَمَّا نَحْنُ فَلَمْ يَبْلُغْنَا قَوْلُهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ إِلَّا عَلَى لِسَانِ الْمُخْبِرِينَ، إِمَّا بِطَرِيقِ التَّوَاتُرِ، وَإِمَّا بِطَرِيقِ الْآحَادِ. وَلِذَلِكَ يَنْقَسِمُ الْقَوْلُ فِي الْأَخْبَارِ إِلَى هَذَيْنِ

The saying of God's Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace—is an authoritative proof (حجة), because the miracle indicates his truthfulness. It is a proof in itself for anyone who heard him directly. We, however, receive his sayings—God bless him and grant him peace—only through transmitters, either by recurrent transmission (التواتر) or through solitary reports (الآحاد). The discussion of reports therefore divides into these two sections. Common to both is an explanation of the ranks of the expressions used by the Companions—may God be pleased with them—in transmitting reports from him—God bless him and grant him peace. These ranks are as follows:

الْقِسْمَيْنِ، وَيَعُمُّهُمَا بَيَانُ مَرَاتِبِ أَلْفَاظِ الصَّحَابَةِ رَضِيَ اللَّهُ عَنْهُمْ فِي نَقْلِ الْأَخْبَارِ عَنْهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ، وَهِيَ مَرَاتِبُ:

G-B2-0141 · grammar. «القصر بالنفي والاستثناء — «عليه وسلم إلا على لسان المخبرين، إما بطريق». [Exclusivity through negation followed by an exception; not merely two independent clauses.]

R 67 · BA 86 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 66 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 168

The first is for the Companion to say, ‘I heard God's Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace,’ ‘He related to me,’ ‘He informed me,’ or ‘He spoke to me directly.’ This admits no alternative possibility.

فَأَوَّلُهَا أَنْ يَقُولَ الصَّحَابِيُّ سَمِعْتُ رَسُولَ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ، أَوْ حَدَّثَنِي، أَوْ أَخْبَرَنِي أَوْ شَافَهَنِي، فَهَذَا لَا يَتَطَرَّقُ إِلَيْهِ احْتِمَالٌ.

The second rank is to say, ‘God's Messenger said such-and-such,’ or ‘He related such-and-such.’ When this comes from a Companion, its apparent meaning is direct transmission, but it is not explicit, unambiguous wording (نصا صريحا), since the Companion may have been told it on the authority of God's Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace. Most nevertheless regard acting on such a report as permissible because of the contextual indicators supporting it, especially when it comes from someone whose companionship with him was extensive.

الْمَرْتَبَةُ الثَّانِيَةُ: أَنْ يَقُولَ: قَالَ رَسُولُ اللَّهِ كَذَا أَوْ حَدَّثَ بِكَذَا. فَهَذَا ظَاهِرُهُ النَّقْلُ، إِذَا صَدَرَ عَنِ الصَّحَابِيِّ وَلَيْسَ نَصًّا صَرِيحًا، إِذْ مُمْكِنٌ أَنْ يَكُونَ حُدِّثَ بِهِ عَنْ رَسُولِ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ. لَكِنْ رَأَى أَكْثَرُهُمُ الْعَمَلَ بِمِثْلِ هَذَا جَائِزًا لِلْقَرَائِنِ الدَّالَّةِ عَلَى ذَلِكَ، لَاسِيَّمَا إِذَا صَدَرَ ذَلِكَ عَنْ مَنْ كَثُرَتْ صُحْبَتُهُ.

The third rank is for the Companion to say, ‘God's Messenger commanded such-and-such,’ ‘prohibited such-and-such,’ ‘prescribed such-and-such,’ or ‘made such-and-such obligatory.’ Two possibilities arise: one concerns whether he heard it, as with the expression ‘he said’ [the printed cross-reference is defective]; the second concerns his understanding the address as command or obligation, since the imperative form is disputed. Hence Dāwūd and those Ẓāhirīs who followed him held that the Companion's statement is no authoritative proof unless he transmits the actual words of the Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace.

It has been argued against them that this is an inquiry into understanding expressions. Disagreement about them arises among us because we are neither masters of eloquent Arabic nor authorities for Arabic speech. But since the Companion is an Arab, how could he be suspected of error concerning the imperative form, الْمَرْتَبَةُ الثَّالِثَةُ: أَنْ يَقُولَ الصَّحَابِيُّ أَمَرَ رَسُولُ اللَّهِ بِكَذَا، وَنَهَى عَنْ كَذَا، أَوْ فَرَضَ كَذَا، وَأَوْجَبَ كَذَا. فَهَذَا يَتَطَرَّقُ إِلَيْهِ احْتِمَالَانِ: أَحَدُهُمَا فِي سَمَاعِهِ كَمَا فِي قَوْلِهِ تَعَالَى، وَالثَّانِي فِي فَهْمِهِ عَنِ الْخِطَابِ الْأَمْرَ أَوِ الْوُجُوبَ، إِذْ صِيغَةُ الْأَمْرِ مُخْتَلَفٌ فِيهَا. وَلِذَلِكَ رَأَى دَاوُودُ وَمَنْ تَبِعَهُ مِنْ أَهْلِ الظَّاهِرِ أَلَّا حُجَّةَ فِي قَوْلِهِ مَا لَمْ يَنْقُلْ لَفْظَهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ.

We consider that establishing correct expressions in a language for someone who is not a native speaker occurs in one of two ways: by induction from its speakers' discourse, or by transmission from them where the usage is widespread among them. Accordingly, one person's statement cannot serve as authoritative evidence until it becomes widely circulated. Whether recurrent transmission is required in transmitting a language, or solitary reports suffice, is disputed. It seems that solitary transmission suffices for much of it; otherwise there would be no way to ascertain most verbal significations if recurrent transmission were required for each expression.

وأنا أرى أَنَّ تَصْحِيحَ الْأَلْفَاظِ فِي لِسَانٍ مَا عِنْدَ مَنْ لَمْ يَكُنْ مِنْ أَهْلِ ذَلِكَ اللِّسَانِ إِنَّمَا يَحْصُلُ بِأَحَدِ أَمْرَيْنِ: إِمَّا بِاسْتِقْرَاءِ كَلَامِهِمْ، أَوِ النَّقْلِ عَنْهُمْ إِذَا اسْتَفَاضَ ذَلِكَ فِيهِمْ. وَعَلَى هَذَا لَا يَصِحُّ الِاحْتِجَاجُ بِقَوْلِ الْوَاحِدِ حَتَّى يَسْتَفِيضَ قَوْلُهُ. وَأَمَّا هَلْ يُشْتَرَطُ فِي نَقْلِ اللُّغَةِ التَّوَاتُرُ أَوْ تَكْفِي فِيهِ الْآحَادُ؟ فَذَلِكَ مُخْتَلَفٌ فِيهِ. وَيُشْبِهُ أَنْ يَكْفِيَ فِي كَثِيرٍ مِنْهَا نَقْلُ الْآحَادِ، وَإِلَّا لَمْ يَكُنْ سَبِيلٌ إِلَى الْوُقُوفِ عَلَى أَكْثَرِ دَلَالَاتِ الْأَلْفَاظِ لَوِ اشْتُرِطَ فِي نَقْلِ كُلِّ وَاحِدَةٍ مِنْهَا التَّوَاتُرُ.

The fourth rank is to say, ‘We were commanded to do such-and-such,’ or ‘We were prohibited from such-and-such.’ Besides the preceding possibilities, this admits another: the person issuing the command may have been someone other than the Prophet—God bless him and grant him peace—among the leaders and rulers. Their expressions ‘Such-and-such belongs to the Sunna’ and ‘The Sunna proceeds in such-and-such a way’ have the same import.

الْمَرْتَبَةُ الرَّابِعَةُ: أَنْ يَقُولَ أُمِرْنَا بِكَذَا أَوْ نُهِينَا عَنْ كَذَا. فَهَذَا يَتَطَرَّقُ إِلَيْهِ، مَعَ مَا سَبَقَ مِنَ الِاحْتِمَالَاتِ، احْتِمَالٌ آخَرُ وَهُوَ أَنَّ الْأَمْرَ بِذَلِكَ عَسَاهُ أَنْ يَكُونَ غَيْرَ النَّبِيِّ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ مِنَ الْأَئِمَّةِ وَالْأُمَرَاءِ، وَفِي مَعْنَى هَذَا قَوْلُهُمْ: مِنَ السُّنَّةِ كَذَا، وَالسُّنَّةُ جَارِيَةٌ بِكَذَا.

The fifth rank is for a Companion to say, ‘They used to do such-and-such,’ relating the practice to the time of God's Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace. This too admits the possibility that the practice reached the notice of God's Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace—and he approved it, which is the more apparent possibility; it also admits the possibility that it did not reach him.

الْمَرْتَبَةُ الْخَامِسَةُ: أَنْ يَقُولَ الصَّحَابِيُّ كَانُوا يَفْعَلُونَ كَذَا، فَأَضَافَ الْفِعْلَ إِلَى عَهْدِ رَسُولِ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ. فَهَذَا أَيْضًا يَحْتَمِلُ أَنْ يَكُونَ بَلَغَ ذَلِكَ رَسُولَ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ

عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ، وَهُوَ الْأَظْهَرُ، فَأَقَرَّهُ. وَيَحْتَمِلُ أَنْ يَكُونَ لَمْ يَبْلُغْهُ.

R 73 · BA 92 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 67 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 172

From this it has become clear what constitutes reporting from God's Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace—and what does not.

فَقَدْ ظَهَرَ مِنْ هَذَا مَا هُوَ إِخْبَارٌ عَنْ رَسُولِ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ، وَمَا لَيْسَ بِإِخْبَارٍ.

It remains now to explain how reports reach us: either through recurrent transmission or through solitary transmission. Let us discuss both and the rank of the assent (التصديق) arising from each, beginning with recurrent transmission. We say:

وَالْآنَ فَقَدْ بَقِيَ تَبْيِينُ طرق انْتِهَاءِ الْأَخْبَارِ إِلَيْنَا، وَذَلِكَ إِمَّا أَنْ يَكُونَ نَقْلَ تَوَاتُرٍ أَوْ آحَادٍ. وَلْنَقُلْ فِيهِمَا وَفِي مَرْتَبَةِ التَّصْدِيقِ الْحَاصِلِ عَنْهُمَا، وَلْنَبْدَأْ مِنْ ذَلِكَ بِالتَّوَاتُرِ، فَنَقُولُ:

Recurrent transmission (التواتر) is a widely circulated report from which certainty arises about certain matters and under certain conditions, without our knowing whence, how, or when it arose. We said ‘about certain matters’ because it does not arise concerning intelligibles that are not by nature perceptible, or things whose analogues are perceptible but which cannot exist—such as a goat-stag and other things having no existence outside the soul. Nor does it arise concerning something possibly existent that is to be perceived in the future.

Rather, it yields certainty only about what has determinate existence now, or had determinate existence in the past, among things we have not yet ourselves perceived. Recurrent transmission has no use concerning what we have perceived or can apprehend through a certain syllogism (قياس يقيني), such as the world's coming into being and other matters. For if what is recurrently reported accords with what we perceived or established syllogistically, it is superfluous for us; if the contrary is recurrently reported, no assent arises in us from it.

Our phrase ‘under certain conditions’ guards against cases where reports are recurrent but certainty does not arise. On recognising this, some sought to require a number of transmitters from which certainty follows essentially and primarily, so that the number itself causes certainty and necessitates it as causes necessitate their effects. When they could not ascertain such a number, they defined it as that from which certainty arises, supposing that it has a determinate existence in itself even though it remains unknown to us.

وَالْمُشَاهَدَةُ بِخِلَافِ ذَلِكَ، فَإِنَّهُ يَظْهَرُ أَنَّ الْعَدَدَ الَّذِي يَحْصُلُ عَنْهُ الْيَقِينُ يَزِيدُ وَيَنْقُصُ فِي نَازِلَةٍ نَازِلَةٍ، وَلَوْ كَانَ هَهُنَا عَدَدٌ مَا بِالطَّبْعِ يَحْصُلُ عَنْهُ الْيَقِينُ بِالذَّاتِ وَأَوَّلًا لَكُنَّا سَنُحِسُّهُ وَنَقِفُ عَلَيْهِ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَإِنَّ كَثْرَةَ الْمُخْبِرِينَ أَحَدُ الْقَرَائِنِ الَّتِي تُفِيدُ التَّصْدِيقَ، وَلِذَلِكَ يَلْزَمُ أَنْ يَزِيدَ وَيَنْقُصَ بِحَسَبِ مَا تَنْضَافُ إِلَيْهِ مِنَ الْقَرَائِنِ الْأُخَرِ.

Observation shows otherwise. The number from which certainty arises evidently increases and decreases from one case to another. If there were some number that by nature produced certainty essentially and primarily, we would perceive and identify it. In general, a multiplicity of informants is one of the contextual indicators (القرائن) producing assent. The number must therefore increase or decrease according to the other contextual indicators joined to it.

If this is so, we cannot say that assent to this conclusion is produced, in the primary sense, by premises; rather, it comes about in the manner in which the first intelligibles are said to arise from sense perception. Anyone who supposes that recurrent transmission is like experiential premises—whose universality becomes certain through deliberately perceiving their particulars—is definitely mistaken. Rather, the assent arising from recurrent transmission is an act of the soul, and its relation to the soul resembles that of ⟨the first intelligibles to sense perception⟩.

وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ [فَلَمْ يَقَعْ خِلَافٌ فِي التَّوَاتُرِ يُوقِعُ الْيَقِينَ إِلَّا مِمَّنْ لَا يُؤْبَهُ بِهِ، وَهُمُ السُّفَسْطَائِيُّونَ. وَجَاحِدُ ذَلِكَ يَحْتَاجُ إِلَى عُقُوبَةٍ، لِأَنَّهُ كَاذِبٌ بِلِسَانِهِ عَلَى مَا فِي نَفْسِهِ. وَإِنَّمَا الْخِلَافُ فِي جِهَةِ وُقُوعِ الْيَقِينِ عَنْهُ، فَقَوْمٌ رَأَوْهُ بِالذَّاتِ، وَقَوْمٌ رَأَوْهُ بِالْعَرَضِ، وَقَوْمٌ رَأَوْهُ مُكْتَسَبًا] مِثْلَ مَا رَآهُ أَبُو حَامِدٍ هَهُنَا وَمَنْ نَحَا نَحْوَهُ مِنْ أَنَّ الْيَقِينَ بِهِ إِنَّمَا يَحْصُلُ بَعْدَ مُقَدِّمَتَيْنِ: إِحْدَاهُمَا أَنَّ هَؤُلَاءِ مَعَ اخْتِلَافِ أَحْوَالِهِمْ لَا يَجْمَعُهُمْ عَلَى

In general, [no one has disputed that recurrent transmission produces certainty except those who deserve no consideration, namely the sophists. Someone who denies it needs punishment, since his tongue lies about what is in his soul. The disagreement concerns only how certainty arises from it: some hold that it arises essentially (بالذات), some incidentally (بالعرض), and some through acquisition.] Such is the view held here by Abū Ḥāmid and those following him: certainty arises only after two premises. The first is that, despite their differing circumstances, nothing unites these informants in falsehood; the second, that they have agreed in reporting this event.

Abū Ḥāmid nevertheless concedes that these two premises were never actually formed in the mind, and that a person did not need to summon them when assent arose through recurrent transmission.

الْكَذِبِ جَامِعٌ. والثانية أَنَّهُمْ قَدِ اتَّفَقُوا عَلَى الْإِخْبَارِ عَنْ هَذِهِ الْوَاقِعَةِ.

His French pp.175–176 confirms the contrast between syllogistic premises and formation of first intelligibles. The older 1994 witness prints a gap and must not be represented as already containing these words.

N030 · textual. The crucial comparison is NO longer "premises OR first intelligibles". Bou Akl reads it as: not produced by premises in a primary way, BUT as first intelligibles arise through sense. His introduction pp.31–38 interprets this as genuine knowledge through recurrent testimony with a causally accidental route; not as illusory certainty.

BA15-R02 · textual. Tawātur and assent. Two restored sequences distinguish an implicit logical deduction from the non-voluntary formation of first intelligibles. BA15-I03 · interpretive. Tawātur and reality. Bou Akl 2015 intro pp.10–40 rejects a reading, associated with Maroun Aouad, under which the epistemic effect of tawātur is illusory. The production of certainty may be accidental in causal mode yet real in its result. Transmission establishes that a report was uttered; prophetic miracle grounds the message's religious authority, a logically different question.

If this is posited—and it is undoubtedly what is observed in recurrent transmission—it is evident that these two premises play no useful part in producing certainty. What does not actually exist in the soul cannot cause what is potential in it to exist by bringing it into actuality. If the major premise in the first figure were not actually present in the soul, it would not cause the conclusion to arise from it, although that conclusion was potentially contained within it.

What benefit, then, is there in requiring something that exists in this manner to produce assent? Hence we stipulated in the definition of recurrent transmission that we do not know how or whence it arose. In general, reports and testimonies generally yield only probable judgement (ظنا), varying with the contextual indicators until, in some cases, certainty arises. People therefore differ about the ranks of assent produced by reports according to their accompaniments. For example, some place a single person's report before a group at the level of recurrent transmission if the group refrains from contradicting him, its numbers ordinarily preclude collusion in sanctioning falsehood, and they have apprehended the reported matter through sense perception.

فَأَيُّ فَائِدَةٍ لِاشْتِرَاطِ مَا وُجُودُهُ مِثْلُ هَذَا الْوُجُودِ فِي إِيقَاعِ التَّصْدِيقِ. وَلِهَذَا اشْتَرَطْنَا فِي حَدِّ التَّوَاتُرِ مِنْ غَيْرِ أَنْ نَدْرِيَ كَيْفَ حَصَلَ وَلَا مِنْ أَيْنَ حَصَلَ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَالْأَخْبَارُ وَالشَّهَادَاتُ عَلَى الْأَكْثَرِ لَا تُفِيدُ إِلَّا ظَنًّا، وَذَلِكَ يَتَفَاوَتُ بِحَسَبِ تَفَاوُتِ الْقَرَائِنِ، حَتَّى يَحْصُلَ فِي بَعْضِهَا الْيَقِينُ. وَلِذَلِكَ اخْتَلَفَ النَّاسُ فِي مَرَاتِبِ التَّصْدِيقَاتِ الْوَاقِعَةِ عَنِ الْأَخْبَارِ بِحَسَبِ مَا يَقْتَرِنُ بِهَا، كَمَنْ يَجْعَلُ خَبَرَ الْوَاحِدِ بَيْنَ يَدَيِ الْجَمَاعَةِ، إِذَا أَمْسَكُوا عَنْ تَكْذِيبِهِ مَعَ أَنَّهُمْ عَدَدٌ يَمْتَنِعُ فِي عُرْفِ الْعَادَةِ تَوَاطُؤُهُمْ عَلَى تَسْوِيغِ الْكَذِبِ، يَتَنَزَّلُ مَنْزِلَةَ التَّوَاتُرِ إِذَا كَانَ مَا أَخْبَرَ عَنْهُ مُدْرَكًا لَهُمْ بِالْحِسِّ.

There are also contextual indicators that weaken the probable judgement arising from reports until, in some cases, their falsehood becomes almost certain. An example is someone reporting that the city's king was killed in the marketplace, after which the people of the market pass by without speaking of it. Of this kind is Abū Ḥanīfa's rejection—may God have mercy upon him—of solitary reports concerning rulings of widespread practical concern: he considers that matters of such concern ought to be widely transmitted. Likewise, Mālik rejected many reports when practice did not accompany them.

As for a solitary report (خبر الآحاد), according to its definition in this craft, it is what has not reached the point of yielding certainty … [the construction is defective] … in some case through a single person's report, according to the contextual indicators accompanying it. We answer: although this is not impossible, it occurs rarely, perhaps for a particular person in a particular case. Because the probable judgement arising in the soul varies when contextual indicators accompany solitary reports, some held that a single person's report may yield certainty.

First Chapter: The Legal Admissibility of Acting on a Solitary Report

الْفَصْلُ الْأَوَّلُ: فِي جَوَازِ الْعَمَلِ بِخَبَرِ الْوَاحِدِ شَرْعًا

R 81 · BA 102–104 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 71 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 178

Acting upon solitary reports is rationally possible and actually occurs in the Law. As for its admissibility in the Law, it is not impossible for God Most High to appoint predominant probability (غلبة الظن) as a sign of a ruling, just as He appoints other things as signs. On this basis one can conceive adjudication through witnesses, judgement by legal opinion, and facing the Kaʿba when it is not visible. Some held that appointing predominant probability as a sign of a legal ruling is rationally necessary; otherwise most rulings would lapse for anyone who had not heard God's Messenger —God bless him and grant him peace—directly.

Abū Ḥāmid says this argument is not strong, since one could say that rulings lapse for those whom recurrent transmission has not reached, just as they lapse for those who have neither heard of the Law nor received it by recurrent transmission. I do not find this satisfactory. The Law's remaining hidden is exceedingly rare, scarcely occurring over a long period; its recurrent transmission to the entire inhabited world has necessarily taken place. Such concealment might plausibly have occurred at the beginning of Islam. Acting on solitary reports is different: not every report must necessarily be recurrently transmitted, and requiring recurrence before acting would suspend most rulings for most legally responsible persons.

وَقَوْلُ أَبِي حَامِدٍ إِنَّ هَذَا لَيْسَ بِقَوِيٍّ لِأَنَّ لِقَائِلٍ أَنْ يَقُولَ تَسْقُطُ الْأَحْكَامُ فِي حَقِّ مَنْ لَمْ يَبْلُغْهُ تَوَاتُرُهَا كَمَا تَسْقُطُ فِي حَقِّ مَنْ لَمْ يَسْمَعْ بِالشَّرْعِ وَلَا تَوَاتَرَ عِنْدَهُ، فَلَيْسَ عِنْدِي بِمَرْضِيٍّ. لِأَنَّ انْطِوَاءَ الشَّرْعِ نَادِرٌ وَقَلِيلٌ جِدًّا حَتَّى لَا يَكَادُ يَقَعُ هَذَا مَعَ تَطَاوُلِ الزَّمَانِ، بَلْ بِاضْطِرَارٍ وَقَعَ نَقْلُهُ إِلَى جَمِيعِ الْمَعْمُورَةِ تَوَاتُرًا. وَإِنَّمَا يُشْبِهُ أَنْ يَقَعَ مِثْلُ هَذَا فِي أَوَّلِ الْإِسْلَامِ، وَلَيْسَ كَذَلِكَ الْعَمَلُ بِأَخْبَارِ الْآحَادِ، لِأَنَّهُ لَيْسَ مِنْ ضَرُورَةِ كُلِّ خَبَرٍ أَنْ يُنْقَلَ تَوَاتُرًا، فَلَوِ اشْتُرِطَ فِي الْعَمَلِ بِهِ التَّوَاتُرُ لَأَدَّى ذَلِكَ إِلَى تَعْطِيلِ أَكْثَرِ الْأَحْكَامِ عَنْ أَكْثَرِ الْمُكَلَّفِينَ.

In general, if adjudicating through witnesses and oaths, and judging by independent judgement, were not obligatory, there would be no way to redress wrongs and secure rights. Its occurrence in the Law can also be inferred from the Companions' consensus on acting upon such reports. Their hesitation concerning some reports was merely their independent assessment of the routes of transmission. The fact that God's Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace—sent governors to the provinces and charged people to accept their reports establishes its occurrence in the Law with certainty.

فَأَمَّا قَوْلُ اللَّهِ عَزَّ وَجَلَّ: {فَلَوْلَا نَفَرَ مِنْ كُلِّ فِرْقَةٍ مِنْهُمْ طَائِفَةٌ لِيَتَفَقَّهُوا فِي الدِّينِ وَلِيُنْذِرُوا قَوْمَهُمْ إِذَا رَجَعُوا إِلَيْهِمْ}[Q1] فَرَأَى بَعْضُهُمْ أَنَّهَا قَاطِعَةٌ فِي الْعَمَلِ بِأَخْبَارِ الْآحَادِ، إِذِ الطَّائِفَةُ تَقَعُ عَلَى النَّفَرِ الْيَسِيرِ الَّذِينَ لَا يَحْصُلُ الْيَقِينُ بِقَوْلِهِمْ. وَأَبُو حَامِدٍ يَرَى أَنَّهَا لَيْسَتْ بِقَاطِعَةٍ إِلَّا فِي وُجُوبِ الْإِنْذَارِ. قَالَ: وَلَيْسَ يَلْزَمُ مِنْ وُجُوبِهِ عَلَيْهِمْ وُجُوبُ الْعَمَلِ بِهِ، كَمَا يَجِبُ عَلَى الشَّاهِدِ الْوَاحِدِ، إِذِ الشَّهَادَةُ لَا يُعْمَلُ بِهَا.

Some regard His words—mighty and exalted—‘Why should not a group from every division of them go forth, to gain understanding in religion and warn their people when they return to them?’[Q1] as decisive concerning acting upon solitary reports. A ‘group’ can mean a few people whose statements do not yield certainty. Abū Ḥāmid considers the verse decisive only concerning the obligation to warn. He says that their obligation to warn does not entail an obligation to act upon it, just as a single witness must testify although his testimony is not acted upon.

قَالَ: وَبِمِثْلِ هَذَا الِاعْتِرَاضِ يَضْعُفُ التَّمَسُّكُ بِقَوْلِهِ عَزَّ وَجَلَّ: {إِنَّ الَّذِينَ يَكْتُمُونَ مَا أَنْزَلْنَا مِنَ الْبَيِّنَاتِ وَالْهُدَى}[Q2]، وَبِقَوْلِهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ: «نَضَّرَ اللَّهُ امْرَأً سَمِعَ مَقَالَتِي فَوَعَاهَا وَأَدَّاهَا كَمَا سَمِعَهَا» الْحَدِيثَ. وَهَذَا الْقَوْلُ مِنْهُ لَا مَعْنَى لَهُ، لِأَنَّهُ مَا فَائِدَةُ وُجُوبِ الْإِنْذَارِ إِذَا لَمْ يَجِبِ الْعَمَلُ بِنَقْلِهِمْ. وَلَيْسَ يُشْبِهُ هَذَا الشَّاهِدَ فَإِنَّهُ إِنَّمَا وَجَبَ عَلَيْهِ أَدَاءُ الشَّهَادَةِ رَجَاءَ أَنْ يَأْتِيَ مَنْ عِنْدَهُ مِثْلُ شَهَادَتِهِ فَيَقَعَ الْعَمَلُ بِهَا.

He adds that the same objection weakens appeals to His words—mighty and exalted— ‘Those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance,’[Q2] and to the saying of the Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace— ‘May God make radiant one who hears my words, retains them, and conveys them as he heard them,’ and the rest of the report. This statement of his has no meaning. What is the benefit of requiring warning if acting on their transmission is not obligatory? It is not like a witness's case: he is obliged to testify in the hope that another person with matching testimony will come forward, allowing it to be acted upon.

اللَّهُمَّ إِلَّا أَنْ يَقُولَ الْقَائِلُ عَسَى إِنْ وُجِدَ الْإِنْذَارُ إِنَّمَا لَزِمَ الْآحَادَ لِيَتَكَثَّرُوا حَتَّى يَقَعَ الْعِلْمُ الضَّرُورِيُّ بِقَوْلِهِمْ، لَكِنْ هَذَا يَنْكَسِرُ مِمَّا تَقَدَّمَ مِنْ أَنَّ ذَلِكَ كَانَ يُؤَدِّي إِلَى تَعْطِيلِ أَكْثَرِ الْأَحْكَامِ. وَإِنَّمَا يُشْبِهُ أَنْ يُظَنَّ أَنَّ الْآيَةَ لَيْسَتْ بِقَاطِعَةٍ وَلَا نَصًّا فِي الْعَمَلِ بِأَخْبَارِ الْآحَادِ مِنْ جِهَةِ أَنَّ الطَّائِفَةَ اسْمٌ يَقَعُ عَلَى النَّفَرِ الْيَسِيرِ وَالْعَدَدِ الْكَثِيرِ الَّذِي يُمْكِنُ أَنْ يَقَعَ الْيَقِينُ بِقَوْلِهِمْ بِدَلِيلِ قَوْلِهِ: «لَا تَزَالُ طَائِفَةٌ مِنْ أُمَّتِي» الْحَدِيثَ. لَكِنِ الْآيَةُ أَظْهَرُ فِي أَنَّهُ لَيْسَ الْمُرَادُ بِالطَّائِفَةِ هَهُنَا مَنْ يَحْصُلُ الْعِلْمُ بِنَقْلِهِمْ.

One might reply that warning was perhaps required of individuals only so that their numbers would increase until their statements produced necessary knowledge. But this is refuted by the preceding point: it would suspend most rulings. It is more plausible to regard the verse as neither decisive nor unambiguous wording (نصا) for acting upon solitary reports because ‘group’ applies both to a few people and to a large number whose statements can yield certainty, as indicated by the saying, ‘A group of my community will continue …’ and the rest of the report. The verse's more apparent meaning, however, is that ‘group’ here does not mean people whose transmission produces knowledge.

الْفَصْلُ الثَّانِي: فِي شَرْطِ الرَّاوِي وَصِفَتِهِ

Second Chapter: The Transmitter's Condition and Character

وَإِذْ قَدْ ثَبَتَ الْعَمَلُ بِخَبَرِ الْوَاحِدِ فَلَا بُدَّ مِنْ ذِكْرِ الشُّرُوطِ الَّتِي يُقْبَلُ بِهَا وَيَجِبُ الْعَمَلُ بِهِ، إِذْ لَيْسَ كُلُّ خَبَرٍ يَجِبُ الْعَمَلُ بِهِ. فَأَوَّلُهَا أَنَّ خَبَرَ الْوَاحِدِ يُعْمَلُ بِهِ وَإِنْ لَمْ يُعْمَلْ بِشَهَادَتِهِ، لِأَنَّ اشْتِرَاطَ الْعَدَدِ إِذَا ثَبَتَ الْعَمَلُ بِهِ مِمَّا يَجِبُ عَلَى مُدَّعِي ذَلِكَ إِثْبَاتُهُ شَرْعًا، وَلَا يَصِحُّ فِي مِثْلِ هَذَا حَمْلُهُ عَلَى الشَّهَادَةِ قِيَاسًا. وَاسْتِظْهَارُ الصَّحَابَةِ رَضِيَ اللَّهُ عَنْهُمْ بِالْعَدَدِ فِي وَاقِعَتَيْنِ أَوْ ثَلَاثٍ فَذَلِكَ اجْتِهَادٌ مِنْهُمْ لِأَحْوَالٍ خَاصَّةٍ بِتِلْكَ النَّوَازِلِ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَاشْتِرَاطُ الْعَدَدِ لَيْسَ بِشَرْطٍ عِنْدَنَا.

Since acting on a solitary report has been established, the conditions under which it is accepted and must be acted upon must be stated, for not every report requires action. First, a single person's report is acted upon even where his testimony is not. Once acting on such a report is established, whoever requires a plurality must prove that requirement from the Law; it cannot properly be assimilated to testimony by analogy (قياسا). The Companions—may God be pleased with them—sought corroboration through numbers on two or three occasions as their independent judgement in circumstances particular to those cases. In general, we do not require a plurality as a condition.

BA15-I04 · interpretive. The practical need for probability. Bou Akl 2015 intro pp.77–87 distinguishes possible uncertainty about the reliability of transmission and uncertainty about intended verbal meaning. Acting on strongly probable evidence in law is not claiming probable information has become theoretically certain.

وَأَوَّلُ الشُّرُوطِ أَنَّا لَا نَقْبَلُ خَبَرَ الصَّبِيِّ، لِأَنَّهُ لَا يَخَافُ اللَّهَ، فَلَا نَأْمَنُ عَلَيْهِ الْكَذِبَ. وَأَمَّا إِذَا كَانَ طِفْلًا عِنْدَ السَّمَاعِ، ثُمَّ نَقَلَ الْحَدِيثَ بَعْدَ بُلُوغِهِ، فَهُوَ مَقْبُولٌ بِدَلِيلِ إِجْمَاعِ الصَّحَابَةِ عَلَى الْعَمَلِ بِالْأَحَادِيثِ مِنْ غَيْرِ فَرْقٍ بَيْنَ مَنْ سَمِعَ فِي الصِّغَرِ أَوْ بَعْدَ الْبُلُوغِ. وَقَوْلُ مَنْ قَالَ تُقْبَلُ شَهَادَةُ الصِّبْيَانِ فِي الْجِنَايَاتِ الَّتِي تَقَعُ بَيْنَهُمْ، فَإِنَّمَا حَمَلَهُ عَلَى ذَلِكَ الِاسْتِدْلَالُ بِالْقَرَائِنِ لِكَثْرَتِهِمْ، وَلِذَلِكَ اشْتَرَطَ فِي شَهَادَتِهِمْ قَبْلَ أَنْ يَتَفَرَّقُوا.

The first condition is that we do not accept a child's report, because he does not fear God and we cannot be assured against his lying. If, however, he was a child when he heard the report and transmits it after puberty, it is accepted. The proof is the Companions' consensus on acting upon reports without distinguishing whether they were heard in childhood or after puberty. Those who accept children's testimony concerning injuries occurring among them are led to do so by inference from contextual indicators arising from their numbers; hence they require their testimony to be given before they disperse.

وَمِنَ الشُّرُوطِ أَنْ يَكُونَ ضَابِطًا، فَإِنَّ مَنْ كَانَ مُغَفَّلًا يَقَعُ مِنْهُ فِي الْأَكْثَرِ الْغَلَطُ. وَأَمَّا كَوْنُهُ مُسْلِمًا فَلَا خِلَافَ فِي اشْتِرَاطِ ذَلِكَ، لِأَنَّ الْكَافِرَ لَا تُقْبَلُ رِوَايَتُهُ لِأَنَّهُ مُتَّهَمٌ فِي الدِّينِ. وَإِنْ كَانَتْ تُقْبَلُ شَهَادَةُ بَعْضِهِمْ عَلَى بَعْضٍ عِنْدَ أَبِي حَنِيفَةَ، فَلَا مُخَالِفَ فِي رَدِّ رِوَايَتِهِ، وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَالِاعْتِمَادُ فِي رَدِّهَا عَلَى الْإِجْمَاعِ.

Another condition is accurate retention (ضابطا), since someone inattentive will usually fall into error. There is no disagreement about requiring the transmitter to be Muslim: an unbeliever's transmission is not accepted because he is suspect concerning religion. Although Abū Ḥanīfa accepts unbelievers' testimony concerning one another, there is no dissent from rejecting their transmission. In general, the basis for rejecting it is consensus.

The requirement of probity (العدالة) is undisputed, but what its name signifies is disputed. Some, who are the majority, hold that probity is a state of the soul (حالة في النفس) from which follows avoidance of what the Law prohibits, whether by forbiddance or disapproval, and performance of what the Law commands, whether by obligation or recommendation, without falling short in this.

In general, he must avoid everything that impugns his religion and whose commission leaves lying open to him. This varies according to the assessments of those exercising independent judgement. There is, however, no disagreement that sinlessness is not required, just as avoiding grave sins is not sufficient. Some hold that probity consists in manifesting Islam while not being known as morally transgressive, without investigation into one's conduct or inward condition.

أَمَّا أَصْحَابُ الْمَذْهَبِ الْأَوَّلِ فَاحْتَجُّوا بِأَنْ قَالُوا: كَمَا أَنَّ الْمَجْهُولَ الْكُفْرِ لَا يَجُوزُ نَقْلُهُ، كَذَلِكَ الْمَجْهُولُ الْفِسْقِ. وَلِأُولَئِكَ أَنْ يَقُولُوا إِنَّ الْمَجْهُولَ الْكُفْرِ لَيْسَ تُعْرَفُ مِنْهُ حَالَةٌ يَغْلِبُ بِهَا عَلَى الظَّنِّ حُسْنُ الثِّقَةِ بِهِ، وَلَيْسَ كَذَلِكَ الْمَعْرُوفُ مِنْهُ إِظْهَارُ الْإِسْلَامِ. وَقَدِ احْتَجُّوا أَيْضًا لِذَلِكَ بِرَدِّ الصَّحَابَةِ أَخْبَارَ الْمَجَاهِيلِ كَرَدِّ عُمَرَ رَضِيَ اللَّهُ عَنْهُ خَبَرَ فَاطِمَةَ بِنْتِ قَيْسٍ، وَرَدِّ عَلِيٍّ قَوْلَ الْأَشْجَعِيِّ، وَمَا ظَهَرَ مِنْ طَلَبِ رَسُولِ

The proponents of the first doctrine argued: just as transmission is inadmissible from someone whose status concerning unbelief is unknown, so it is from someone whose status concerning moral transgression is unknown. Their opponents may reply that, in the former case, no state is known that produces predominant confidence in his trustworthiness, whereas a person known to manifest Islam is different. The first group also appealed to the Companions' rejection of reports from unknown persons—ʿUmar's rejection—may God be pleased with him—of Fāṭima bt.

Qays's report and ʿAlī's rejection of al-Ashjaʿī's statement—and to the evident demand of God's Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace—for probity and trustworthiness in those he sent to the provinces.

H1. For Fāṭima bt. Qays's report and ʿUmar's response, see Jāmiʿ al-Tirmidhī 1180. The classification of that response as rejection of an unknown transmitter belongs to the argument summarized by Ibn Rushd. The precise source of the separate rejection attributed here to ʿAlī remains unidentified.

اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ الْعَدَالَةَ وَالثِّقَةَ فِيمَنْ كَانَ يُنْفِذُهُ إِلَى الْبِلَادِ.

The second group appealed to the fact that the Messenger—God bless him and grant him peace—accepted a Bedouin's testimony that he had seen the crescent, although nothing was known of him except his Islam. Their opponents need not concede that he was unknown to the Prophet himself. They also argued that the Companions accepted the statements of people whom they knew as Muslims and did not know to be morally transgressive.

H1. Sunan Abī Dāwūd 2340; Jāmiʿ al-Tirmidhī 691. Al-Tirmidhī records disagreement over the transmission and states that most transmitters from Simāk narrate it in mursal form, omitting the Companion between ʿIkrima and the Prophet. This qualification concerns the transmission of the report used in the argument.

وَأَمَّا مَا احْتَجَّ بِهِ أَهْلُ الْفِرْقَةِ الثَّانِيَةِ فَقَبُولُهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ شَهَادَةَ الْأَعْرَابِيِّ فِي رُؤْيَةِ الْهِلَالِ، مَعَ أَنَّهُ لَمْ يُعْرَفْ مِنْهُ إِلَّا الْإِسْلَامُ، وَلِأُولَئِكَ أَلَّا يُسَلِّمُوا أَنَّهُ كَانَ مَجْهُولًا عِنْدَهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ، وَاحْتَجُّوا أَيْضًا بِأَنَّ الصَّحَابَةَ قَبِلُوا قَوْلَ مَنْ لَمْ يَعْرِفُوهُمْ بِالْفِسْقِ وَعَرَفُوهُمْ بِالْإِسْلَامِ.

In general, each group has advanced arguments that, although apparently supporting its claim, still admit interpretation. The question concerns independent judgement, not certainty. What is intended by probity, it appears, is simply a predominant probability of truthfulness; this varies with the contextual indicators supplied by the circumstances.

Where the Law has not established with certainty a determinate sign of predominant probability concerning truthfulness, we should therefore impose no fixed limit. The matter should be entrusted to the inquiry of those exercising independent judgement. Contextual indicators may come together for one such jurist that make a person's truthfulness predominantly probable to him, while they do not come together for another.

They have disagreed about a morally transgressive person who acts on an interpretation (الفاسق المتأول), meaning someone who does not recognise his own transgression. Whoever holds that transgression prevents acceptance only because it arouses suspicion cannot conceive rejecting him unless his transgression consists in permitting lying. Whoever holds that transgression in itself defeats acceptance, ⟨not⟩ because it arouses suspicion, permits their testimony concerning one another. The first is al-Shāfiʿī's doctrine; the second, the Qāḍī's. Al-Shāfiʿī's doctrine seems more consistent with the reasoning, and is supported by the Companions' acceptance—may God be pleased with them—of reports from the Khārijites.

وَالْفَاسِقُ الْمُتَأَوِّلُ رُبَّمَا عُلِمَ فِسْقُهُ بِدَلِيلٍ قَطْعِيٍّ وَرُبَّمَا عُلِمَ فِسْقُهُ بِدَلِيلٍ ظَنِّيٍّ. وَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ يَكُونَ قَبُولُ رِوَايَةِ مَنْ عُلِمَ فِسْقُهُ بِدَلِيلٍ ظَنِّيٍّ أَوْلَى، وَلِذَلِكَ يَقُولُ الشَّافِعِيُّ أُفَسِّقُ الْحَنَفِيَّ الشَّارِبَ لِلنَّبِيذِ وَلَا أَرُدُّ شَهَادَتَهُ.

The transgression of someone acting on an interpretation may be known through a certain proof or through a probable proof. Acceptance of the transmission of someone whose transgression is established by a probable proof should be more appropriate. Hence al-Shāfiʿī says: 'I judge the Ḥanafī who drinks nabīdh morally transgressive, but I do not reject his testimony.'

فَهَذِهِ هِيَ الْأَشْيَاءُ الَّتِي تُشْتَرَطُ فِي الرَّاوِي وَأَمَّا الْأَشْيَاءُ الَّتِي يَقَعُ بِهَا التَّرْجِيحُ فَتَكَادُ لَا تَتَنَاهَى.

These are the conditions required in a transmitter. As for the considerations through which preference (الترجيح) is established, they are almost without limit.

Third Chapter: Criticism of Transmitters and Attestation of Their Probity

الْفَصْلُ الثَّالِثُ: فِي الْجَرْحِ وَالتَّعْدِيلِ

This comprises four sections.

فِيهِ أَرْبَعَةُ فُصُولٍ:

First Section

الْفَصْلُ الْأَوَّلُ

R 95 · BA 117 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 75 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 190

Some require more than one person to attest a transmitter’s probity, by analogy with testimony; others do not, by analogy with the acceptance of a report transmitted by a person of probity. The latter is the more evident view.

اشْتَرَطَ قَوْمٌ الْعَدَدَ فِي الْمُزَكِّي قِيَاسًا عَلَى الشَّهَادَةِ، وَبَعْضٌ لَمْ يَشْتَرِطْهُ قِيَاسًا عَلَى قَبُولِ رِوَايَةِ الْعَدْلِ، وَهُوَ الْأَظْهَرُ.

Second Section: Stating the Grounds for Criticism and Attestation of Probity

الْفَصْلُ الثَّانِي: فِي ذِكْرِ سَبَبِ الْجَرْحِ وَالتَّعْدِيلِ

Al-Shāfiʿī says that the grounds for criticism must be stated, whereas the grounds for attesting probity need not be: one person may regard as a fault something that another does not, while probity has only one basis. Some hold the reverse, because people are quick to praise on the strength of appearances. The Qāḍī says that the grounds need not be stated in either case, reliance being placed on the person giving the attestation. Others say that the grounds must be stated in both cases. This is, in my view, the more cautious course, since assessments of probity and the weighing of evidence are both disputed, as was explained earlier.

When criticism conflicts with an attestation of probity, criticism takes precedence, because it discloses additional information unknown to the person attesting probity—unless the latter specifically addresses the very matter asserted by the critic. In that case, criticism and attestation stand in conflict.

وَأَمَّا إِذَا تَعَارَضَ الْجَرْحُ وَالتَّعْدِيلُ فَالْجَرْحُ هُوَ الْمُقَدَّمُ لِأَنَّهُ اطِّلَاعٌ عَلَى زِيَادَةٍ لَمْ يَطَّلِعْ عَلَيْهَا الْمُعَدِّلُ، إِلَّا أَنْ يَكُونَ يَعْنِي تَشْخِيصَ مَا أَثْبَتَهُ الْجَارِحُ فَحِينَئِذٍ يَتَعَارَضُ الْجَرْحُ وَالتَّعْدِيلُ.

N038 · textual. At p. 76 the edition reads يعني تشخيص ما أثبته الجارح; the English preserves its reference to the specific allegation rather than silently emending يعني to ينفي.

BA-T065 · textual. قراءة الإسكوريال كما أثبتها بو عقل: «والترجيح»، مقابل «التجريح» في طبعة العلوي. (Escorial reading as reported by Bou Akl, 2015, Arabic p. 190; variant against al-ʿAlawī.)

G-B2-0200 · grammar. «استثناء أو استدراك بـ«إلّا أنّ» — «عليها المعدل، إلا أن يكون يعني تشخيص ما أثبته». [Except that / however; the contextual function determines which qualification is intended.]

الْفَصْلُ الثَّالِثُ: فِي نَفْسِ التَّزْكِيَةِ وَالتَّعْدِيلِ

Third Section: Attestation and Confirmation of Probity Themselves

وَذَلِكَ يُتَصَوَّرُ وُقُوعُهُ عَلَى أَرْبَعَةِ أَنْحَاءٍ: إِمَّا بالقول، أَوْ بِالرِّوَايَةِ عَنْهُ، أَوْ بِالْعَمَلِ بِخَبَرِهِ، أَوْ بِالْحُكْمِ بِشَهَادَتِهِ. وَأَعْلَاهَا صَرِيحُ الْقَوْلِ بِتَعْرِيفِ وَجْهِ عَدَالَتِهِ، وَدُونَ ذَلِكَ أَنْ يَرْوِيَ عَنْهُ خَبَرًا. وَهَذَا إِنَّمَا يَصِحُّ عَلَى رَأْيِ مَنْ يَكْفِي عِنْدَهُ فِي التَّعْدِيلِ نَفْسُ التَّزْكِيَةِ، هَذَا إِذَا فُهِمَ مِنْ حَالِهِ التَّصْرِيحُ عَنِ الثِّقَاتِ عِنْدَهُ. وَأَمَّا الْعَمَلُ بِالْخَبَرِ فَلَيْسَ بِتَعْدِيلٍ، إِذْ قَدْ يُمْكِنُ أَنْ يَعْمَلَ بِدَلِيلٍ آخَرَ، إِلَّا إِنْ عَلِمْنَا أَنَّهُ عَمِلَ بِذَلِكَ الْخَبَرِ مِنْ طَرِيقِ ذَلِكَ النَّاقِلِ. وَهَذَا أَيْضًا عَلَى رَأْيِ مَنْ لَا يَشْتَرِطُ ذِكْرَ سَبَبِ الْجَرْحِ وَالتَّعْدِيلِ.

This can take four forms: through an explicit statement, through transmitting a report from someone, through acting upon his report, or through giving judgement on his testimony. The highest is an explicit statement explaining the basis of his probity; below this is transmitting a report from him. The latter is valid only on the view that an attestation by itself suffices to establish probity, and only when the transmission is understood as an explicit declaration of the narrator's confidence in the person from whom he reports. Acting upon a report, however, does not attest the transmitter's probity, since the action may rest on another proof—unless we know that he acted on that report as received through that particular transmitter. This, too, follows the view that the grounds for criticism and attestation need not be stated.

Giving judgement on someone's testimony is stronger than merely attesting his probity. Declining to give judgement on his testimony or report is not, however, a criticism of him: one may withhold acceptance of an upright person's testimony or report for reasons other than an objection to his probity. In general, when no other reason presents itself for rejecting his testimony and transmission, the rejection is equivalent to an unspecified criticism.

N039 · textual. At §119 (Arabic p. 192; French p. 193) Bou Akl prints «التصريح عن الثقات» ("explicitly declaring someone trustworthy") instead of the transmitted «التجريح عن الثقات». Both Escorial [أ] and al-ʿAlawī [ع] have «التجريح»; Bou Akl's «التصريح» is an editorial emendation informed by the parallel in al-Ghazālī's al-Mustaṣfā, not an independently witnessed manuscript variant. In the same paragraph Bou Akl prints «شهادة العدل» ("the upright person's testimony") on the basis of the Mustaṣfā parallel, against «شهادة العبد» ("the slave's testimony") in [أ] and [ع]. The Arabic and English here adopt both emendations with their status disclosed.

BA-T064 · textual. قراءة الإسكوريال كما أثبتها بو عقل: «بالقول»، مقابل «بالقبول» في طبعة العلوي. (Escorial reading as reported by Bou Akl, 2015, Arabic p. 190; variant against al-ʿAlawī.)

G-B2-0201 · grammar. أسلوب القصر بـ«إنّما» — «خبرا. وهذا إنما يصح على رأي من يكفي». [Restriction: only / nothing but; identify what is being limited by the construction.]

G-BA-119 · grammar. المصدر «التَّصْرِيح» مع الجار والمجرور «عَنْ» — «هَذَا إِذَا فُهِمَ مِنْ حَالِهِ التَّصْرِيحُ عَنِ الثِّقَاتِ عِنْدَهُ». [The passive "if it is understood from his conduct" is followed by the nominal subject "an explicit declaration." The declaration concerns whom he regards as trustworthy; it is not "discrediting" them (التجريح).]

الْفَصْلُ الرَّابِعُ: فِي تَعْدِيلِ الصَّحَابَةِ رَضِيَ اللَّهُ عَنْهُمْ

Fourth Section: Attestation of the Companions' Probity, May God Be Pleased with Them

وَالَّذِي عَلَيْهِ جَمَاهِيرُ الْأُمَّةِ وَالْمُعْتَمَدُ عَلَيْهِمْ أَنَّ عَدَالَتَهُمْ مَقْطُوعٌ بِهَا بِتَعْدِيلِ اللَّهِ جَلَّ وَعَزَّ لَهُمْ وَتَعْدِيلِ رَسُولِهِ، فِي

The position of the great majority of the community and its acknowledged authorities is that the Companions' probity is established with certainty, through God's attestation of it—majestic and mighty is غَيْرِ مَا آيَةٍ مِنْ كِتَابِ اللَّهِ جَلَّ وَعَزَّ وَغَيْرِ مَا حَدِيثٍ عَنْهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ.

[Bou Akl 2015, facing Arabic–French edition; this is a reported manuscript reading, not an independent examination of Escorial 1235.]

وَقَدْ ذَهَبَتْ طَوَائِفُ مِنَ الْخَوَارِجِ وَالْمُعْتَزِلَةِ وَالْقَدَرِيَّةِ، وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ أَهْلِ الْبِدَعِ وَالزَّيْغِ، إِلَى رَدِّ شَهَادَتِهِمْ وَرِوَايَتِهِمْ بَعْدَ مَا شَجَرَ بَيْنَهُمُ الشَّتَاتُ وَظَهَرَتِ الْحُرُوبُ بَيْنَهُمْ وَالْخُصُومَاتُ، وَذَلِكَ عِنْدَ أَهْلِ السُّنَّةِ مَحْمُولٌ عَلَى أَنَّ كُلَّ مُجْتَهِدٍ إِمَّا غَيْرُ مَأْثُومٍ وَإِمَّا مُصِيبٌ بِحَسَبِ الرَّأْيَيْنِ. وَذَهَبَ قَوْمٌ مِنْ أَهْلِ السُّنَّةِ أَنَّ قَتَلَةَ عُثْمَانَ مُخْطِئُونَ قَطْعًا، لَكِنْ جَهِلُوا خَطَأَهُمْ، وَكَانُوا مُتَأَوِّلِينَ. وَالْفَاسِقُ الْمُتَأَوِّلُ لَا تُرَدُّ شَهَادَتُهُ عَلَى رَأْيِ الْأَكْثَرِ.

Groups among the Khārijites, Muʿtazilites, and Qadarites—in general, the people of innovation and deviation—have rejected the Companions' testimony and transmission after dissension arose among them and wars and disputes broke out. The people of the Sunna understand these events on the basis that every practitioner of independent judgement is either free of sin or correct, according to the two respective positions. Some of the people of the Sunna maintain that ʿUthmān's killers were certainly mistaken, but did not recognise their error and were acting on an interpretation. According to the majority, the testimony of a wrongdoer acting on an interpretation is not rejected.

G-B2-0206 · grammar. «على أنَّ» بين التعلّق النحوي والاستدراك — «السنة محمول على أن كل مجتهد إما غير مأثوم». [The phrase may complete a preceding verb such as "argue that", or introduce a qualification; check its governing clause rather than assuming "although".]

Our account of the solitary report still requires a discussion of the manner in which a transmitter reports from the person who is his source. This can occur at five levels.

الْمَرْتَبَةُ الْأُولَى

The First Level

R 101 · BA 123 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 77 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 194

قِرَاءَةُ الشَّيْخِ عَلَيْهِ لِيُحَدِّثَ عَنْهُ، وَبِذَلِكَ يَصِحُّ قَوْلُهُ عَلَى الْحَقِيقَةِ حَدَّثَنَا وَأَخْبَرَنَا وَسَمِعْتُهُ، وَهِيَ أَعْلَى الْمَرَاتِبِ.

The teacher reads to him so that he may transmit from the teacher. He may then truthfully say, in the literal sense, 'He related to us,' 'He informed us,' and 'I heard him.' This is the highest level.

الْمَرْتَبَةُ الثَّانِيَةُ

The Second Level

أَنْ يُقْرَأَ عَلَى الشَّيْخِ وَهُوَ سَاكِتٌ. فَهَذَا خَالَفَ فِيهِ بَعْضُ أَهْلِ الظَّاهِرِ، لَكِنْ عِنْدَ الْأَكْثَرِ سُكُوتُهُ وَإِقْرَارُهُ إِيَّاهُ يَتَنَزَّلُ مَنْزِلَةَ قَوْلِهِ. هَذَا إِن كَانَ بِحَيْثُ لَا يُخَالُ سُكُوتُهُ لِغَفْلَةٍ أَوْ

The report is read to the teacher while he remains silent. Some Literalists dispute this, but the majority consider his silence and approval equivalent to his speaking, provided there is no reason to suppose that his silence results from inattention, coercion, or the like. They disagree, however, about whether the transmitter may say without qualification, ‘He related to us,’ or ‘I heard so-and-so.’ The correct position is that he may not, since this is plainly false—unless a contextual indication (قرينة حال) or an explicit statement makes it known that he means a reading before the teacher.

إِكْرَاهٍ أَوْ مَا أَشْبَهَ ذَلِكَ. إِلَّا أَنَّهُمُ اخْتَلَفُوا هَلْ يَقُولُ حَدَّثَنَا مُطْلَقًا، أَوْ سَمِعْتُ فُلَانًا. وَالصَّحِيحُ أَنَّهُ لَا يَجُوزُ، لِأَنَّ ذَلِكَ كَذِبٌ مَحْضٌ، إِلَّا أَنْ يُعْلَمَ بِقَرِينَةِ حَالٍ مِنْهُ أَوْ تَصْرِيحٍ أَنَّهُ يُرِيدُ بِذَلِكَ الْقِرَاءَةَ عَلَى الشَّيْخِ.

G-B2-0209 · grammar. «استثناء أو استدراك بـ«إلّا أنّ» — «أشبه ذلك. إلا أنهم اختلفوا هل يقول حدثنا مطلقا». [Except that / however; the contextual function determines which qualification is intended.]

BA-X069 · textual. [ع] من طبعة «إذا» في موضع «إن» عند بو عقل [أ] قراءة. [Escorial reading according to Bou Akl 2015, Arabic p. 196; the earlier edition reads differently.]

The Third Level: Authorization

الْمَرْتَبَةُ الثَّالِثَةُ: الْإِجَازَةُ

This is for the teacher to say, ‘I authorize you to transmit from me such-and-such a book,’ or ‘Whatever you have reliably identified among the reports I have heard.’ In such a case, ‘He related to us’ or ‘He informed us’ may be used without qualification only in an extended sense.

وَهُوَ أَنْ يَقُولَ أُجِيزُ لَكَ أَنْ تَرْوِيَ عَنِّي الْكِتَابَ الْفُلَانِيَّ، أَوْ مَا صَحَّ عِنْدَكَ مِنْ تَعْيِينِ مَسْمُوعَاتِي. وَلَا يَجُوزُ فِي مِثْلِ هَذَا إِطْلَاقُ الْقَوْلِ بِحَدَّثَنَا أَوْ أَخْبَرَنَا إِلَّا تَجَوُّزًا.

The Fourth Level: Handing Over a Written Text

الْمَرْتَبَةُ الرَّابِعَةُ: الْمُنَاوَلَةُ

Its form is for the teacher to say, ‘Take this book and transmit it from me.’ Merely handing it over without speaking has no significance; the physical handing over is therefore an additional formality, and the transaction is in reality an authorization. Although it does not yield knowledge of the precise route of transmission, it does yield knowledge of the report’s authenticity.

وَصُورَتُهَا أَنْ يَقُولَ الشَّيْخُ خُذْ هَذَا الْكِتَابَ وَحَدِّثْ بِهِ عَنِّي. وَمُجَرَّدُ الْمُنَاوَلَةِ دُونَ اللَّفْظِ لَا مَعْنَى لَهُ، فَهِيَ زِيَادَةُ تَكَلُّفٍ، وَهِيَ فِي الْحَقِيقَةِ إِجَازَةٌ. وَهِيَ وَإِنْ لَمْ تُفِدْ مَعْرِفَةَ عَيْنِ الطَّرِيقِ الْمُوصِلِ، فَهِيَ تُفِيدُ مَعْرِفَةَ صِحَّةِ الْخَبَرِ.

The Fifth Level: Reliance on Handwriting

الْمَرْتَبَةُ الْخَامِسَةُ: الِاعْتِمَادُ عَلَى الْخَطِّ

R 105 · BA 127 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 78 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 196

He finds a statement in the teacher’s handwriting: ‘I transmitted such-and-such from so-and-so.’ He may not transmit it from the teacher, because handwriting can be confused with other handwriting. If the teacher says, ‘This is my handwriting,’ his statement is accepted, but one may not transmit from him unless he gives permission verbally or by a contextual indication.

If a person of probity says, ‘This is an accurate copy of al-Bukhārī’s book,’ and one sees in it ‘He related to us,’ بِأَنْ يَجِدَ بِخَطِّهِ مَكْتُوبًا إِنِّي رَوَيْتُ عَنْ فُلَانٍ كَذَا وَكَذَا. فَهَذَا لَا يَجُوزُ أَنْ يُرْوَى عَنْهُ لِأَنَّ الْخَطَّ يَشْتَبِهُ. وَأَمَّا إِذَا قَالَ الشَّيْخُ: هَذَا خَطِّي، قُبِلَ قَوْلُهُ، وَلَكِنْ لَا يَرْوِي عَنْهُ مَا لَمْ يَأْذَنْ لَهُ بِالْقَوْلِ أَوْ بِقَرِينَةِ حَالٍ.

one still may not transmit from its author. But must one act upon it? If one follows another's judgement, one must ask a practitioner of independent judgement; this is undisputed. If one exercises independent judgement oneself, some say that one may not act upon it without having heard it. Others say that one may act upon it once the copy's accuracy is known, since the Messenger's Companions, God bless him and grant him peace, carried written sheets to the provinces, and people relied upon them on the testimony of their bearers.

وَأَمَّا إِذَا قَالَ عَدْلٌ: هَذِهِ نُسْخَةٌ صَحِيحَةٌ مِنْ كِتَابِ الْبُخَارِيِّ فَرَأَى فِيهَا حَدَّثَنَا، فَلَيْسَ لَهُ أَنْ يَرْوِيَ عَنْهُ. وَلَكِنْ هَلْ يَلْزَمُهُ الْعَمَلُ بِهِ؟ أَمَّا إِذَا كَانَ مُقَلِّدًا فَعَلَيْهِ أَنْ يَسْأَلَ الْمُجْتَهِدَ فلا خِلَافَ، وَإِنْ كَانَ مُجْتَهِدًا فَقَالَ قَوْمٌ لَا يَجُوزُ الْعَمَلُ لَهُ بِهِ مَا لَمْ يَسْمَعْهُ. وَقَالَ قَوْمٌ إِذَا عُلِمَ صِحَّةُ النُّسْخَةِ جَازَ الْعَمَلُ بِهِ، لِأَنَّ أَصْحَابَ الرَّسُولِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ كَانُوا يَحْمِلُونَ الصُّحُفَ إِلَى الْبِلَادِ، وَكَانَ النَّاسُ يَعْتَمِدُونَ عَلَيْهَا بِشَهَادَةِ حَامِلِ الصُّحُفِ.

In general, however, one should transmit only what one has heard and ascertained: the person who transmitted to them entertained no doubt about anything they received from him. If he doubted anything, its transmission was abandoned.

وَلَكِنْ عَلَى الْجُمْلَةِ فَلَا يَنْبَغِي أَنْ يَرْوِيَ إِلَّا مَا سَمِعَ بَعْدَ الْمَعْرِفَةِ، فَإِنَّ الَّذِي رَوَّاهُمْ لَمْ يَشُكَّ فِي شَيْءٍ مِمَّا أَخَذُوهُ عَنْهُ، فَإِنْ شَكَّ فِي شَيْءٍ تُرِكَتْ رِوَايَتُهُ.

N040 · translation. Two reported positions must be distinguished: one denies reliance on what the recipient has not heard; another permits acting upon a written copy once its authenticity is established (إِذَا عَلِمَ صِحَّةَ النُّسْخَةِ جَازَ الْعَمَلُ بِهِ). This is not an unqualified permission asserted by Ibn Rushd.

Several questions branch from this. Suppose that among the reports recorded as having been heard by a transmitter there is one that he strongly believes he heard: may he transmit it? If he is in doubt, there is no disagreement that he may not. If he strongly believes that he heard it, some say that it may be received from him, since this field rests on predominant probability. This is implausible: predominant probability concerns the teacher's truthfulness. Likewise, in testimony, predominant probability concerns the judge; the witness, however, should testify with certainty wherever certainty is possible. The same applies to a transmitter.

وَقَدْ تتفرع عَنْ هَذَا مَسَائِلُ مِنْهَا: إِذَا كَانَ فِي مَسْمُوعَاتِهِ حَدِيثٌ يَغْلِبُ عَلَى ظَنِّهِ أَنَّهُ سَمِعَهُ هَلْ يَجُوزُ لَهُ أَنْ يَرْوِيَهُ؟ أَمَّا إِذَا شَكَّ فَلَا خِلَافَ فِي أَنَّهُ لَا يَجُوزُ لَهُ، وَأَمَّا إِذَا غَلَبَ عَلَى ظَنِّهِ أَنَّهُ سَمِعَهُ فَقَدْ قَالَ قَوْمٌ يَجُوزُ أَخْذُهُ عَنْهُ، لِأَنَّ الِاعْتِمَادَ فِي هَذَا الْبَابِ عَلَى غَلَبَةِ الظَّنِّ، وَهُوَ بَعِيدٌ، لِأَنَّ غَلَبَةَ الظَّنِّ إِنَّمَا تَتَصَوَّرُ فِي كَوْنِ الشَّيْخِ صَادِقًا. وَكَذَلِكَ غَلَبَةُ الظَّنِّ فِي الشَّهَادَةِ إِنَّمَا تَتَصَوَّرُ فِي حَقِّ الْحَاكِمِ، وَأَمَّا الشَّاهِدُ فَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ يَشْهَدَ عَلَى الْقَطْعِ فِيمَا الْقَطْعُ فِيهِ مُمْكِنٌ، وَكَذَلِكَ الرَّاوِي.

Another question arises when the teacher denies the report categorically, affirming that the transmitter has spoken falsely. The report is then not acted upon, but the transmitter is not thereby discredited, because they are two persons of probity whose statements conflict. If, however, the teacher's denial expresses uncertainty, the report is acted upon: the transmitter is certain that he heard it, while the teacher does not categorically declare him false, and both possess probity.

فَيُعْمَلُ بِالْخَبَرِ، لِأَنَّ الرَّاوِيَ جَازِمٌ فِي أَنَّهُ سَمِعَهُ، وَالشَّيْخُ لَيْسَ هُوَ قَاطِعًا بِتَكْذِيبِهِ وَهُمَا عَدْلَانِ.

Al-Karkhī holds that the teacher's forgetting the report invalidates it. He argues that the teacher is not obliged to act upon it when a person of probity transmits it back to him from him and he does not remember it. The transmitter cannot be in this position, since he is certain; the position of someone other than these two lies between theirs.

وَذَهَبَ الْكَرْخِيُّ إِلَى أَنَّ نِسْيَانَ الشَّيْخِ الْحَدِيثَ يُبْطِلُهُ، وَاحْتَجَّ بِأَنَّ الشَّيْخَ لَيْسَ يَجِبُ عَلَيْهِ الْعَمَلُ إِذَا رَوَاهُ لَهُ الْعَدْلُ عَنْهُ وَهُوَ لَا يَذْكُرُهُ، وَهَذَا لَا يَتَصَوَّرُ فِي الرَّاوِي، لِأَنَّهُ قَاطِعٌ، وَأَمَّا غَيْرُهُمَا فَحَالَتُهُ بَيْنَ حَالَتَيْهِمَا.

It seems that the report's recipient is more likely to believe the transmitter truthful, given how commonly people forget and the fact that the teacher does not categorically declare him false. This is the position of Mālik, al-Shāfiʿī, and the great majority of the theologians. In their view, it resembles the teacher's uncertainty about an addition to a report or its grammatical inflection.

Another question concerns a trustworthy transmitter who alone reports an addition to a report transmitted by a group of trustworthy persons with exact memories. Some say that the addition is accepted: if he alone had transmitted an entire report, it would have been accepted, and the addition is no different. You know that this is not so. His being alone in reporting an addition to a report they have also transmitted, despite their exact memories, is an indication (قرينة) weakening the probability of the addition's authenticity. This does not apply when he alone transmits an entire report.

Accordingly, some reject the addition; others accept it, though not for the reason just given. Their reason is that the others do not categorically deny the addition. They may have entered the gathering after part of the report had already been related, or they may have been present but failed to hear it because of some distraction or accident. In general, this is a matter for independent judgement, and its probability varies from case to case and report to report.

فَلِذَلِكَ رَأَى بَعْضُهُمْ أَلَّا تُقْبَلَ الزِّيَادَةُ، وَرَأَى بَعْضُهُمْ أَنْ تُقْبَلَ، لَكِنْ لَيْسَ لِهَذِهِ الْعِلَّةِ الَّتِي تَقَدَّمَتْ بَلْ لِأَنَّ أُولَئِكَ لَيْسُوا بِقَاطِعِينَ عَلَى نَفْيِ الزِّيَادَةِ، وَيُمْكِنُ أَنْ يَكُونُوا دَخَلُوا فِي الْمَجْلِسِ وَقَدْ مَضَى مِنَ الْحَدِيثِ شَيْءٌ، وَيُمْكِنُ أَنْ يَكُونُوا حَاضِرِينَ وَيَفُوتَ أَسْمَاعَهُمْ لِشَاغِلٍ أَوْ عَارِضٍ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَهِيَ مَسْأَلَةٌ اجْتِهَادِيَّةٌ، وَيَتَفَاوَتُ الظَّنُّ فِيهَا بِحَسَبِ نَازِلَةٍ نَازِلَةٍ وَحَدِيثٍ حَدِيثٍ.

Another question is the transmission of a report's meaning without its wording. Some permit this for a learned person who understands the applications of speech. Others allow only the substitution (الإبدال) of an expression synonymous with and equal in meaning to the original: for example, replacing quʿūd with julūs, both meaning ‘sitting,’ where their synonymy is beyond doubt, and not where establishing it requires inference.

وَمِنْهَا نَقْلُ الْحَدِيثِ بِالْمَعْنَى دُونَ اللَّفْظِ، فَقَوْمٌ أَجَازُوهُ لِلْعَالِمِ الْعَارِفِ بِمَوَاقِعِ الْخِطَابِ، وَقَالَ قَوْمٌ لَا يَجُوزُ لَهُ إِلَّا

The first group appeals to the consensus permitting the meanings contained in the Law to be explained to non-Arabs in their own languages. They say that if Arabic may be replaced by synonymous non-Arabic wording, replacing it with Arabic wording is all the more permissible. They do not distinguish between a substitution whose validity is self-evident and one requiring inference. They add that the Messenger of God’s emissaries, God bless him and grant him peace, likewise conveyed his commands to non-Arabs.

I hold that when understanding what expressions signify is a matter for independent judgement, a practitioner of independent judgement may not act upon a reported meaning until the Lawgiver’s wording has been transmitted to him. Otherwise, in the very capacity in which he exercises independent judgement, he becomes a follower of someone else’s judgement. An exception might be made where that meaning is stated by a Companion; discussion of this returns to the disagreement mentioned earlier. A practitioner of independent judgement whose judgement others follow may, in my view, substitute one expression for another for those who follow him, since this itself is a kind of independent judgement. Consequently, explaining Arabic expressions and rendering them in another language are permissible.

وَأَمَّا تَجْوِيزُ نَقْلِ بَعْضِ الْخَبَرِ فَهُوَ [عِنْدِي جَائِزٌ، إِذَا كَانَ مُفِيدًا وَمُكْتَفِيًا بِنَفْسِهِ وَغَيْرَ مُحْتَاجٍ فِي فَهْمِهِ إِلَى مَا قَبْلَهُ، أَوْ كَانَ لَيْسَ يُوجِبُ حَذْفُ مَا حُذِفَ مِنْهُ تَرَدُّدَ الْمَفْهُومِ عَنْهُ بَيْنَ مَعْنَيَيْنِ أَوْ أَكْثَرَ مِنْ ذَلِكَ، وَسَوَاءٌ [جَوَّزْنَا] الْأَمْرَ فِي هَذَا عِنْدَ مَنْ أَجَازَ نَقْلَ الْحَدِيثِ بِالْمَعْنَى دُونَ اللَّفْظِ أَوْ لَمْ يُجِزْهُ].

As for permitting the transmission of only part of a report, [I consider this permissible if that part conveys a meaning, is self-sufficient, and does not require what precedes it in order to be understood, or if omitting the excised portion does not leave what remains susceptible to two or more meanings. وَمِنْهَا النَّقْلُ الْمُرْسَلُ وَالْمُسْنَدُ. وَهَذَا قَدِ اخْتَلَفُوا فِيهِ، فَذَهَبَ مَالِكٌ وَأَبُو حَنِيفَةَ وَالْجَمَاهِيرُ إِلَى أَنَّ الْمُرْسَلَ مَقْبُولٌ وَمَعْمُولٌ بِهِ، وَذَهَبَ الشَّافِعِيُّ وَالْقَاضِي إِلَى أَنَّهُ غَيْرُ مَقْبُولٍ. وَصُورَتُهُ أَنْ يَقُولَ: قَالَ رَسُولُ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ مَنْ لَمْ يُعَاصِرْهُ، أَوْ قَالَ أَبُو هُرَيْرَةَ مَنْ لَمْ يُعَاصِرْهُ.

Another question concerns transmission with an omitted link and transmission with a connected chain. Opinions differ: Mālik, Abū Ḥanīfa, and the majority accept and act upon a report with an omitted link, whereas al-Shāfiʿī and the Qāḍī reject it. Its form is for someone who was not his contemporary to say, ‘The Messenger of God said’—God bless him and grant him peace—or for someone who was not Abū Hurayra’s contemporary to say, ‘Abū Hurayra said.’

أَمَّا الْفَرِيقُ الْأَوَّلُ فَاحْتَجُّوا بِأَنَّ رِوَايَةَ الْعَدْلِ تَعْدِيلٌ، لَا سِيَّمَا فِيمَا يُصَرِّحُ بِهِ، كَقَوْلِهِ عَنِ الثِّقَةِ عنده، فَرُوجِعُوا بِأَنَّ رِوَايَةَ الْعَدْلِ لَيْسَتْ بِتَعْدِيلٍ إِلَّا أَنْ يُعْلَمَ مِنْ قَرِينَةِ حَالِهِ أَنَّهُ لَا يَجْرَحُ إِلَّا عَنْ عَدْلٍ أَوْ يُصَرِّحَ بِعَدَالَتِهِ، ثُمَّ إِذَا عُلِمَ مِنْ قَرِينَةِ حَالِهِ أَنَّهُ لَا يَجْرَحُ إِلَّا عَنْ عَدْلٍ أَوْ صَرَّحَ بِعَدَالَتِهِ فَلَيْسَ بِتَعْدِيلٍ مَا لَمْ يَذْكُرْ مَا الْعَدَالَةُ عِنْدَهُ. وَهَذَا عِنْدِي غَيْرُ لَازِمٍ عَلَى مَذْهَبِ الشَّافِعِيِّ وَالْقَاضِي عَلَى مَا تَقَدَّمَ لَكِنْ عَسَاهُمْ لَا يُسَلِّمُونَ التَّعْدِيلَ الْمُطْلَقَ إِلَّا فِيمَنْ عُرِفَتْ عَيْنُهُ، إِذْ مَنْ لَمْ تُعْرَفْ عَيْنُهُ مُمْكِنٌ أَنْ لَوْ سُمِّيَ عَرَفْنَاهُ بِفِسْقٍ.

The first group argues that transmission by a person of probity attests his source’s probity, especially when he states this explicitly, as in ‘from a trustworthy person,’ in their usage. The reply is that his transmission does not attest probity unless his circumstances indicate that he transmits only from persons of probity, or he expressly attests his source’s probity; and even then it does not establish probity unless he states what probity means to him. In my view, this last requirement does not follow from the positions of al-Shāfiʿī and the Qāḍī, as explained earlier. Perhaps, however, they concede unspecified attestation only where the person is identified: an unidentified person might, if named, be someone we know to be morally unreliable.

The first group also argues for accepting reports with omitted links from the consensus of the Companions and Successors permitting action upon them. But the alleged consensus itself is disputed, because this position has not been transmitted from all of them, and the silence of those who said nothing does not have the standing of an express statement, especially in matters open to independent judgement, as will be explained later.

وَأَيْضًا فَإِنَّ مِنَ الْمُنْكِرِينَ لِلْمُرْسَلِ مَنْ قَبِلَ مُرْسَلَ الصَّحَابِيِّ لِأَنَّهُ فِي الْأَكْثَرِ لَا يُحَدِّثُ إِلَّا عَنْ صَحَابِيٍّ، وَكُلُّهُمْ عَدْلٌ، وَكَذَلِكَ مَرَاسِلُ التَّابِعِينَ إِذْ فِي الْأَكْثَرِ إِنَّمَا يَرْوُونَ عَنْ صَحَابِيٍّ. لَكِنَّ الْمُخْتَارَ عِنْدَ مَنْ لَا يَقْبَلُ الْمَرَاسِلَ أَنْ لَا يَقْبَلَ مُرْسَلَ الصَّحَابِيِّ أَوِ التَّابِعِيِّ حَتَّى يَعْلَمَ بِصَرِيحِ لَفْظِهِ أَوْ قَرِينَةِ حَالٍ أَنَّهُ لَا يَرْوِي إِلَّا عَنْ صَحَابِيٍّ.

Some who reject reports with omitted links nevertheless accept such a report from a Companion, because he generally relates only from another Companion, and all of them possess probity. The same is said of the Successors’ reports with omitted links, since they generally transmit from a Companion. The preferred position among those who reject such reports, however, is to accept one from neither a Companion nor a Successor until his explicit wording or a contextual indication makes it known that he transmits only from a Companion.

وَأَمَّا مَا يُمْكِنُ أَنْ يُحْتَجَّ بِهِ عَلَى مَنْ مَنَعَ قَبُولَ الْمَرَاسِلِ مِنَ الْعَنْعَنَةِ وَإِجْرَائِهَا مَجْرَى الْمُسْنَدِ مَعَ إِمْكَانِ أَنْ يَكُونَ بَيْنَ الرَّاوِي وَالْمَرْوِيِّ غَيْرُهُ، فَلَهُمْ أَنْ يُجِيبُوا عَنْ ذَلِكَ بِأَنَّ الْعَنْعَنَةَ إِنَّمَا أُجْرِيَتْ مَجْرَى الْمُسْنَدِ حَيْثُ تَقْتَرِنُ قَرَائِنُ تَدُلُّ عَلَى أَنَّهُ سَمِعَ مِنْهُ، أَوْ يُصَرِّحُ بِذَلِكَ، وَمَتَى لَمْ يُصَرِّحْ بِذَلِكَ وَلَا دَلَّتْ عَلَى ذَلِكَ قَرَائِنُ فَهُوَ مُتَرَدِّدٌ بَيْنَ الْمُرْسَلِ وَالْمُسْنَدِ.

An argument might be brought against those who refuse such reports from chains expressed simply by ‘from,’ which are treated as connected despite the possibility of an intermediary between the transmitter and his source. They may reply that a chain expressed by ‘from’ is treated as connected only where accompanying indications show that the transmitter heard directly from his source, or where he explicitly says so. In the absence of either an explicit statement or such indications, the report remains uncertain between an omitted-link report and a connected report.

وَأَمَّا قَبُولُ خَبَرِ الْوَاحِدِ فِيمَا تَعُمُّ بِهِ الْبَلْوَى كَحَدِيثِ مَسِّ الذَّكَرِ وَمَا أَشْبَهَهُ فَقَدْ تَقَدَّمَ الْقَوْلُ فِي وَجْهِ الِاسْتِرَابَةِ بِهِ، لِأَنَّ مَا تَعُمُّ بِهِ الْبَلْوَى يَنْتَشِرُ وَيَسْتَفِيضُ بِحَسَبِ عُرْفِ الْعَادَةِ. وَقَدْ رَدَّ هَذِهِ الْقَرِينَةَ مَنْ أَجَازَ الْعَمَلَ بِأَخْبَارِ الْآحَادِ فِيمَا تَعُمُّ بِهِ الْبَلْوَى بِأَنَّ الِاسْتِفَاضَةَ إِنَّمَا تَلْزَمُ فِيمَا تَعَبَّدَ فِيهِ رَسُولُ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ بِإِشَاعَتِهِ فِي الْجَمِيعِ، وَأَمَّا مَا تَعَبَّدَ بِهِ بِاتِّصَالِهِ إِلَى الْآحَادِ وَرَدِّ الْخَلْقِ إِلَى أَخْبَارِهِمْ فَلَا يَلْزَمُ ذَلِكَ فِيهِ.

As for accepting a solitary report about something of widespread occurrence, such as the report concerning touching the penis and similar reports, the grounds for suspecting it have already been explained: what commonly affects people normally becomes widely circulated and known. Those who permit acting on solitary reports in such matters reject this indication. They say that widespread transmission is required only for what the Messenger of God, God bless him and grant him peace, was charged to disseminate among everyone; it is not required for what he was charged to convey to individuals while referring others to their reports.

To justify referring people to solitary reports in some cases even though widespread transmission would be possible, they invoke the permissibility of referring them to analogy where an express ruling could have been given, as in the question of usury and similar matters. They say that widespread occurrence is not the cause of dissemination and wide transmission; the cause is the manner in which the duty is imposed.

I hold that his conveying, God bless him and grant him peace, one of God's individually binding obligations to a single person, while refraining from conveying it to the Companions who attended him morning and evening—may God bless them and grant them peace—would involve his relying, God bless him and grant him peace, on their acting upon the report if it reached them and on the obligation's lapsing for them if it did not. Nothing in his circumstances, God bless him and grant him peace, indicates this, given his eagerness to teach and explain.

وَأَنَا أَرَى أَنَّ تَبْلِيغَهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ فَرْضًا مِنْ فُرُوضِ اللَّهِ مِمَّا هُوَ وَاجِبٌ عَلَى الْأَعْيَانِ وَاحِدًا، وَسُكُوتَهُ عَنْ تَبْلِيغِهِ لِمَنْ يُرَاوِحُهُ وَيُغَادِيهِ مِنْ أَصْحَابِهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِمْ وَسَلَّمَ اتِّكَالًا مِنْهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ عَلَى أَنَّهُ إِنْ وَصَلَهُمْ ذَلِكَ الْخَبَرُ عَمِلُوا بِهِ، وَإِنْ لَمْ يَصِلْهُمْ فَهُوَ سَاقِطٌ فِي حَقِّهِمْ غَيْرُ مَعْلُومٍ مِنْ قَرَائِنِ أَحْوَالِهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ مَعَ حِرْصِهِ عَلَى التَّعْلِيمِ وَالتَّبْيِينِ.

Whether or not such a thing is rationally possible, examining his conduct, God bless him and grant him peace, in explaining and clarifying the Law brings one close to certainty that it could not have occurred in the revealed dispensation.

وَسَوَاءٌ جَازَ وُقُوعُ مِثْلِ هَذَا عَقْلًا أَوْ لَمْ يَجُزْ هُوَ مِمَّا يَكَادُ يُقْطَعُ بِامْتِنَاعِ وُقُوعِهِ شَرْعًا عِنْدَ تَصَفُّحِ أَحْوَالِهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ فِي الْبَيَانِ وَالتَّبْيِينِ.

The truth is that some reports can reach us only through solitary routes, even if their subject was formerly widespread and the reports widely circulated. Others can reach us by either route, and still others cannot reach us except through mass transmission. This varies from case to case and issue to issue, according to time, place, and other obstacles.

وَإِنَّمَا الْحَقُّ أَنَّ بَعْضَ الْأَخْبَارِ لَيْسَ يُمْكِنُ فِيهَا أَنْ تَصِلَ إِلَيْنَا إِلَّا بِطُرُقِ الْآحَادِ، وَإِنْ عَمَّتْ بِهَا الْبَلْوَى فِيمَا سَلَفَ وَاسْتَفَاضَتْ، وَبَعْضَهَا يُمْكِنُ أَنْ تَصِلَ بِهَذَا وَهَذَا، وَبَعْضَهَا مُمْتَنِعٌ أَنْ تَصِلَ بِغَيْرِ التَّوَاتُرِ، وَذَلِكَ يَخْتَلِفُ فِي نَازِلَةٍ نَازِلَةٍ وَقَضِيَّةٍ قَضِيَّةٍ، وَذَلِكَ بِحَسَبِ الزَّمَانِ وَالْمَكَانِ وَغَيْرِ ذَلِكَ مِنَ الْعَوَائِقِ.

Accordingly, in some reports a practitioner of independent judgement may find grounds for rejection because of widespread occurrence, while in others he may find no such grounds, especially in collective obligations. In each instance one should judge according to what the matter under discussion admits. Rejecting solitary routes in every case of widespread occurrence is incorrect, since the matter varies with the accompanying indications; acting upon them without qualification is likewise incorrect.

وَلِذَلِكَ رُبَّمَا انْقَدَحَ لِلْمُجْتَهِدِ فِي بَعْضِ الْأَخْبَارِ الْقَوْلُ بِرَدِّهِ لِعُمُومِ الْبَلْوَى، وَرُبَّمَا لَمْ يَنْقَدِحْ لَهُ رَدُّهُ، وَلَا سِيَّمَا فِي فُرُوضِ الْكِفَايَاتِ. وَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ يُقَالَ فِي كُلِّ مَوْضِعٍ بِحَسَبِ مَا يَحْتَمِلُ الْأَمْرُ الْمَقُولُ فِيهِ، فَإِنَّ رَدَّ الْإِنْسَانِ طُرُقَ الْآحَادِ فِيمَا تَعُمُّ بِهِ الْبَلْوَى فِي كُلِّ مَوْضِعٍ غَيْرُ صَوَابٍ، إِذْ يَتَفَاوَتُ ذَلِكَ بِحَسَبِ الْقَرَائِنِ وَكَذَلِكَ الْعَمَلُ بِهَا عَلَى الْإِطْلَاقِ.

This division does not have the nature of logical opposition, so that its two sides could be made contradictories and each party discuss them as though truth were confined to one side. You know how often they proceed in this way in many of these questions.

There is disagreement over the definition of abrogation. The theologians define it as discourse indicating the removal of a ruling established by earlier discourse, such that the ruling would remain in force without it, with the discourse indicating its removal occurring later. They include these qualifications because they allow that God Most High may remove a ruling at some time after, for example, commanding it in perpetuity. In general, they allow abrogation before performance has become possible. Others define it as discourse disclosing when the term of an act of worship expires, because they believe that abrogation merely clarifies a prescription that was never intended from the outset to apply generally to, or encompass, all time.

Still others define it as discourse indicating that a ruling like the one established by the text ceases to hold, such that it would remain in force without that discourse. This definition is somewhat clumsy, because it makes what is removed a ruling like the original rather than the ruling itself. They were driven to this formulation only because they do not allow that God Most High may prohibit the very same thing after commanding it.

In general, inquiry into which of these things may or may not be attributed to God Most High does not belong to the jurist as jurist. It is sufficient for the jurist to concede and believe that the Law contains rulings removed after they had been commanded, whether or not this removal disclosed the expiry of the term of an act of worship, and that the occurrence of such abrogation in the Law is established by mass

وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَالنَّظَرُ فِيمَا يَجُوزُ مِنْ هَذَا عَلَى اللَّهِ تَعَالَى وَمَا لَا يَجُوزُ لَا يَخُصُّ الْفَقِيهَ بِمَا هُوَ فَقِيهٌ. وَالَّذِي يَكْفِي الْفَقِيهَ مِنْ هَذَا أَنْ يُسَلِّمَ أَنَّ فِي الشَّرْعِ أَحْكَامًا رُفِعَتْ بَعْدَ الْأَمْرِ بِهَا وَيَعْتَقِدَ ذَلِكَ سَوَاءٌ كَانَ ذَلِكَ كَشْفًا عَنِ انْقِضَاءِ مُدَّةِ الْعِبَادَةِ أَوْ لَمْ يَكُنْ، وَأَنَّ وُقُوعَ مِثْلِ هَذَا شَرْعًا مِمَّا ثَبَتَ تَوَاتُرًا. وَأَمَّا

If part of an act of worship, one of its conditions, or one of its recommended observances is abrogated, does this abrogate the act of worship itself? Opinions differ. The truth is that removing a part removes the whole, because a whole is a whole through its parts, and an act of worship is commanded insofar as it comprises all its parts. In general, removing a part removes the whole, since it no longer remains a whole; this applies to what cannot be divided into independent parts. Removing a condition seems to have the same effect, since it is through that condition that the act of worship is complete. Removing a recommended observance, however, does not entail removing the act's obligatory character.

Question. Some regard an addition to a text as abrogation; others do not. The preferred position is that an addition constitutes abrogation when it makes what receives the addition different from what it was before and numerically a second thing. An example is prayer, if it is correct that two cycles were originally prescribed and further cycles were then added.

If, however, the addition differs in kind from the act of worship to which it is added, it clearly is not abrogation—for example, prescribing prayer and then prescribing almsgiving. Likewise, if the addition and what receives it are one in kind, but the addition does not make the latter a different individual thing, it is not abrogation: for example, adding twenty lashes to a prescribed punishment of eighty. Abū Ḥanīfa, God have mercy on him, nevertheless regards such a case as abrogation.

H1. Compare ʿĀʾisha's report in Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 350: prayer was initially prescribed as two cycles, the traveller's prayer remained so, and the resident's prayer was increased. Ibn Rushd's qualification, 'if it is correct', is retained.

مَسْأَلَةٌ: الزِّيَادَةُ عَلَى النَّصِّ نَسْخٌ عِنْدَ قَوْمٍ، وَلَيْسَتْ بِنَسْخٍ عِنْدَ قَوْمٍ. وَالْمُخْتَارُ أَنَّ الزِّيَادَةَ إِذَا صَارَ بِهَا الْمَزِيدُ غَيْرَ مَا كَانَ قَبْلُ وَثَانِيًا بِالْعَدَدِ فَهِيَ نَسْخٌ، مِثْلَ الصَّلَاةِ إِنْ صَحَّ فِيهَا أَنَّهَا فُرِضَتْ أَوَّلًا رَكْعَتَيْنِ ثُمَّ زِيدَ فِيهَا.

مَسْأَلَةٌ: لَيْسَ مِنْ شَرْطِ النَّسْخِ إِثْبَاتُ بَدَلٍ لِلْمَنْسُوخِ يَقُومُ مَقَامَهُ وَيَتَنَزَّلُ مَنْزِلَتَهُ، وَذَلِكَ جَائِزٌ عَلَى مَذْهَبِ أَهْلِ السُّنَّةِ، وَوَاقِعٌ شَرْعًا، كَنَسْخِ ادِّخَارِ لُحُومِ الْأَضَاحِيِّ، وَتَقْدِمَةِ الصَّدَقَةِ أَمَامَ الْمُنَاجَاةِ[Q1].

Question. Abrogation does not require establishing a substitute for the abrogated ruling to take its place and occupy its position. Abrogation without such a substitute is permissible according to the people of the Sunna and has occurred in the Law, as in the abrogation concerning storing sacrificial meat and giving charity before private consultation[Q1].

As for God’s saying, mighty and majestic, ‘Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring one better than it,’[Q2] although its apparent meaning establishes a substitute taking the abrogated verse’s place, ‘We bring one better than it’[Q2] may be interpreted to mean ‘We bring another verse,’ even if this does not contain a replacement for the abrogated verse in respect of its ruling, but instead contains another ruling that is not a substitute for the one removed.

Question. Abrogation may replace a ruling with a lighter or a heavier one. This is rationally possible and has occurred in the Law. Examples of replacing a lighter requirement with a heavier one are replacing the choice between fasting and feeding others as compensation with fasting alone[Q1]; prohibiting wine and temporary marriage; and replacing the fast of ʿĀshūrāʾ with the obligation to fast Ramaḍān.

Q1. Qurʾān, al-Baqarah 2:184–185 ↗. These are the verses invoked in the author’s abrogation example.

H1. For the prohibition of temporary marriage, see Ṣaḥīḥ Muslim 1406d. For the earlier observance of ʿĀshūrāʾ and the subsequent obligation of Ramaḍān, see Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 2002.

Question. When a verse contains a ruling, its recitation may be abrogated while its ruling remains, its ruling may be abrogated while its recitation remains, or both may be abrogated. This is rationally possible and has occurred in the Law. Its rational possibility follows because recitation comprises two aspects: first, reading the verse, writing it in the codex, and reciting it in prayer; second, the rulings it contains. A person may be charged with either aspect without the other, and both may be removed together, according to what the doctrines of the people of the Sunna entail.

Evidence from revelation that this has occurred is God's saying, 'For those who are able to bear it, a compensation: food for needy people,'[Q1] and the rest of the verse. Its ruling was abrogated by making fasting the sole requirement, while its recitation remained[Q2]. Likewise, 'A bequest for parents and close relatives'[Q3] is abrogated by his saying, peace be upon him, 'No bequest for an heir.' This requires examination, however, because some do not permit the Qurʾān to be abrogated by the Sunna.

As for abrogating recitation while retaining the ruling, reports corroborate one another that the recitation of the stoning verse was abrogated while its ruling remained. Yet this, too, requires examination in my view: it should not be accepted that such wording was once part of the Qurʾān until it is established by mass transmission, and this should not be accepted through solitary routes.

Q1. Qurʾān, al-Baqarah 2:184 ↗. "Food for needy people" follows a transmitted construct/plural reading; the printed wording is retained.

Q2. Qurʾān, al-Baqarah 2:185 ↗. This identifies the fasting command invoked here; the account of abrogation is the author's.

Q3. Qurʾān, al-Baqarah 2:180 ↗.

H1. 'No bequest for an heir': Sunan Abī Dāwūd 2870. For ʿUmar's report concerning the stoning verse, compare Ṣaḥīḥ Muslim 1691 a. The latter concerns reported former recitation, not a verse in the present muṣḥaf. Ibn Rushd expressly questions whether such former Qurʾānic status may be accepted without recurrent transmission.

Question. There is no disagreement over abrogating a Sunna established by mass transmission through another such Sunna, solitary reports through solitary reports, or solitary reports through mass transmission. Opinions differ about abrogating what is established by mass transmission through solitary reports. The preferred position is that this is rationally possible and occurred in the Law during the Prophet's lifetime, God bless him and grant him peace: the people of the mosque at Qubāʾ turned toward the Kaʿba on a solitary report, although their facing Jerusalem had been established by a decisive route. In general, the Messenger of God's sending emissaries to the outlying regions with abrogating and abrogated rulings, God bless him and grant him peace, is itself established by mass transmission.

فَأَمَّا وُقُوعُ ذَلِكَ بَعْدَهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ فَمُمْتَنِعٌ بِإِجْمَاعِ الصَّحَابَةِ عَلَى أَنَّ الْقُرْآنَ لَا يُرْفَعُ بِخَبَرِ الْوَاحِدِ، وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ التَّوَاتُرُ. وَيُشْبِهُ أَنْ تَكُونَ الْعِلَّةُ فِي ذَلِكَ قَرَائِنَ تَقْتَرِنُ بِخَبَرِ الْمُخْبِرِينَ عَنْ رَسُولِ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ فِي حَيَاتِهِ لَيْسَ تَقْتَرِنُ بِالْمُخْبِرِينَ عَنْهُ بَعْدَ مَوْتِهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ مِنْ إِمْكَانِ مُرَاجَعَتِهِ وَاسْتِفْهَامِهِ وَغَيْرِ ذَلِكَ.

Its occurrence after his death, God bless him and grant him peace, is excluded by the Companions' consensus that the Qurʾān—and, in general, what is established by mass transmission—is not set aside by a solitary report. The reason seems to be indications accompanying reports from the Messenger of God during his lifetime, God bless him and grant him peace, which do not accompany reports from him after his death, God bless him and grant him peace: the possibility of going back to him, questioning him, and the like.

As for abrogating the mass-transmitted Qurʾān through a mass-transmitted Sunna, it is reported that al-Shāfiʿī and some Ẓāhirīs did not permit this, on the evidence of God's saying, mighty and majestic, 'Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring one better than it or like it.’[Q1] Although the apparent meaning of this verse supports their view, we have already said that the new verse may contain no replacement for the abrogated verse’s ruling, while the Sunna supplies the replacement for that ruling.

Those who permit this invoke the abrogation of God’s saying, ‘A bequest for parents and close relatives,’[Q2] by the Prophet’s saying, peace be upon him, ‘No bequest for an heir.’ They also invoke his saying, peace be upon him, ‘God has now appointed a way for them: for the never-married with the never-married, a hundred lashes and a year’s banishment; and for the previously married with the previously married, a hundred lashes and stoning.’ This abrogates ‘Confine them in the houses.’[Q3] These arguments admit possible alternative interpretations and are not decisive.

Besides the argument already mentioned, what seems to have led those holding this position to exclude such abrogation is the greater weight we find them giving to the assent (التصديق) produced by the Book’s mass transmission: this is the highest degree of mass transmission. As for other reports, even when mass-transmitted, assent to them may fall short of assent to the Book. Contrary to what many think, it is not impossible for certain assent to admit degrees, especially where it rests on transmission. As for the report that al-Shāfiʿī, God have mercy on him, did not permit a mass-transmitted Sunna to be abrogated by the Qurʾān, this has no intelligible basis if taken in its apparent sense—unless it is interpreted otherwise, for the possibilities of interpretation are ample.

مَسْأَلَةٌ: لَا يَجُوزُ نَسْخُ النَّصِّ الْقَاطِعِ الْمُتَوَاتِرِ بِالْقِيَاسِ الْمَظْنُونِ، كَمَا لَا يَجُوزُ بِخَبَرِ الْوَاحِدِ. وَقَدِ احْتَجَّ مَنْ أَجَازَ ذَلِكَ بِجَوَازِ تَخْصِيصِ الْقِيَاسِ لِلنَّصِّ الْمُتَوَاتِرِ. وَهَذَا إِذَا سُلِّمَ فَلَيْسَ بِحُجَّةٍ، إِذِ التَّخْصِيصُ بَيَانٌ وَالنَّسْخُ رَفْعٌ.

Question. A decisive, mass-transmitted text may not be abrogated by probable analogy, just as it may not be abrogated by a solitary report. Those who permit this argue from the permissibility of restricting the scope of a mass-transmitted text through analogy. Even if conceded, this is no proof: specification clarifies, whereas abrogation removes.

وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَالْحُجَّةُ فِي ذَلِكَ إِجْمَاعُ الصَّحَابَةِ عَلَى إِبْطَالِ كُلِّ رَأْيٍ مُخَالِفٍ لِلنَّصِّ، فَكَيْفَ لِلنَّصِّ الْمُتَوَاتِرِ. وَحَدِيثُ مُعَاذٍ إِذْ قَالَ أَجْتَهِدُ رَأْيِي عِنْدَ عَدَمِ النَّصِّ وَتَزْكِيَةُ رَسُولِ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ لَهُ عَلَى ذَلِكَ. فَأَمَّا إِذَا تَنَاقَضَ نَصَّانِ قَاطِعَانِ وَأَشْكَلَ فَهَلْ يُقْضَى بِتَأَخُّرِ أَحَدِهِمَا بِخَبَرِ الْآحَادِ؟ فَفِيهِ نَظَرٌ، وَالْمَسْأَلَةُ فِي مَحَلِّ الِاجْتِهَادِ.

The proof here is the Companions’ consensus invalidating every opinion contrary to a text, all the more a mass-transmitted text; and the report of Muʿādh, when he said, ‘I exercise my judgement’ in the absence of a text, and the Messenger of God, God bless him and grant him peace, commended him for it. If two decisive texts contradict one another and the matter is unclear, may a solitary report determine that one is later? This requires examination; the question is open to independent judgement.

H1. The report of Muʿādh’s proposed method of judgement is in Sunan Abī Dāwūd 3592 and Jāmiʿ al-Tirmidhī 1327–1328. At 1328 al-Tirmidhī expressly states that he does not regard its chain as connected. The report’s use here in legal argument should be read with that transmission qualification.

مَسْأَلَةٌ: لَا يُنْسَخُ الْحُكْمُ بِقَوْلِ الصَّحَابِيِّ نُسِخَ حُكْمُ كَذَا مَا لَمْ يَقُلْ سَمِعْتُ رَسُولَ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ يَقُولُ ذَلِكَ. هَذَا إِذَا كَانَ الْحُكْمُ ثَابِتًا بِخَبَرِ الْوَاحِدِ، لِأَنَّ كَثِيرًا مَا يُظَنُّ بِمَا لَيْسَ بِنَسْخٍ أَنَّهُ نَسْخٌ، كَمَا ظَنَّ قَوْمٌ أَنَّ الزِّيَادَةَ عَلَى النَّصِّ نَسْخٌ. وَأَمَّا إِذَا كَانَ الْحُكْمُ ثَابِتًا بِطَرِيقِ التَّوَاتُرِ فَلَيْسَ قَوْلُ الصَّحَابِيِّ بِنَسْخٍ وَإِنْ نَقَلَ أَلْفَاظَ رَسُولِ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ، لِأَنَّ الْآحَادَ لَا يُنْسَخُ بِهِ التَّوَاتُرُ كَمَا تَقَدَّمَ.

Question. A ruling is not abrogated by a Companion’s saying, ‘Such-and-such a ruling was abrogated,’ unless he says, ‘I heard the Messenger of God, God bless him and grant him peace, say this.’ That applies when the ruling was established by a solitary report, because what is not abrogation is often thought to be abrogation, as some have regarded an addition to a text as abrogation. If the ruling was established through mass transmission, a Companion’s statement does not abrogate it even if he transmits the Messenger of God’s own words, God bless him and grant him peace, since solitary transmission does not abrogate mass transmission, as explained earlier.

G-B2-0273 · grammar. «حكم كذا ما لم يقل سمعت رسول الله صلى — «ما لم» أداة الشرط والنفي. [Negative limiting condition: “unless / so long as not”; distinguish independent ما لم from relative ما and from forms inside another word.]

In general, you should know that abrogation has conditions contained implicitly in the definition given earlier. First, what is removed must be a revealed ruling, not a rational judgement such as original freedom from liability (البراءة الأصلية), which is removed by the prescription of acts of worship. Second, abrogation must take place through discourse, rather than the discourse whose ruling is removed being limited by a time whose arrival itself entails this. In general, according to each of the definitions of abrogation we have enumerated, some conditions apply and must be considered, while others fall outside it.

Question. If two decisive texts conflict and it is unknown which abrogates the other, this can be established only by transmission. There are several possible routes. First, the wording of one may indicate the abrogation of the other, as in his saying, peace be upon him, ‘I used to forbid you such-and-such; now do it.’ Second, their respective dates may be known. This may also be known through the community’s consensus that one of them has been abrogated. Other circumstances thought to establish abrogation do not do so, such as a transmitter’s later conversion to Islam, his younger age, or the ending of his companionship with the Prophet.

On the Third Source of Proofs: Consensus

وَالْإِجْمَاعُ هُوَ اتِّفَاقُ الْمُجْتَهِدِينَ مِنْ أُمَّةِ مُحَمَّدٍ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ عَلَى حُكْمٍ شَرْعِيٍّ وَسَوَاءٌ كَانَ ذَلِكَ الْحُكْمُ مِمَّا صَرَّحَ بِهِ صَاحِبُ الشَّرْعِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ فَدَثَرَ وَلَمْ يُنْقَلْ، أَوْ لَمْ يُصَرِّحْ بِهِ، فَوَقَعَ الْإِجْمَاعُ مِنْهُمْ عَلَى ذَلِكَ لِقَرِينَةِ حَالٍ أَوْ دَلِيلٍ أَوْ غَيْرِ ذَلِكَ مِمَّا يُوجِبُ الِاتِّفَاقَ. أَمَّا مَا صَرَّحَ بِهِ النَّبِيُّ عَلَيْهِ السَّلَامُ وَنُقِلَ نَقْلَ تَوَاتُرٍ فَلَا غَنَاءَ لِلْإِجْمَاعِ فِي تَصْحِيحِهِ. وَأَمَّا مَا نُقِلَ نَقْلَ آحَادٍ فَإِنَّ الْإِجْمَاعَ يَنْقُلُهُ مِنْ رُتْبَةِ الظَّنِّ إِلَى رُتْبَةِ الْقَطْعِ.

Consensus (الإجماع) is the agreement of the practitioners of independent judgement within Muḥammad's community, God bless him and grant him peace, on a revealed ruling. This applies whether the bearer of the Law, God bless him and grant him peace, expressly stated the ruling but it was lost and not transmitted, or did not expressly state it, and they reached agreement through a contextual indication, a proof, or something else producing agreement. Consensus adds nothing to the authentication of what the Prophet, peace be upon him, expressly stated and which was transmitted by mass transmission. What was transmitted through solitary routes, however, consensus raises from the level of probability to that of certainty.

Where a ruling was not expressly stated, or was expressly stated but has not reached us, consensus is used as a decisive proof establishing it. Such consensus has in fact occurred in the Law. We can learn of it in one of two ways: if those agreeing are our contemporaries, by meeting them; if they belong to earlier generations, through widespread transmission that produces assent (التصديق).

The proof that consensus is authoritative is drawn from transmitted revelation, the Book and the Sunna. Among its texts is God's saying, 'Whoever opposes the Messenger after guidance has become clear to him and follows a way other than that of the believers, We shall turn him toward what he has chosen,'[Q1] and the remainder of the verse. This is the strongest verse supporting reliance on consensus. There are also His sayings, blessed and exalted: 'Thus We made you a community of the middle, so that you may be witnesses over humankind and the Messenger a witness over you'[Q2]; 'You are the best community brought forth for humankind'[Q3]; and 'Among those We have created is a community that guides by truth and acts justly by it.'[Q4] revealed proof, together they require this community to be esteemed and honored, its way followed and agreement maintained with it, and they forbid opposing it and departing from its congregation.

وَهَذِهِ الْآيَاتُ وَإِنْ لَمْ تَكُنْ وَاحِدَةٌ وَاحِدَةٌ مِنْهَا نَصًّا فِي كَوْنِ الْإِجْمَاعِ دَلِيلًا شَرْعِيًّا فَإِنَّهَا بِمَجْمُوعِهَا تَقْتَضِي لِهَذِهِ الْأُمَّةِ التَّعْظِيمَ وَالتَّشْرِيفَ وَاتِّبَاعَ سَبِيلِهِمْ وَمُوَافَقَتَهُمْ وَالنَّهْيَ عَنْ مُخَالَفَتِهِمْ وَالْخُرُوجِ عَنْ جَمَاعَتِهِمْ.

In general, when these verses are joined to the transmitted reports affirming that this community is protected from error—reports mass-transmitted in meaning even if not in wording—consensus is established with certainty as a revealed proof. Such reports include his saying, peace be upon him: ‘My community does not agree upon error’; his saying, peace be upon him, ‘God would not bring my community into agreement upon error; whoever delights in the spacious heart of Paradise should keep to the congregation’; and his saying, peace be upon him, ‘God’s hand is with the congregation,’ together with the other reports of this kind.

The Paradise clause is separately transmitted in 2165, with من أراد بحبوحة الجنة; al-Tirmidhī calls that report ḥasan ṣaḥīḥ gharīb. ‘God’s hand is with the congregation’ occurs independently in 2166. These distinct reports require separate references even where their clauses are joined in the text. Their individual chains should be distinguished from Ibn Rushd’s claim of recurrent transmission in their shared meaning.

An argument establishing the authority of consensus through reason is weak. Although it is unlikely that many people would agree upon a lie, their agreeing upon an error is not unlikely. Indeed, we say that if only two or three practitioners of independent judgement remained and agreed on an opinion, consensus would be established through them, because the Law attests their protection from error insofar as the name ‘community’ applies to them at that time.

We specified practitioners of independent judgement in its definition because, although ordinary people can be conceived as participating in consensus, this is only in matters transmitted by mass transmission, such as the five prayers, fasting, and almsgiving, or in matters in which they are included as followers of the consensus of those practitioners. Their agreement therefore adds nothing to establishing the correctness of anything. Ordinary people always follow practitioners of independent judgement and agree with them, since this is their duty. There is no objection to calling this consensus, but such consensus is not a source used by a practitioner of independent judgement.

N053 · grammar. مُسْتَصْحَبِينَ is vocalised passively, “included or brought along,” in contrast to the jurists whose agreement is independently probative. If the people of our age agree on something about which their predecessors did not agree, is consensus established? This requires examination. If the preceding generation was silent and no opinion on the matter has been transmitted from it, the consensus of later generations is necessarily established. Discussion arises when a disagreement has been transmitted from the predecessors. Opinions differ, and the question is determined through the verbal forms of the statements affirming this community’s protection from error, such as his saying, peace be upon him, ‘My community will not agree upon misguidance,’ and the other reports we have cited.

Although these cannot be understood with unrestricted generality, since the term ‘community’ cannot here include those yet to come, the term remains authoritative with respect to the generality of what remains within its scope. On what grounds, I wonder, can the preceding generation be excluded from the requirements of consensus, when the remaining general scope of the expression includes them? This is possible only for someone who holds that a general expression (العام), once specified, is no longer authoritative for the generality of what remains.

This disagreement cannot arise for the Ẓāhirīs, because they consider consensus to be solely the Companions’ agreement on a ruling, may God be pleased with them. This follows necessarily from their principles, since they do not allow consensus based on analogy. On their view, consensus therefore arises either from a report that has disappeared and has not reached us, or from indications and circumstances witnessed in the Prophet, God bless him and grant him peace. Such a basis is conceivable only among the Companions. Those who permit consensus to arise from analogy must, however, confront the disagreement just mentioned. We shall explain this in the book on inference, when the meaning they intend by analogy in this discipline has become clear.

فَأَمَّا أَهْلُ الظَّاهِرِ فَلَيْسَ يَتَصَوَّرُ مَعَهُمْ هَذَا الْخِلَافُ لِأَنَّهُمْ يَرَوْنَ الْإِجْمَاعَ إِنَّمَا هُوَ اتِّفَاقُ الصَّحَابَةِ رَضِيَ اللَّهُ عَنْهُمْ عَلَى حُكْمٍ مَا. وَذَلِكَ لَازِمٌ لِأُصُولِهِمْ. لِأَنَّهُمْ لَا يُجَوِّزُونَ الْإِجْمَاعَ بِالْقِيَاسِ. وَإِذَا كَانَ هَذَا هَكَذَا فَإِنَّمَا يَقَعُ الْإِجْمَاعُ عِنْدَهُمْ إِمَّا لِأَثَرٍ قَدْ عَفَا وَلَمْ يَصِلْ إِلَيْنَا، وَإِمَّا لِقَرَائِنَ وَأَحْوَالٍ مُشَاهَدَةٍ مِنْهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ، وَمِثْلُ هَذَا لَا يَتَصَوَّرُ فِي غَيْرِ الصَّحَابَةِ. وَأَمَّا مَنْ يُجَوِّزُ وُقُوعَ الْإِجْمَاعِ عَنِ الْقِيَاسِ فَيَلْزَمُهُ الْخِلَافُ الْمَذْكُورُ وَسَنُبَيِّنُ هَذَا فِي كِتَابِ الِاسْتِنْبَاطِ، إِذَا تَبَيَّنَ مَا هُوَ الْمَعْنَى الَّذِي يَعْنُونَهُ بِالْقِيَاسِ فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ.

Does the term ‘community’ also include every individual practitioner of independent judgement in that age, so that a single dissenter prevents consensus, or does it mean the majority? The apparent sense of the transmitted formulas includes them all. In general, examination of these conditions of consensus seems to be a matter for independent judgement. There is also disagreement when an opinion is transmitted from most of them and the rest are silent. The more evident view, as al-Shāfiʿī says, is that a speaker’s position should not be attributed to someone silent—unless the silent persons’ circumstances indicate that their silence may have expressed approval of, and agreement with, that opinion.

A person may remain silent for many reasons: he may have no opinion on the matter at that time; or, if he has an opinion, obstacles may prevent him from stating it. He may think that the ruling is open to independent judgement, or that every practitioner of independent judgement is correct; he may be inhibited by awe, or by other accompanying circumstances.

وَإِذَا كَانَ هَذَا هَكَذَا وَكَانَ مِنْ شَرْطِ الْإِجْمَاعِ اتِّفَاقُ جَمِيعِ الْمُجْتَهِدِينَ الْمَوْجُودِينَ فِي ذَلِكَ الْعَصْرِ، فَمَنْ رَأَى إِجْمَاعَ أَهْلِ الْمَدِينَةِ حُجَّةً لِأَنَّهُمُ الْأَكْثَرُ فِي أَوَّلِ الْإِسْلَامِ فَلَا مَعْنَى لَهُ.

Since this is so, and consensus requires agreement among all practitioners of independent judgement existing in the age, there is no basis for treating the agreement of the people of Medina as authoritative because they were the majority at the beginning of Islam.

The discerning Mālikīs, however, regard it as authoritative on the ground of transmission. If an argument for its authority is to be built on this, it seems to me that the transmission of the practice must be explicitly stated, generation after generation, until it reaches the Messenger of God's time, God bless him and grant him peace. It would then be authoritative through his approval, God bless him and grant him peace. For example, they would say, 'This is how we found our fathers acting,' tracing this back to the Messenger of God's time, God bless him and grant him peace.

Such was the encounter between Mālik and Abū Yūsuf in al-Rashīd's presence concerning the ṣāʿ measure. If this requirement is neither imposed nor carefully maintained, their agreement may concern a practice forced upon them by some caliph or governor. In general, it is clear that reaching a legal judgement on this basis does not refer back to a source established with certainty in the Law, as a probable indication ought to do—unless transmission of the practice is explicitly stated as we have described, in which case it belongs to transmitted evidence.

The requirement that the generation of practitioners of independent judgement must die out without disagreement intervening is not entailed by the wording of the reports establishing the authority of consensus. Rather, anyone who dissents after consensus has existed for even a single moment is disregarded and is certainly in error.

This is rational evidence for presuming the continuation (الاستصحاب) of freedom from obligations and the absence of blame for people where no command or prohibition has been received: for example, the absence of an obligation to perform a sixth prayer, eating during Shawwāl, and the like. In general, calling this a proof is a loose use of language. They were led to it by straining to make revealed matters require proof for both negation and affirmation, just as rational matters do. Thus you see them wavering: sometimes they say, ‘The absence of proof is proof’; sometimes, ‘It is established by analogy or consensus that anything for which no proof is found in the Law original freedom from liability is presumed to continue.’

وَهُوَ دَلِيلُ الْعَقْلِ فِي اسْتِصْحَابِ بَرَاءَةِ الذِّمَّةِ عَنِ الْوَاجِبَاتِ، وَسُقُوطِ الْحَرَجِ عَنِ الْخَلْقِ فِيمَا لَمْ يَأْتِ فِيهِ أَمْرٌ أَوْ نَهْيٌ، كَسُقُوطِ الصَّلَاةِ السَّادِسَةِ مَثَلًا، وَأَكْلِ شَوَّالٍ وَمَا أَشْبَهَ ذَلِكَ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَتَسْمِيَةُ هَذَا دَلِيلًا تَجُوزُ فِيهِ الْعِبَارَةُ. وَالَّذِي أَصَارَهُمْ إِلَى هَذَا تَكَلُّفُهُمْ أَنْ يَجْعَلُوا السَّمْعِيَّاتِ فِي وُجُوبِ الدَّلِيلِ فِي حَالَتَيِ النَّفْيِ وَالْإِثْبَاتِ كَوُجُوبِ ذَلِكَ فِي الْعَقْلِيَّاتِ، حَتَّى تَرَاهُمْ يَضْطَرِبُونَ، فَمَرَّةً يَقُولُونَ: «عَدَمُ الدَّلِيلِ دَلِيلٌ»، وَمَرَّةً يَقُولُونَ: «ثَبَتَ بِالْقِيَاسِ أَوْ بِالْإِجْمَاعِ أَنَّ مَا لَمْ يُلْفَ دَلِيلٌ عَلَيْهِ فِي الشَّرْعِ فَتُسْتَصْحَبُ فِيهِ الْبَرَاءَةُ الْأَصْلِيَّةُ».

The correct view is otherwise. Anything whose existence can be established only by revelation is presumed absent until something to the contrary is received; its absence is the better-known state. In such a case, either no proof at all should be demanded from people, or, if proof is demanded, it should be less than that demanded from someone affirming its existence, as with a claimant and a defendant.

وَالِاسْتِصْحَابُ فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ يُطْلَقُ عَلَى وُجُوهٍ: أَحَدُهَا اسْتِصْحَابُ الْبَرَاءَةِ الْأَصْلِيَّةِ الَّذِي تَقَدَّمَ. وَالثَّانِي اسْتِصْحَابُ الْعُمُومِ حَتَّى يَرِدَ تَخْصِيصٌ. وَالثَّالِثُ اسْتِصْحَابُ النَّصِّ حَتَّى يَرِدَ نَسْخٌ. وَالرَّابِعُ اسْتِصْحَابُ حُكْمٍ عِنْدَ أَمْرٍ قَرَنَهُ الشَّرْعُ بِهِ لِتَكَرُّرِ ذَلِكَ الْأَمْرِ. وَالْخَامِسُ اسْتِصْحَابُ الْإِجْمَاعِ، أَوْ بِالْجُمْلَةِ الْحُكْمِ الشَّرْعِيِّ الثَّابِتِ بِالنَّقْلِ فِي مَوْضِعٍ يُظَنُّ أَنَّ الْمَحْكُومَ عَلَيْهِ قَدْ تَغَيَّرَ حُكْمُهُ لِتَغَيُّرِهِ فِي نَفْسِهِ، كَبَيْعِ أُمِّ الْوَلَدِ وَمَا أَشْبَهَ ذَلِكَ.

Presumption of continuity (الاستصحاب) has several applications in this discipline. First is the continuation of original freedom from liability (البراءة الأصلية), discussed earlier. Second is retaining general scope until a specification is received. Third is retaining the text until abrogation is received. Fourth is retaining a ruling when the circumstance to which the Law attached it recurs. Fifth is retaining consensus—or, more generally, a revealed ruling established by transmission—in a case where the subject's ruling is thought to have changed because the subject itself has changed, as with selling a slave woman who has borne her master a child, and similar cases.

وَهَذَا الِاسْتِصْحَابَ يَرَاهُ أَهْلُ الظَّاهِرِ وَهُمْ لَازِمُونَ فِي ذَلِكَ لِأُصُولِهِمْ، لِأَنَّ مَنْ لَا يُجَوِّزُ فِي الشَّرْعِ النَّوْعَ مِنَ النَّظَرِ الَّذِي يُسَمَّى عِنْدَ أَهْلِ هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ بِالْقِيَاسِ، فَالْأَشْيَاءُ كَمَا أَنَّهَا عِنْدَهُمْ عَلَى الْبَرَاءَةِ الْأَصْلِيَّةِ حَتَّى يَرِدَ دَلِيلُ السَّمْعِ، كَذَلِكَ إِذَا وَرَدَ دَلِيلُ الشَّرْعِ بَقِيَ عَلَى حُكْمِهِ وَإِنْ تَغَيَّرَتْ أَوْصَافُهُ حَتَّى يَرِدَ دَلِيلُ الِارْتِفَاعِ.

The Ẓāhirīs accept this presumption of continuity and thereby remain consistent with their principles. Those who do not allow in the Law the kind of reasoning called analogy by practitioners of this discipline hold that things remain in their original freedom from liability until revealed evidence is received. Similarly, once revealed evidence is received, the subject retains its ruling even if its attributes change, until evidence removing the ruling is received.

It is as though the situation here were the reverse of presuming original freedom from liability. There, absence was more evident, so proof was required from whoever affirmed; here, existence is more evident, so proof is required from whoever denies. Someone who accepts analogy in the Law must reject this kind of continuity, since he can say: we are charged to reason by analogy where there is no text. This subject's attribute has changed, so it has the status of a case for which no text has been received, because a change of attribute requires a change of ruling.

Other sources may be supposed to exist, and we shall mention them. One is a Companion's statement, which is thought authoritative but is not. One may not follow uncritically someone whose protection from error has not been established; such protection is established only by a miracle, or by the bearer of a miracle declaring that the person is protected from error. Opinions differ: some confine this authority to particular Companions; others extend it to every Companion. In general, a Companion is one practitioner of independent judgement among others. The mind nevertheless inclines more readily to their opinions because of the indications accompanying them, and these indications led those who regard their statements as authoritative to that view.

Another is the law of those before us. The proof that this is not a source is that, were it a source, transmitting it would be a collective obligation. It cannot be right that the community should, at any time, lose knowledge of a collective obligation, given the proof of its protection from error. Had its transmission been a collective obligation, the Companions would have reported it and it would have been transmitted down to the present. As for provisions of earlier laws contained in the Book and commanded of us, they are commanded of us insofar as they are in the Book, not insofar as they are the law of those before us.

Others are juristic preference and consideration of welfare. If these mean a kind of analogy, evident or subtle, permissible in the Law in the manner allowed by its proponents, then it is a source on their view. If they do not mean that, they are not a source. In general, the Law has encouraged consideration of benefits, but to a certain extent and within a certain limit: where it has attested that they, or their kind, constitute a benefit. Whether analogy itself is a source will be discussed later.

This part concerns the inquiry most distinctive of this science, as we explained earlier. It is divided according to the things through which the Prophet's meaning is understood, God bless him and grant him peace: either wording or an indication (قرينة).

وَهَذَا الْجُزْءُ هُوَ الَّذِي النَّظَرُ فِيهِ أَخَصُّ بِهَذَا الْعِلْمِ عَلَى مَا قَدَّمْنَا فِيمَا سَلَفَ، وَهُوَ يَنْقَسِمُ بِحَسَبِ الْأَشْيَاءِ الَّتِي يَقَعُ بِهَا الْفَهْمُ عَنِ النَّبِيِّ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ، وَذَلِكَ إِمَّا لَفْظٌ أَوْ قَرِينَةٌ.

Wording is divided into what indicates a ruling through its verbal form, and what indicates it through its understood import and intelligible meaning.

BA002 · scholarship. In distinguishing verbal form from understood/intelligible import, read mafhūm and maʿqūl together here rather than treating them as two independently stipulated methods. Bou Akl highlights Ibn Rushd's compression of al-Ghazālī's three ways of indication (ṣīgha, mafhūm, maʿqūl) into an opposition between form and intended import. His revised-edition citation to this exact sentence is 2015 §176, not the §149 of this al-ʿAlawī-based reader. ## 1. On Unambiguous and Indeterminate Wording in Respect of Verbal Form

١) الْقَوْلُ فِي النَّصِّ وَالْمُجْمَلِ مِنْ جِهَةِ الصِّيغَةِ

Let us begin by examining wording. We say: practitioners of this discipline customarily divide expressions and statements into the indeterminate (المجمل), the unambiguous (النص), what has an apparent meaning (الظاهر), and what is interpreted beyond that apparent meaning (المؤول). We should examine each division and explain what they signify by each. We say:

Expressions are either simple or compound. A simple expression is a noun, a verb, or a particle. A compound expression is composed of these, with a part of it signifying part of its meaning. Some compound expressions do not independently convey a complete meaning; others do. The latter divide into statements whose composition admits truth or falsehood, and ⟨utterances which do not⟩. The latter include commands, prohibitions, requests, entreaties, and calls.

إِلَى مَا تَرْكِيبُهُ تَرْكِيبٌ يَدْخُلُهُ الصِّدْقُ وَالْكَذِبُ ⟨وَإِلَى مَا لَا يَدْخُلُ ذَلِكَ⟩ فِيهِ، وَهَذَا يَنْقَسِمُ إِلَى أَمْرٍ وَنَهْيٍ وَطَلِبَةٍ وَتَضَرُّعٍ وَنِدَاءٍ.

N059 · lexical. طَلِبَة, "a request," is vocalized on the pattern كَلِمَة, following al-Fayyūmī, al-Miṣbāḥ al-munīr, s.v. طلب. This is not طَلَبَة, the plural "students." The same choice is used in §197. ↗

Among expressions—whether nouns, particles, or verbs, simple or compound—some invariably convey one meaning through their forms in every context. These constitute part of what is meant by unambiguous wording (النص) in this discipline; let us call it unambiguous wording in respect of form. Others can convey more than one meaning. If they signify all these meanings equally, so that one can be understood only through proof or an indication, they constitute part of what this discipline calls indeterminate wording (المجمل); let us call it indeterminate wording in respect of form.

وَمِنْ هَذِهِ الْأَلْفَاظِ مَا يُقَالُ مِنْ أَوَّلِ الْأَمْرِ عَلَى شَيْءٍ مِنْهَا وَيَكُونُ أَشْهَرَ فِي الدَّلَالَةِ عَلَيْهِ، ثُمَّ يُسْتَعَارُ حِينًا مَا لِشَيْءٍ آخَرَ لِشَبَهِهِ بِالْمَعْنَى الْأَوَّلِ، أَوْ يُبْدَلُ بَعْضُهَا مَكَانَ بَعْضٍ اتِّكَالًا فِي ذَلِكَ عَلَى قَرِينَةٍ تُفْهِمُ الْمَعْنَى الْمُسْتَعَارَ أَوِ الْمُبْدَلَ. وَهَذِهِ إِذَا وَرَدَتْ خِلْوًا مِنَ الْقَرَائِنِ حُمِلَتْ عَلَى وَضْعِهَا الْأَوَّلِ، وَهِيَ بَعْضُ مَا يَعْنُونَ فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ بِالظَّاهِرِ، وَلْنُسَمِّهِ نَحْنُ عَلَى عَادَتِنَا الظَّاهِرَ مِنْ جِهَةِ الصِّيَغِ. وَإِذَا دَلَّتِ الْقَرَائِنُ عَلَى اسْتِعَارَتِهَا أَوْ تَبْدِيلِهَا فَهُوَ بَعْضُ مَا يُسَمَّى فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ مُؤَوَّلًا، وَلْنُسَمِّهِ الْمُؤَوَّلَ مِنْ جِهَةِ الصِّيَغِ.

Some expressions originally apply to one thing and signify it more commonly, but are later transferred to something else because it resembles the original meaning; or one expression is substituted for another, relying on an indication to disclose the transferred or substituted meaning. When such expressions occur without accompanying indications, they are understood according to their original assignment. These constitute part of what this discipline calls apparent wording (الظاهر); following our practice, let us call it apparent wording in respect of form. When indications establish transfer or substitution, this constitutes part of what the discipline calls interpreted wording (المؤول); let us call it interpreted wording in respect of form.

This class includes terms established by specialised usage: terms originally assigned to certain things, then transferred in the Law to other things because of their resemblance to the original meanings or some relation to them. When these occur in the Law, their apparent meanings are the legal meanings; they are understood in their ordinary linguistic meanings only through interpretation.

G-B2-0328 · grammar. «والألفاظ، سواء كانت أسماء أو حروفا أو أفعالا أو مفردة أو مركبة — أسلوب التسوية». [Whether one alternative or another; both possibilities fall under the same assessment.]

Some expressions and statements signify through their understood imports, rather than through their verbal forms, because they have been altered by abridgement and omission or addition, and likewise by substitution and transfer. This class of expressions is called figurative usage (مجاز).

وَمِنْ هَذِهِ الْأَلْفَاظِ وَالْأَقَاوِيلِ مَا تَدُلُّ بِمَفْهُومَاتِهَا لَا بِصِيَغِهَا وَذَلِكَ لِتَغْيِيرِهَا بِالنَّقْصِ وَالْحَذْفِ أَوِ الزِّيَادَةِ، وَكَذَلِكَ أَيْضًا بِالتَّبْدِيلِ وَالِاسْتِعَارَةِ. وَهَذَا الصِّنْفُ مِنَ الْأَلْفَاظِ يُسَمَّى مَجَازًا.

Within these, too, there are counterparts to the unambiguous, the indeterminate, the apparent, and the interpreted; but they possess these characteristics through accompanying indications, not through their forms. Thus ‘unambiguous wording’ as used in this discipline signifies two kinds: what is unambiguous in respect of form and what is unambiguous in respect of understood import. The apparent, the indeterminate, and the interpreted admit the same division.

This division of expressions into these classes seems to be the useful one in this discipline. We should examine them following the practitioners’ customary procedure, explain the authority of each as a revealed proof, and investigate statements thought to be uncertain between more than one of these classes. Let us begin with the divisions belonging to an expression by virtue of its form, and among these with simple expressions and expressions compounded as assertions.

وَيُشْبِهُ أَنْ تَكُونَ قِسْمَةُ الْأَلْفَاظِ إِلَى هَذِهِ الْأَصْنَافِ هِيَ النَّافِعَةَ فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ. وَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ نَنْظُرَ فِيهَا عَلَى عَادَتِهِمْ، وَنُبَيِّنَ فِي وَاحِدٍ وَاحِدٍ مِنْهَا كَوْنَهُ دَلِيلًا شَرْعِيًّا، وَنَفْحَصَ عَمَّا يُظَنُّ بِهِ مِنَ الْأَقَاوِيلِ أَنَّهُ مُتَرَدِّدٌ بَيْنَ أَكْثَرَ مِنْ صِنْفٍ وَاحِدٍ مِنْ هَذِهِ الْأَصْنَافِ. وَلْنَبْدَأْ مِنْ هَذِهِ الْأَقْسَامِ بِمَا يُوجَدُ لِلَّفْظِ مِنْ جِهَةِ صِيغَتِهِ وَمِنْ هَذِهِ فِي الْمُفْرَدَةِ وَالْمُرَكَّبَةِ تَرْكِيبَ إِخْبَارٍ.

As we have said, wording is unambiguous only when it conveys one meaning in every context. This occurs in both simple and compound expressions. Examples of simple expressions are ‘human being,’ ‘horse,’ and ‘animal.’ A compound example is God’s saying, ‘Say: He is God, One.’[Q1] In general, this includes every expression composed of unambiguous simple expressions, provided that its pronouns cannot refer to more than one meaning.

Indeterminate wording in respect of form is the opposite. Among simple expressions, an example is ʿayn, used equivocally for a spring of water, the eye of a balance, the eye with which one sees, and other things. A term may even signify a thing and its opposite, as qurʾ sometimes means a period of purity and sometimes menstruation. Indeterminacy in composition occurs in expressions compounded from such terms, or where the pronouns connecting the statement are ambiguous. An example is His saying, blessed and exalted, ‘Or the one in whose hand is the marriage bond remits it’[Q1]: the pronoun here may refer either to the guardian or to the husband.

In this discipline they apply the term ‘clarification’ to everything through which rulings may be established and understanding produced: an expression’s form, its understood import, and the other things enumerated earlier, according to their degrees in producing assent (التصديق). Indeterminate wording is not clarification, by consensus, and establishes no ruling at all. A question arises here: may an instruction be addressed through indeterminate wording pending clarification, or through apparent wording pending specification, at the time when clarification is needed? This is the question they designate as the permissibility of delaying clarification beyond the time of need. Some permit it, while others forbid it. Our account is as follows.

N062 · textual. The print at p. 104 says عن وقت الحاجة (‘beyond the time of need’), whereas §163 repeatedly distinguishes delay إلى وقت الحاجة (‘until the time of need’) and ends by denying any dispute over delay beyond it. The translation preserves the edition’s distinct prepositions rather than silently regularising the problem’s label.

وَهَذِهِ الْمَسْأَلَةُ الْفَحْصُ عَنْهَا لُغَوِيٌّ، فَلِذَلِكَ يَنْبَغِي أَنْ نَجْعَلَ نَظَرَنَا فِيهَا مِنَ الْجِهَةِ الَّتِي ننظر فِي اللُّغَةِ فَنَقُولُ: إِنَّهُ إِذَا

Inquiry into this question is linguistic, so we should examine it from the standpoint appropriate to language. Surveying Arabic speech shows that Arabs address others with an equivocal term only where evidence indicates the intended meaning from among its other meanings, whether through a readily available contextual indication or something present in the wording itself. In God's saying, blessed and exalted, 'Then it became like al-ṣarīm,'[Q1] preceding descriptions of the thing compared indicate that al-ṣarīm here means night. Similarly, when they mean morning by al-ṣarīm, they say 'the light of al-ṣarīm,' or something comparable.

In general, addressing someone with indeterminate expressions while knowing with certainty that they remain indeterminate has never occurred; if it did, it would be idle speech. A speaker may, however, use an indeterminate term believing it very likely that he will be understood, relying on accompanying indications, while the addressee fails to understand him. The addressee may then seek clarification, and the speaker provide it. If the addressee sees that fulfilment of what he was addressed with is not required at that moment, he postpones his question until the time of need, and clarification is correspondingly delayed.

But for a speaker to address someone in indeterminate expressions, knowing with certainty that they are indeterminate and that the addressee understands nothing by them, while relying on explaining the intended meaning when the time of need arrives—this, as we have said, has never occurred among Arabs or anyone else. In general, such indeterminate address occurs only when a riddle or mockery of the addressee's disposition is intended. The same holds of wording indeterminate in its understood import. The Law has introduced no specialised convention altering this.

Apparent wording in respect of form also has, in my view, the same status as an equivocal term. This concerns what originally applies to something and has its apparent meaning in it, but is later transferred to another thing because of resemblance to the first meaning or some relation to it. When an Arab uses the word ‘sky’ without qualification, he is invariably understood to mean the starry sky. If he means rain, he indicates this through a contextual clue, as in ‘We kept treading the sky until we reached you,’ or ‘When the sky falls upon a people’s land.’

وَإِلَّا مَتَى خُوطِبَ بِمِثْلِ هَذِهِ الْأَسْمَاءِ وَأُطْلِقَتْ إِطْلَاقًا، وَالْمُرَادُ بِهَا غَيْرُ مَا هِيَ رَاتِبَةٌ عَلَيْهِ، لَمْ يَقَعْ ذَلِكَ إِلَّا غَلَطًا، وَإِنْ قُصِدَ ذَلِكَ كَانَ تَغْلِيطًا. هَذَا إِذَا كَانَ وَقْتُ الْحَاجَةِ. وَأَمَّا إِنْ لَمْ يَكُنْ وَقْتُ الْحَاجَةِ فَأَيُّ فَائِدَةٍ لِمُخَاطَبَةٍ يَعْتَقِدُ الْإِنْسَانُ مِنْهَا خِلَافَ مَا يَأْتِي بِهِ الْبَيَانُ. وَيُشْبِهُ أَنْ تكون كَذَلِكَ الظَّاهِرُ مِنْ جِهَةِ الْمَفْهُومِ.

Otherwise, whenever such terms are used without qualification while something other than their established meaning is intended, this can occur only as an error; if deliberate, it is misleading. This concerns the time of need. If it is not yet the time of need, what benefit is there in speech that makes a person believe the opposite of what the subsequent clarification will convey? Apparent wording in respect of understood import seems to stand on the same footing.

As for apparent wording involving substitution (الإبدال) —general expressions by which something falling under them is intended—addressing people with these expressions without qualification or an accompanying indication identifying the specific meaning intended, deliberately postponing clarification until the time of need, does occur in language and in the Law. This is so when the addressees understand from contextual indications that there remains a question to ask, and that the speaker did not intend to confine himself to what he has already said.

God’s saying, mighty and majestic, ‘God commands you to slaughter a cow,’Q1 was of this kind. They kept asking, and the answers supplied specifications until the particular cow was identified for themQ1. If the addressees do not know from contextual indications that there is a question to ask, this does not occur. It is permissible with general wording, but not with indeterminate wording or the first kind of apparent wording, because someone who knows a thing through a universal description (كلي) knows it in some respect, while awaiting a more specific knowledge of it.

وَكَثِيرًا مَا تَكُونُ الْأَقَاوِيلُ الْمُؤَلَّفَةُ عَنْ مِثْلِ هَذِهِ أَبْيَنَ مِنَ الْأَسْمَاءِ أَوْ مُضْطَرًّا إِلَيْهَا فِيمَا لَمْ تَكُنْ لَهَا أَسْمَاءٌ، كَمَا اتَّفَقَ فِي الْبَقَرَةِ الْمَأْمُورِ بِذَبْحِهَا. وَعَلَى هَذَا تَجُوزُ الْمُخَاطَبَةُ بِالْأَسْمَاءِ الْعُرْفِيَّةِ قَبْلَ فَهْمِ الْمَعَانِي الَّتِي يَدُلُّ عَلَيْهَا بِتِلْكَ الْأَسْمَاءِ، اتِّكَالًا عَلَى أَنَّ الْمُخَاطَبِينَ يَعْلَمُونَ أَنَّ تِلْكَ الْأَسْمَاءَ تَدُلُّ عَلَى مَعَانٍ زَائِدَةٍ إِلَى مَا كَانَتْ تَدُلُّ عَلَيْهِ فِي الْوَضْعِ الْأَوَّلِ، وَفَائِدَةُ ذَلِكَ الْعَزْمُ عَلَى الْأَمْرِ بِتَأَخُّرِ الْبَيَانِ إِلَى وَقْتِ الْحَاجَةِ، كَالْأَمْرِ بِالزَّكَاةِ وَالْحَجِّ قَبْلَ وُجُوبِهِمَا.

Statements composed of such descriptions are often clearer than names, or indispensable for things that have no names, as with the cow they were commanded to slaughter. On this basis, terms established by specialised usage may be used before the meanings signified by them are understood, relying on the addressees' knowledge that those terms signify meanings additional to their original assignment. The benefit is to produce resolve to obey the command even while its detailed clarification is deferred until the time of need—as with commanding almsgiving and pilgrimage before they become obligatory.

If you examine the cases cited by those who permit delaying clarification until the time of need without distinguishing among cases, you will find them included in the classes we have enumerated. Likewise, if you examine the evidence cited by those who [do not] permit it, you will find that it concerns wholly indeterminate wording admitting alternatives, and the first kind of apparent wording. In general, both positions, taken without qualification, are partly false, as positions supported by an induction that does not exhaust all particulars are liable to be false. That clarification may not be delayed beyond the time of need, however, is undisputed.

وَإِذْ قُلْنَا فِي الْمُجْمَلِ وَالنَّصِّ، فَلْنَقُلْ فِي الظَّاهِرِ وَالْمُؤَوَّلِ.

Having discussed indeterminate and unambiguous wording, let us turn to apparent and interpreted wording.

٢) الْقَوْلُ فِي الظَّاهِرِ وَالْمُؤَوَّلِ مِنْ جِهَةِ الصِّيغَةِ

2. On Apparent and Interpreted Wording in Respect of Verbal Form

وَالظَّاهِرُ كَمَا قُلْنَا مِنْ جِهَةِ الصِّيغَةِ قِسْمَانِ: أَحَدُهُمَا الْأَلْفَاظُ الْمَقُولَةُ مِنْ أَوَّلِ الْأَمْرِ عَلَى شَيْءٍ ثُمَّ اسْتُعِيرَتْ لِغَيْرِهِ لِتَشَابُهٍ بَيْنَهُمَا أَوْ لِتَعَلُّقٍ بِوَجْهٍ مِنْ أَوْجُهِ التَّعَلُّقِ. أَمَّا الَّذِي اسْتُعِيرَ لِتَشَابُهٍ بَيْنَهُمَا فَمِثْلُ تَسْمِيَتِهِمُ الْفِرَاشَ عُشًّا، وَأَمَّا الَّذِي اسْتُعِيرَ لِتَعَلُّقِهِ بِوَجْهٍ آخَرَ فَكَتَسْمِيَتِهِمُ النَّبْتَ نَدًى، لِأَنَّهُ عَنِ النَّدَى يَكُونُ. وَمِنْ هَذَا الصِّنْفِ الْكِنَايَةُ، كَتَعْبِيرِهِمْ عَنِ الرَّجِيعِ بِالْغَائِطِ وَعَنِ النِّكَاحِ بِالْمَسِيسِ.

As we have said, apparent wording in respect of form is of two kinds. The first comprises expressions originally applied to one thing, then transferred to another because of resemblance or some relation between them. Transfer through resemblance is exemplified by calling a bed a ‘nest’; transfer through another relation, by calling vegetation ‘dew,’ because it arises from dew. This class includes indirect expression, such as referring to excrement as ‘the low ground’ and sexual intercourse as ‘touching.’

SC2015-106 · textual. أ «أو لتعلق بوجه»؛ ع «أو تعلق بوجه». لام التعليل [on account of another connection between the two meanings] [Bou Akl 2015, Arabic p. 250, critical apparatus].

وَأَمَّا الْقِسْمُ الثَّانِي مِنْ أَقْسَامِ الْأَلْفَاظِ الظَّاهِرَةِ فَهِيَ الْمُبْدَلَةُ، وَنَعْنِي هَهُنَا بِالْمُبْدَلَةِ إِبْدَالَ الْكُلِّيِّ مَكَانَ الْجُزْئِيِّ، وَالْجُزْئِيِّ مَكَانَ الْكُلِّيِّ. وَعَلَى التَّحْقِيقِ فَالتَّبْدِيلُ يَلْحَقُ جَمِيعَ الْأَلْفَاظِ الْمُسْتَعَارَةِ، ثُمَّ تَنْقَسِمُ هَذِهِ الْأَقْسَامَ الَّتِي أَحْصَيْنَاهَا، لَكِنْ رَأَيْنَا أَنْ نَخُصَّ هَذَا الصِّنْفَ بِاسْمِ التَّبْدِيلِ، أَعْنِي الْكُلِّيَّ وَالْجُزْئِيَّ، وَإِنْ كَانَ فِي الْحَقِيقَةِ كُلُّ مُبْدَلٍ مُسْتَعَارٌ وَكُلُّ مُسْتَعَارٍ مُبْدَلٌ.

The second class of apparent expressions consists of substituted expressions. By substitution here we mean placing the universal (الكلي) in place of the particular (الجزئي), or the particular in place of the universal. Strictly speaking, substitution applies to all transferred expressions, which are then divided into the classes we have enumerated. We have nevertheless chosen to reserve the name ‘substitution’ (التبديل) for this class, namely the universal and the particular, although in reality everything substituted is transferred, and everything transferred is substituted.

N067 · translation. Ibdāl/tabdīl is translated “substitution” in accordance with the explicit definition at p. 107. The universal/particular relation is preserved throughout the following discussion.

وَهَذَانِ الصِّنْفَانِ إِذَا وَرَدَا بِإِطْلَاقٍ فِي الشَّرْعِ حُمِلَا عَلَى ظَاهِرِهِمَا حَتَّى يَدُلَّ الدَّلِيلُ عَلَى غَيْرِ ذَلِكَ، وَهُوَ حَمْلُهُمَا عَلَى الْمَعْنَى الْمُسْتَعَارِ، وَهُوَ الْمُسَمَّى تَأْوِيلًا. وَكَوْنُ هَذِهِ الْأَلْفَاظِ ظَاهِرَةً فِي هَذِهِ الدَّلَالَاتِ يُعْرَفُ ذَلِكَ ضَرُورَةً مِنَ اسْتِقْرَاءِ اللُّغَةِ. وَكَوْنُهَا دَلِيلًا شَرْعِيًّا يُعْرَفُ بِإِجْمَاعِ الصَّحَابَةِ عَلَى الْأَخْذِ بِالظَّوَاهِرِ، وَأَنَّ الشَّرْعَ لَمْ يَتَصَرَّفْ فِي ذَلِكَ بِوَضْعٍ عُرْفِيٍّ.

When these two classes occur without qualification in the Law, they are understood in their apparent meanings until evidence indicates otherwise—that is, indicates that they should be understood in a transferred meaning, which is what is called interpretation (تأويل). That these expressions have these apparent significations is known necessarily through a survey of language. Their authority as revealed proof is known through the Companions’ consensus on adopting apparent meanings and through the fact that the Law has introduced no specialised convention altering this.

Moreover, if we did not adopt apparent meanings, many acts of worship would lapse, because وَأَيْضًا فَلَوْ لَمْ نَصِرْ إِلَى الْأَخْذِ بِالظَّوَاهِرِ لَكَانَ سَيَبْطُلُ كَثِيرٌ مِنَ الْعِبَادَاتِ لِأَنَّ النُّصُوصَ مُعْوِزَةٌ جِدًّا. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ الضَّرُورَةُ الدَّاعِيَةُ إِلَى الْعَمَلِ بِأَخْبَارِ الْآحَادِ هِيَ هَهُنَا الضَّرُورَةُ الدَّاعِيَةُ إِلَى الْعَمَلِ بِظَوَاهِرِ الْأَلْفَاظِ. وَهَذِهِ الْأَلْفَاظُ الظَّاهِرَةُ لَهَا مَرَاتِبُ فِي الظُّهُورِ. وَكُلَّمَا كَانَ اللَّفْظُ أَظْهَرَ احْتِيجَ فِي تَأْوِيلِهِ إِلَى دَلِيلٍ أَقْوَى، وَبِالْعَكْسِ مَتَى كَانَ اللَّفْظُ قَلِيلَ الظُّهُورِ انْصَرَفَ إِلَى التَّأْوِيلِ بِأَيْسَرِ دَلِيلٍ. وَلْنَضْرِبْ فِي ذَلِكَ ثَلَاثَةَ أَمْثِلَةٍ، وَاحِدًا فِي الرُّتْبَةِ الْأُولَى وَثَانِيًا فِي الرُّتْبَةِ الْوُسْطَى وَثَالِثًا فِي الْمَرْتَبَةِ الْأَخِيرَةِ، وَذَلِكَ فِي صِنْفَيِ الظَّاهِرِ جَمِيعًا.

unambiguous texts (النصوص) are extremely scarce. The necessity calling for action upon solitary reports is here the necessity calling for action upon the apparent meanings of expressions. These expressions admit degrees of apparentness: the stronger an expression's apparent meaning, the stronger the evidence required to interpret it otherwise; conversely, the weaker its apparent meaning, the slighter the evidence sufficient for interpretation. Let us give three examples, one at the first degree, a second at the intermediate degree, and a third at the last degree, for both classes of apparent wording.

At the first degree among transferred terms is the interpretation of God's saying, mighty and majestic, 'Children of Adam, We have sent down upon you clothing to cover your nakedness,'[Q1] as meaning rain by 'clothing.' Such an interpretation requires evidence, since 'clothing' very strongly signifies what covers a person. The second degree is exemplified by interpreting God's saying, 'We sent Our messengers with clear proofs and sent down with them the Book and the balance,'[Q2] as meaning justice by 'the balance.'

The third degree is exemplified by God's saying, 'Or you have touched women.'[Q3] Some jurists understand this as touching with the hand; others as sexual intercourse. Although its apparent meaning is touching with the hand, it can quite plausibly mean intercourse, since this accords with Arab usage, and God Most High has referred indirectly to intercourse by massīs[Q4], which has the meaning of touching.

In general, degrees of apparentness in expressions depend on frequency or rarity of use. If use in the transferred meaning becomes as frequent as use in the original meaning, the expression stands equivocally between the first and second meanings and is indeterminate. The less frequently it is used in the second meaning, the more apparent it is in the first.

Interpretation of apparent wording may be self-evident or may require an explanation; it may amount to predominant probability or to certainty. A self-evident and certain example is their saying, ‘We kept treading the sky until we reached you.’ An example made clear by decisive proof is God’s saying, ‘The All-Merciful is established over the Throne’[Q1]: decisive proof has established that ‘being established’ here is not occupying a place.

The second class of apparent wording, which we called substituted wording, also has two kinds: universal wording (الكلي) and particular wording (الجزئي). Let us first examine the universal, which is the general (العام). General wording has many forms. Some dispute that expressions signify generality and that, when unqualified, they apparently encompass everything falling under them. Their objection has no basis: the matter is evident, and indeed shared by all tongues and languages. The Law has introduced no specialised convention changing it. The argument establishing its authority as revealed proof is the argument establishing the authority of apparent wording as such, which has already been given.

BA15-R06 · textual. Bou Akl 2015 Arabic p.254, French p.255 supplies a copula ⟨kāna⟩ in discussion of general wording whose unqualified use apparently encompasses its extension. This is predominantly grammatical rather than a new legal doctrine.

BA-X108 · textual. قراءة [أ] عند بو عقل «يدخل» في موضع «يدل» من طبعة [ع]. [Escorial reading according to Bou Akl 2015, Arabic p. 254; the earlier edition reads differently.]

These expressions have many forms. They include plural nouns, with or without the definite article; names of genera, species, and classes when they have the definite article and do not end in the feminine ending, such as ‘the fruit,’ ‘the date palm,’ and ‘the woman’; man and mā (‘whoever’ and ‘whatever’) when used ⟨in conditional and consequential clauses⟩, together with ayna and matā (‘wherever’ and ‘whenever’); negative particles; and emphatic expressions such as ‘all of them’ and ‘every one.’

When these forms are used without qualification, they are generally understood in their full generality until evidence establishes a specification. They, too, admit degrees of apparentness, as did the first class. Their interpretive proofs have corresponding degrees, because evidence for interpretation must always signify more strongly than the expression’s form. Examples at the respective degrees follow.

At the first degree of apparentness is his saying, God bless him and grant him peace, ‘Any woman who marries without her guardian’s permission, her marriage is invalid.’ Some apply this to a slave woman. When that proved untenable because of his saying, God bless him and grant him peace, ‘She is entitled to the dower’—whereas a slave woman’s dower belongs to her master—they applied it to a slave woman under a contract for emancipation. This is a remote interpretation.

H1. Jāmiʿ al-Tirmidhī 1102 contains both the guardian’s-permission ruling and the woman’s entitlement to the dower. The following statement that a slave woman’s dower belongs to her master is Ibn Rushd’s explanation, as distinguished in note N071.

The second degree is his saying, peace be upon him, ‘There is no fasting for someone who has not resolved upon the fast during the night.’ Some apply this to a fast making up a missed obligation and to a vowed fast. This interpretation is closer than the first.

H1. Compare Sunan Abī Dāwūd 2454, ‘Whoever has not resolved upon fasting before dawn’, and Sunan al-Nasāʾī 2334, ‘Whoever has not resolved upon fasting during the night’. Abū Dāwūd also records versions stopping at Ḥafṣa; the cited online text of al-Nasāʾī 2334 labels that route weak. Ibn Rushd’s concise formulation is retained; it recurs in §194.

The third degree is his saying, God bless him and grant him peace, ‘On what the sky waters, a tenth; on what is irrigated by drawing water, half a tenth.’ Some apply this to everything, even taking almsgiving from vegetables. Others say that it is confined to the various grains from which almsgiving is taken.

H1. Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 1483. Ibn Rushd abbreviates the report specifying a tenth for crops watered by rain or natural water and half a tenth for crops irrigated by drawing water.

These are the kinds of general expressions and their degrees of apparentness. Sometimes general wording (العام) occurs with a specific meaning (الخاص) intended, and this is clear from the outset—as when someone beating his child says, ‘There is no good in children.’ This understanding may be predominantly probable or certain, according to the particular indication. It may also become clear through proof, which itself may be decisive or predominantly probable. Sometimes we know that general wording is intended specifically without knowing which specific meaning is intended; its force may then be that of indeterminate wording (المجمل).

It remains to discuss kinds of expressions thought to have general scope when they do not, or thought not to have general scope when they do. We shall set out several questions on this.

مَسْأَلَةٌ: الْعُمُومُ فِي الْأَلْفَاظِ إِنَّمَا يَتَصَوَّرُ إِذَا كَانَ مِنْ لَفْظِ الشَّارِعِ عَلَى سَبِيلِ الِابْتِدَاءِ، أَوْ وَرَدَ عِنْدَ السُّؤَالِ عَلَى سَبَبٍ خَاصٍّ فَأُخْرِجَ مَخْرَجَ الْعَامِّ. مِثْلَ قَوْلِهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ، وَقَدْ سُئِلَ عَنْ بِئْرِ بُضَاعَةَ فَقَالَ: «خَلَقَ اللَّهُ الْمَاءَ طَهُورًا لَا يُنَجِّسُهُ شَيْءٌ» فَإِنَّ هَذَا الْقَوْلَ لَيْسَ يُحْمَلُ عَلَى بِئْرِ بُضَاعَةَ وَحْدَهُ، بَلْ عَلَى جَمِيعِ الْمِيَاهِ. وَقَدْ رَأَى قَوْمٌ أَنَّ مِثْلَ هَذَا الْقَوْلِ خَاصٌّ وَيُقْتَصَرُ بِهِ عَنِ الشَّيْءِ الْمَسْؤُولِ عَنْهُ، وَإِنْ أُخْرِجَ مَخْرَجَ الْعُمُومِ. وَلَا مَعْنَى لِقَوْلِهِمْ، فَإِنَّ الْأَمْرَ فِي ذَلِكَ بَيِّنٌ.

Question. Generality in wording occurs when the Lawgiver uses it in an independent statement, or in reply to a question arising from a specific circumstance but frames the answer generally. For example, when asked about the well of Buḍāʿa, he said, God bless him and grant him peace, ‘God created water as purifying; nothing renders it impure.’ This statement is understood to concern all water, not only that well. Some regard such a statement as specific and confine it to the thing asked about, even when it is framed generally. Their position has no basis, for the matter is clear.

H1. The Buḍāʿa-well report is in Sunan Abī Dāwūd 66. Its wording is الماء طهور لا ينجسه شيء, ‘Water is purifying; nothing renders it impure’. The opening خلق الله, ‘God created’, in Ibn Rushd’s quotation is absent from that version.

Question. An equivocal term does not have general scope encompassing everything to which it applies. Some hold otherwise, as do those who understand ‘Or you have touched women’[Q1] to cover both intercourse and touching with the bodily member, the hand. A survey of Arabic speech shows the contrary: Arabs do not use the term ʿayn, for example, intending their hearer to understand all the meanings to which it applies. This is clearest in terms used for opposites. Someone might claim that such an inclusive meaning is understood through a specialised legal convention, but anyone making that claim must establish it.

Question. A plural expression, when unqualified, denotes at least three or more, and is more apparent in that sense than in the sense of two; it is understood as two only through an accompanying indication. It is remarkable that anyone should understand unqualified plural expressions as denoting two, when two has its own distinctive form. That a plural may be used figuratively to mean two is not denied, but this is substitution and extended usage, like what occurs with other expressions conventionally assigned to something. Examining the cases cited by those who permit this shows them to be of that kind.

لَكِنْ قَدْ جَرَتْ عَادَةُ النُّظَّارِ فِي هَذَا الشَّأْنِ عِنْدَمَا يَتَكَلَّمُونَ فِي دَلَالَاتِ الْأَلْفَاظِ أَلَّا يُفَرِّقُوا بَيْنَ مَا تَدُلُّ عَلَيْهِ الْأَلْفَاظُ دَلَالَةً رَاتِبَةً، وَبَيْنَ مَا تَدُلُّ عَلَيْهِ تَجَوُّزًا وَاسْتِعَارَةً. فَلِذَلِكَ نَرَاهُمْ يَقُولُونَ إِنَّ لَفْظَ الْجَمْعِ يَنْطَلِقُ عَلَى الِاثْنَيْنِ كَمَا يَنْطَلِقُ عَلَى الثَّلَاثَةِ فَمَا فَوْقَهَا. وَهَذَا هُوَ الَّذِي غَلَّطَ النَّاظِرِينَ فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ فِي هَذِهِ الْمَسْأَلَةِ عِنْدَمَا يَحْتَجُّونَ فِي ذَلِكَ بِقَوْلِ سِيبَوَيْهِ وَغَيْرِهِ مِنَ النَّحْوِيِّينَ، وَبِمَا وَرَدَ مِنْ ذَلِكَ فِي كَلَامِ الْعَرَبِ.

Investigators in this field, however, customarily fail, when discussing verbal signification, to distinguish an expression’s established signification from what it signifies by extended use and transfer. Thus we see them saying that a plural applies to two just as it applies to three or more. This is what has misled those investigating this question in this discipline when they appeal to Sībawayh and other grammarians, and to examples occurring in Arabic speech.

وَلَيْسَ هَذَا مَوْجُودًا وَحْدَهُ فِي كَلَامِهِمْ، أَعْنِي أَنْ يَدُلَّ عَلَى الِاثْنَيْنِ بِصِيغَةِ الْجَمْعِ. لَكِنْ قَدْ يَدُلُّ بِذَلِكَ عَلَى الْوَاحِدِ وَإِنَّمَا يُخْرِجُونَ ذَلِكَ مَخْرَجَ التَّعْظِيمِ كَمَا يَقُولُونَ هُوَ كُلُّ النَّاسِ، وَهُوَ الْفَتَى كُلُّ الْفَتَى.

Nor is this alone found in their speech—I mean using a plural form to signify two. They may also use it to signify one, but do so by way of magnification, as when they say, ‘He is all people,’ or ‘He is the young man, the whole of a young man.’

وَلِأَنَّ هَذِهِ الْأَلْفَاظَ الْعَامَّةَ كَمَا تَقَدَّمَ قَدْ تَرِدُ وَالْمُرَادُ بِهَا التَّخْصِيصُ، فَرُبَّمَا كَانَ ذَلِكَ فِيهَا بَيِّنًا مِنْ أَوَّلِ الْأَمْرِ، وَرُبَّمَا لَمْ يَكُنْ بَيِّنًا، بَلْ يُحْتَاجُ فِي ذَلِكَ إِلَى دَلِيلٍ، وَذَلِكَ إِمَّا لَفْظٌ وَإِمَّا فِعْلٌ وَإِمَّا إِقْرَارٌ أَوْ وَاحِدٌ مِنَ الْأَدِلَّةِ الْمُسْتَعْمَلَةِ فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ فَيَنْبَغِي إِذَا أُرِيدَ الْمَصِيرُ إِلَى تَخْصِيصِ الْعَامِّ بِوَاحِدٍ وَاحِدٍ مِنْهَا أَنْ نَنْظُرَ إِلَى أَيِّهَا أَقْوَى رُتْبَةً فِي غَلَبَةِ الظَّنِّ إِلَيْهِ.

As explained earlier, these general expressions may occur with a specific meaning intended. Sometimes this is clear from the outset; sometimes it is not and requires evidence: wording, an action, an approval, or one of the other proofs used in this discipline. Accordingly, when one seeks to specify general wording through any of these, one must consider which has the stronger rank in producing predominant probability.

Opinions differ concerning the specification of general wording through these other revealed proofs. Some hold that when a general statement concerning something is received together with a specification—whether through verbal form, understood import, action, or approval—the two have the status of conflicting evidence. The general statement may, for example, have come later than the specifying evidence, whether wording, action, or approval, and thus abrogate it, unless it is known that the specification followed the general statement as clarification delayed until the time of need. This is the position of Dāwūd and his followers.

وَقَدِ احْتَجَّ مَنْ أَجَازَ تَخْصِيصَ الْعَامِّ بِمِثْلِ هَذِهِ الْأَدِلَّةِ دُونَ أَنْ يُعْلَمَ الْمُتَقَدِّمُ مِنْهَا وَالْمُتَأَخِّرُ بِمَصِيرِ الصَّحَابَةِ إِلَى ذَلِكَ، وَحُكْمِهِمْ بِالْخَاصِّ عَلَى الْعَامِّ، فَيَكُونُ عَلَى رَأْيِ هَؤُلَاءِ حَالَةُ الْعَامِّ مَعَ الْخَاصِّ إِحْدَى حَالَتَيْنِ: إِمَّا أَنْ يَرِدَ اللَّفْظُ الْعَامُّ وَقَدْ تَقَدَّمَهُ الْخَاصُّ، فَيَكُونَ ذَلِكَ قَرِينَةً يُخَصَّصُ بِهَا الْعَامُّ لِاحْتِمَالِ اللَّفْظِ لِذَلِكَ. وَإِمَّا أَنْ يَرِدَ الْخَاصُّ بَعْدَ الْعَامِّ فَيَكُونَ مَعْمُولًا عَلَيْهِ.

Those who permit specifying general wording through such proofs without knowing their chronological order appeal to the Companions' practice of doing so and of making the specific govern the general. On this view, the general and specific have one of two relations: either the general expression comes after the specific, which then serves as an indication specifying the general, since the wording admits this; or the specific comes after the general and is acted upon.

وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ كَمَا قُلْنَا فَيَنْبَغِي لِمَنْ يُجَوِّزُ التَّخْصِيصَ بِمِثْلِ هَذِهِ الْأَدِلَّةِ أَنْ يَصِيرَ إِلَى أَقْوَاهَا رُتْبَةً فِي غَلَبَةِ الظَّنِّ. وَهَذَا النَّوْعُ مِنْ غَلَبَةِ الظَّنِّ قَدْ يَقَعُ مِنْ جِهَةِ الْأَلْفَاظِ، وَمِنْ جِهَةِ النَّقْلِ،

In general, as we have said, whoever permits specification through such proofs should follow whichever ranks highest in predominant probability. This predominance may arise from the wording or from its transmission. Thus someone may permit specifying general wording through an unambiguous text, yet refuse this in the Qurʾān because the Qurʾān is established by mass transmission—when the specifying text is transmitted through solitary routes.

كَمَنْ يُجِيزُ تَخْصِيصَ الْعَامِّ بِالنَّصِّ وَيَمْنَعُهُ فِي الْقُرْآنِ لِكَوْنِ الْقُرْآنِ مِمَّا ثَبَتَ تَوَاتُرًا، هَذَا إِذَا كَانَ الْخَاصُّ وَارِدًا بِطُرُقِ الْآحَادِ.

Exception is a kind of specification of general wording, but differs from specification in that it does not occur separately from the expression to which it belongs. There is therefore no basis for permitting an exception to be postponed. We should discuss this. The forms of exception are well known; the kinds that require examination here are the following.

وَلِأَنَّ الِاسْتِثْنَاءَ تَخْصِيصٌ مَا لِلْعَامِّ، إِلَّا أَنَّ الْفَرْقَ بَيْنَهُ وَبَيْنَ التَّخْصِيصِ أَنَّهُ لَا يَرِدُ مُنْفَرِدًا عَنِ الْمُسْتَثْنَى. وَلِذَلِكَ لَا مَعْنَى لِقَوْلِ مَنْ أَجَازَ تَأْخِيرَ الِاسْتِثْنَاءِ، فَقَدْ يَنْبَغِي أَنْ نَقُولَ فِي ذَلِكَ: وَصِيَغُ الِاسْتِثْنَاءِ مَعْرُوفَةٌ. فَأَمَّا أَصْنَافُهُ الَّتِي يَجِبُ أَنْ نَنْظُرَ فِيهَا هَهُنَا فَهِيَ هَذِهِ:

An exception may be connected, where the thing excepted belongs to the same genus as that from which it is excepted; or disconnected, where it belongs to a different genus. Language specialists call the latter a discontinuous exception. An exception may also follow a single complete sentence, or several sentences. We shall examine both these divisions.

الِاسْتِثْنَاءُ مِنْهُ مُتَّصِلٌ، وَهُوَ الَّذِي الْمُسْتَثْنَى فِيهِ مِنْ جِنْسِ الْمُسْتَثْنَى مِنْهُ، وَمِنْهُ مَقْطُوعٌ، وَهُوَ الَّذِي الْمُسْتَثْنَى فِيهِ مِنْ غَيْرِ جِنْسِ الْمُسْتَثْنَى مِنْهُ. وَهَذَا يُسَمِّيهِ أَهْلُ اللِّسَانِ بِالِاسْتِثْنَاءِ الْمُتَقَطِّعِ. وَأَيْضًا مِنَ الِاسْتِثْنَاءِ مَا يَرِدُ بَعْدَ جُمْلَةٍ وَاحِدَةٍ مُفِيدَةٍ، وَمِنْهُ مَا يَرِدُ بَعْدَ جُمَلٍ. وَنَحْنُ نَنْظُرُ فِي هَذَيْنِ الصِّنْفَيْنِ جَمِيعًا فَنَقُولُ:

There is no disagreement over an exception belonging to the same genus as that from which it is excepted. Disagreement concerns an exception belonging to another genus. Some reject it, saying that there is no sense in excepting what the preceding statement did not include, and that calling such a thing an exception is idle speech. Those who permit it appeal to its occurrence in language, as in God’s sayings, ‘For they are enemies to me, except the Lord of the worlds,’[Q1] and ‘Do not consume your wealth among yourselves wrongfully, except that it be an immediate transaction.’[Q2]

A comparable instance is the poet’s saying, ‘No one is at the campsite except the horse tethering places.’ The term ‘anyone’ does not apply to tethering places. Another poet says, ‘And a land with no companion in it, except gazelles and except white camels.’ Arabs also customarily say, ‘There is no man in the house except a

The first group rejects it on theoretical grounds; the second appeals to its actual occurrence, but has been unable to explain how it is valid in speech according to known Arab usage, and thereby resolve the difficulty raised earlier.

Our account is this: as explained earlier, Arabs customarily substitute the universal for the particular and the particular for the universal, relying on accompanying indications and extended usage. If a Bedouin says, for example, ‘There is no man in the house,’ his negation may be understood to extend beyond men; hence he adds the exception, ‘except a woman.’ The same holds of ‘And a land with no companion in it.’ On the account we have given, the thing excepted does not belong to a genus different from that from which it is excepted.

The difference from the first kind is that the first excepts something from the general scope conveyed by the expression’s form, whereas this excepts it from the general scope conveyed by its understood import, not its form. If you examine the occurrences of such exceptions, you will find them to be as we have described; otherwise, the statement would be contradictory and idle, incapable of sustaining intelligible conversation.

If an exception follows several sentences joined by ‘and,’ and ‘and’ makes them share or combine in one meaning, the more evident reading is that the exception refers to everything mentioned. If ‘and’ joins them without making them share one meaning, and the joined meanings are multiple, the case is different. An example is God’s saying, ‘Those who accuse chaste women and then do not produce four witnesses: lash them eighty times, never accept their testimony, and they are the wrongdoers—except those who repent thereafter and make amends.’[Q1]

Another example is His saying, ‘Its expiation is feeding ten needy people from the average of what you feed your families, or clothing them, or freeing a slave; whoever cannot find the means must fast three days.’[Q2] In such cases the more evident course is to suspend judgement until evidence, whether a contextual indication or something else, shows what the exception refers to.

As for whether the amount remaining after an exception may be smaller than the amount excepted, this is something that has not occurred in Arabic speech, since such an expression would almost amount to an inability to express oneself. It is an incongruous way of speaking to say, ‘I saw a hundred, except ninety-nine.’

Question. When general wording is qualified by an attribute or made conditional on something, there should be no disagreement about acting upon it subject to that condition. If it occurs unqualified in one context and then qualified in the same context—what they call construing the unqualified in light of the qualified—the majority adopt that construction. An example is his saying, peace be upon him, ‘There is no marriage without two witnesses,’ alongside his saying, peace be upon him, ‘There is no marriage without two witnesses of probity.’

Some hold that the unqualified statement retains its unqualified scope, that the qualification serves to emphasize, and that it conflicts with the unqualified statement only through contrary implication (دليل الخطاب). Generality is stronger than contrary implication—I mean the generality present in the unqualified statement. If, however, the general expression is qualified in a context different from the one in which it was unqualified, there is no basis for construing it as qualified without proof or a contextual indication.

H1. The two witness formulations are retained as quoted by Ibn Rushd. Their precise transmitted sources have not been identified for this edition; a report concerning a guardian alone would not establish these two witness clauses.

Some of these are names of individuals, and others are names of genera and species. When we call such expressions “specific” (خاص), we do so relatively: something is called specific in relation to the general term above it, and general in relation to the specific term below it.

When these expressions name individuals, they are construed as bearing the specific meaning required by their forms, rather than a meaning encompassing that specific meaning. This is their prima facie import (ظاهر), just as expressions of generality prima facie retain their general scope until evidence of restriction appears. Similarly, names of genera and species prima

Just as speakers customarily substitute the general universal for the specific particular, so here they customarily substitute the specific particular for the general, relying on contextual indications (قرائن). This too may be evident in itself and certain, or it may rest on a preponderant probability, or it may not be evident in itself. Sometimes the occurrence of substitution is itself evident, while it remains unclear which universal the particular has been substituted for.

An example evident in itself and certain is His exalted saying, “Do not say ‘Uff’ to the two of them,”[Q1] and the Prophet’s saying, peace be upon him, “Hand over the thread and the needle.” Examples evident in themselves but not certain are the prohibition of entering the mosque smelling of garlic, and of drinking from silver vessels. An example not evident in itself is his prohibition, peace be upon him, concerning wheat exchanged for wheat—the four commodities mentioned. Some understood it as referring to staple nourishment, others to food, and others to goods measured by volume; others confined the ruling to the stated text.

مِثَالُ مَا كَانَ مِنْ ذَلِكَ بَيِّنًا بِنَفْسِهِ وَقَطْعًا قَوْلُهُ تَعَالَى: «وَلَا تَقُلْ لَهُمَا أُفٍّ»[Q1]. وَقَوْلُهُ عَلَيْهِ السَّلَامُ: «أَدُّوا الْخَائِطَ وَالْمِخْيَطَ». ومثال مَا كَانَ مِنْ ذَلِكَ بَيِّنًا بِنَفْسِهِ وَلَمْ يَكُنْ قَطْعًا النَّهْيُ عَنْ دُخُولِ الْمَسْجِدِ بِرِيحِ الثُّومِ أَوْ عَنِ الشُّرْبِ بِآنِيَةِ الْفِضَّةِ. وَمِثَالُ مَا لَمْ يَكُنْ مِنْ ذَلِكَ بَيِّنًا بِنَفْسِهِ فَنَهْيُهُ عَلَيْهِ السَّلَامُ عَنْ بَيْعِ الْبُرِّ بِالْبُرِّ الْأَرْبَعَةِ الْمَذْكُورَةِ. فَإِنَّ قَوْمًا حَمَلُوهُ عَلَى الْمُقْتَاتِ وَآخَرُونَ عَلَى الْمَطْعُومِ، وَآخَرُونَ عَلَى الْمَكِيلِ، وَقَوْمٌ قَصَرُوا الْحُكْمَ عَلَى النَّصِّ.

Q1. Qurʾān, al-Isrāʾ 17:23 ↗. The Arabic quotation has wa-lā where the verse has fa-lā; the author’s wording is retained.

H1. For ‘the thread and the needle’, see Sunan al-Nasāʾī 3688; note N083 explains the vocabulary. For garlic and entry to the mosque, see Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 855; for drinking from silver vessels, al-Bukhārī 5634. For the exchange of wheat and the other commodities, compare Ṣaḥīḥ Muslim 1587c. That report names six commodities: the four foods—wheat, barley, dates and salt—together with gold and silver. Ibn Rushd’s ‘four’ refers to the foods. See also §§212, 215 and 218.

N081 · translation. Ibdāl is the substitution of a particular expression for an intended universal meaning. The direction of substitution is retained throughout; it is not silently reversed into the direction in which a jurist extends a ruling.

N082 · textual. Arabic reproduces the quotation as printed; its conjunction difference is recorded in the Qurʾān source note. The wording about wheat and “the four mentioned” is elliptical in the printed text; compare §218. The editor’s separate hadith variant is not incorporated into Ibn Rushd’s text.

N083 · textual. The edition prints الخائط in §§191 and 215. The English “thread” reads the intended الخياط in this hadith; الخائط ordinarily means a person who sews. Ibn Manẓūr, Lisān al-ʿArab, root خيط, explicitly explains the hadith أدوا الخياط والمخيط as thread and needle: ↗ (displayed vol.5, p190). The printed Arabic is retained rather than silently standardized.

BA003 · scholarship. This discussion of how particular expressions can stand for the intended general class is basic to Ibn Rushd’s later separation of semantic inclusion from genuine particular-to-particular qiyās. Bou Akl tests the distinction through the ribā commodity cases, comparing al-Ḍarūrī with the Bidāya and al-Fārābī’s classification. Do not assume that all analogical reasoning concerning ribā transfers a rule without an implicit general meaning. فَهَذَا هُوَ الْقَوْلُ فِي الْأَلْفَاظِ الْمُجْمَلَةِ وَالنُّصُوصِ والظاهرة وَالْمُؤَوَّلَةِ مِنْ جِهَةِ صِيَغِهَا، وَقَدْ بَقِيَ الْقَوْلُ فِي ذَلِكَ مِنْ جِهَةِ الْمَفْهُومِ.

This completes the discussion of indeterminate, unambiguous, prima facie, and interpreted expressions with respect to their forms. It remains to discuss them with respect to their understood meaning (مفهوم).

N084 · textual. The printed النصوص الظاهرة lacks the conjunction expected in this fourfold classification. The translation follows the four categories repeatedly distinguished by the author.

4) الْقَوْلُ فِي دَلَالَاتِ الْأَلْفَاظِ بِمَفْهُومِهَا

4. On expressions signifying through their understood meaning

وَاللَّفْظُ كَمَا تَقَدَّمَ مِنْ قَوْلِنَا إِنَّمَا يَصِيرُ دَالًّا بِمَفْهُومِهِ عِنْدَمَا تُحْذَفُ بَعْضُ أَجْزَائِهِ، أَوْ يُزَادُ فِيهِ أَوْ يُسْتَعَارُ وَيُبْدَلُ، وَلِذَلِكَ لَا تَكُونُ دَلَالَتُهُ عِنْدَ ذَلِكَ إِلَّا مِنْ جِهَةِ الْقَرَائِنِ، فَإِنْ كَانَتِ الْقَرِينَةُ غَيْرَ مُتَبَدِّلَةٍ وَقَاطِعَةً عَلَى مَفْهُومِهِ سُمِّيَ أَيْضًا هَهُنَا نَصًّا، وَإِنْ كَانَتْ ظَنِّيَّةً أَكْثَرِيَّةً سُمِّيَ أَيْضًا ظَاهِرًا، وَإِنْ كَانَتْ ظَنِّيَّةً غَيْرَ مُتَرَجِّحَةٍ سُمِّيَ مُجْمَلًا، وَطُلِبَ دَلِيلُهُ مِنْ مَوْضِعٍ آخَرَ.

As we said before, an expression signifies through its understood meaning when some of its parts are omitted, something is added to it, or it is used metaphorically or by substitution. In such cases its signification comes only through contextual indications. If the contextual indication is unvarying and decisive as to its understood meaning, the expression is again called unambiguous (نص). If it supplies a preponderant probability, it is called prima facie (ظاهر); if it supplies probability without preponderance, it is called indeterminate (مجمل), and evidence for it is sought elsewhere.

Examples involving metaphor and substitution have already been given. What remains for us here is the case in which this occurs through omission. We say:

أَمَّا مِثَالُ مَا كَانَ مِنْ ذَلِكَ بِمَنْزِلَةِ النَّصِّ فَقَوْلُهُ تَعَالَى: «وَاسْأَلِ الْقَرْيَةَ الَّتِي كُنَّا فِيهَا»[Q1]. فَإِنَّهُ يُعْلَمُ قَطْعًا أَنَّهُ أَرَادَ

An example having the status of an unambiguous expression is His exalted saying, “Ask the village in which we were.”[Q1] It is known with certainty that He means the inhabitants of the village. Likewise, in His exalted saying, “Forbidden to you are your mothers,”[Q2] what is certainly understood here is marriage.

أَهْلَ الْقَرْيَةِ، وَكَذَلِكَ قَوْلُهُ تَعَالَى: «حُرِّمَتْ عَلَيْكُمْ أُمَّهَاتُكُمْ»[Q2]. فَإِنَّ الْمَفْهُومَ هَهُنَا قَطْعًا إِنَّمَا هُوَ النِّكَاحُ.

An example in this class resembling a prima facie expression is his saying, peace be upon him, “There is no fast for one who has not resolved upon the fast overnight.” This may mean that the fast is not complete, or that the fast is not accepted at all; the latter is more apparent. An example thought indeterminate is his saying, peace be upon him, “Whoever has caught one cycle of the prayer has caught the prayer.” It is undecided whether this means obtaining the prayer’s merit, its legal effect, or its appointed time.

وَمِثَالُ مَا هُوَ مِنْ هَذَا الْجِنْسِ كَالظَّاهِرِ قَوْلُهُ عَلَيْهِ السَّلَامُ: «لَا صِيَامَ لِمَنْ لَمْ يُبَيِّتِ الصِّيَامَ». فَإِنَّهُ مُحْتَمِلٌ أَنْ يُرِيدَ لَا صِيَامَ كَامِلٌ وَيَحْتَمِلُ أَنْ يُرِيدَ انْتِفَاءَ قَبُولِ الصِّيَامِ أَصْلًا وَهُوَ الْأَظْهَرُ. وَمِثَالُ مَا يُظَنُّ بِهِ مُجْمَلًا قَوْلُهُ عَلَيْهِ السَّلَامُ: «مَنْ أَدْرَكَ رَكْعَةً مِنَ الصَّلَاةِ فَقَدْ أَدْرَكَ الصَّلَاةَ» فَإِنَّهُ مُتَرَدِّدٌ بَيْنَ إِدْرَاكِ فَضِيلَةِ الصَّلَاةِ أَوْ حُكْمِهَا أَوْ وَقْتِهَا.

A particularly well-known kind within this class is what they call inference from the discourse (دليل الخطاب). Something is mentioned subject to a qualification or condition, and a ruling is attached to it. It is then judged probable that the ruling belongs to it insofar as it bears that qualification or description, and that, when the description is absent, the ruling ceases to apply and its contradictory applies instead.

وَمِنْ أَشْهَرِ مَا يَدْخُلُ فِي هَذَا الْجِنْسِ النَّوْعُ الَّذِي يَعْرِفُونَهُ بِدَلِيلِ الْخِطَابِ وَهُوَ أَنْ يَرِدَ الشَّيْءُ مُقَيَّدًا بِأَمْرٍ مَا، أَوْ مُشْتَرَطًا فِيهِ شَرْطٌ مَا، وَقَدْ عُلِّقَ بِهِ حُكْمٌ، فَيُظَنَّ أَنَّ ذَلِكَ الْحُكْمَ لَازِمٌ لِذَلِكَ الشَّيْءِ مِنْ جِهَةِ مَا هُوَ مُقَيَّدٌ وَمَوْصُوفٌ، وَأَنَّ الْحُكْمَ مُرْتَفِعٌ عَنْهُ بِارْتِفَاعِ تِلْكَ الصِّفَةِ وَلَازِمٌ نَقِيضُهُ.

This class has several kinds. They disagree over whether these constitute legal evidence. Some have allowed none of them as evidence at all; some have allowed all of them; others have allowed some and denied others. We say concerning this:

Q1. Qurʾān, Yūsuf 12:82 ↗.

Q2. Qurʾān, al-Nisāʾ 4:23 ↗.

H1. For the nightly intention to fast, compare Sunan Abī Dāwūd 2454 and Sunan al-Nasāʾī 2334; the wording and transmission variants are noted at §172. ‘Whoever has caught one cycle of the prayer has caught the prayer’ is in Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 580.

N085 · translation. The omitted object in the prohibition concerning mothers is supplied by Ibn Rushd himself as marriage; the contextual character of this certainty is central to his use of naṣṣ.

N086 · translation. Dalīl al-khiṭāb here is contrary implication: the ruling for the unmentioned case is inferred from the qualification of the stated case. It differs from the a fortiori faḥwā al-khiṭāb of §215.

G-B2-0417 · grammar. أسلوب القصر بـ«إنّما» — «ههنا قطعا إنما هو النكاح. ومثال ما هو». [Restriction: only / nothing but; identify what is being limited by the construction.]

G-B2-0418 · grammar. الفاء الاستئنافية مع «إنَّ/إنْ/إنّما» — «كنا فيها». فإنه يعلم قطعا أنه أراد أهل». [The initial فـ links the reasoning. Distinguish إنَّ (assertion), إنْ (condition) and إنّما (restriction) from the words and vowelled context.]

R 195 · BA 240–241 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 119, 120 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 276

Its kinds include mentioning something qualified by a description, as in his saying, peace be upon him, “Zakāt is due on grazing sheep.” Another is to make something conditional through one of the conditional particles, as in “Whoever enters the house, give him a dirham.” This, in their view, occupies a stronger rank.

Another restricts a ruling through a restrictive particle: innamā or the definite article al-, as in his saying, peace be upon him, “The rights of clientage belong only to the emancipator,” or in “The property belongs to Zayd.” Another qualifies something by an endpoint, expressed by “until” or “up to.” It seems that everyone has accepted this kind. Examples are His exalted sayings, “Do not approach them until they become pure,”[Q1] “until she marries a husband other than him,”[Q2] and His exalted saying, “Complete the fast until nightfall.”[Q3]

فَإِنَّهُ يَكَادُ أَنْ يُعْلَمَ أَنَّ اللَّيْلَ بِخِلَافِ النَّهَارِ فِي انْتِفَاءِ الصَّوْمِ عَنْهُ، وَكَذَلِكَ حَالُ الْحَائِضِ إِذَا طَهُرَتْ بِخِلَافِهَا قَبْلَ أَنْ تَطْهُرَ، وَكَذَلِكَ الْمُطَلَّقَةُ إِذَا نَكَحَتْ زَوْجًا. وَهَذَا النَّوْعُ مِنَ الْكَلَامِ وَجَمِيعُ أَصْنَافِهِ يَنْبَغِي أَنْ يُعْتَقَدَ أَنَّ فِيهِ مَا يُشْبِهُ النَّصَّ وَيَقْوَى قُوَّتَهُ، وَذَلِكَ حَيْثُ يُعْلَمُ أَنَّ ذَلِكَ الْحُكْمَ إِنَّمَا تَعَلَّقَ بِالشَّيْءِ مِنْ جِهَةِ مَا قُيِّدَ أَوِ اشْتُرِطَ فِيهِ ذَلِكَ الشَّرْطُ. وَفِيهِ مَا يُشْبِهُ الظَّاهِرَ، وَفِيهِ مَا يُشْبِهُ الْمُجْمَلَ، وَسَنُشِيرُ إِلَى مَرَاتِبِ الْقَرَائِنِ الَّتِي يَتَرَتَّبُ بِهَا هَذَا التَّرْتِيبُ فِي الدَّلَالَةِ فِي كِتَابِ الْقِيَاسِ.

It is virtually known that night differs from day in that fasting does not extend to it; likewise the menstruating woman’s condition after purification differs from her condition beforehand, as does that of the divorced woman after marrying a husband. Within this manner of speaking and all its kinds, some cases must be recognised as resembling the unambiguous and possessing its force: those in which the ruling is known to depend on the qualification or condition. Others resemble the prima facie or the indeterminate. In the discussion of qiyās we shall indicate the ranks of contextual indications that establish these degrees of signification.

Q1. Qurʾān, al-Baqarah 2:222 ↗.

Q2. Qurʾān, al-Baqarah 2:230 ↗.

Q3. Qurʾān, al-Baqarah 2:187 ↗. The Arabic quotation begins wa-atimmū; the verse has thumma atimmū.

وَهُنَا انْتَهَى الْكَلَامُ فِي الْأَخْبَارِ وَأَجْزَائِهَا، وَبَعْدَ ذَلِكَ فَلْنَنْظُرْ فِي الْأَوَامِرِ وَالنَّوَاهِي.

Here ends the discussion of assertions and their components. Let us now examine commands and prohibitions.

5) الْقَوْلُ فِي الْأَوَامِرِ وَالنَّوَاهِي

5. On commands and prohibitions

وَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ نَنْظُرَ أَيْضًا فِي هَذِهِ هَلْ تَنْقَسِمُ الْقِسْمَةَ الْمُتَقَدِّمَةَ، أَعْنِي هَلْ يُوجَدُ فِيهَا النَّصُّ وَالظَّاهِرُ وَالْمُجْمَلُ،

We must also examine whether these admit the preceding division: whether unambiguous, prima facie, and indeterminate cases occur among them; and, if so, whether this is through their forms or through their understood meaning.

وَإِنْ كَانَ ذَلِكَ مَوْجُودًا فِيهَا فَهَلْ ذَلِكَ مِنْ جِهَةِ صِيَغِهَا أَوْ مِنْ جِهَةِ مَفْهُومِهَا.

Meaningful speech, as has been said, divides into assertion, command, request, address, and supplication. Plainly, Arabic does not possess a distinct form for each of command, request, and supplication: they are distinguished by circumstantial indications. Addressed by a superior to a subordinate, it is a command; by a subordinate to a superior, a supplication; and by an equal to an equal, a request. Each of these three has an opposite. The opposite of command is prohibition, but the opposites of request and supplication have no names.

G-B2-0423 · grammar. «أسلوب القصر بـ«إنّما» — «صيغ خاصة، وإنما يتميز ذلك بقرائن الأحوال. فإذا». [Restriction: only / nothing but; identify what is being limited by the construction.]

R 198 · BA 244 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 121 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 280

Our purpose here is to discuss command and prohibition among these divisions. A legal demand (اقتضاء) cannot be conceived as taking the form of a request—unless “request” is taken here as a generic term divided into obligation and recommendation. It is preferable, however, that “command” should admit this division.

They have disagreed whether the meanings of commands [subsisting] in the soul have particular forms that signify them intrinsically and primarily. If they have forms, do these unambiguously require obligation or recommendation? Or is one of the two more apparent, with the form directed to the other by interpretation, in the manner of interpreting a prima facie expression? Or are the forms indeterminate between obligation and recommendation?

وَقَدِ اخْتَلَفُوا فِي مَعَانِي الْأَوَامِرِ الْعَامَّةِ بِالنَّفْسِ هَلْ لَهَا صِيَغٌ خَاصَّةٌ تَدُلُّ عَلَيْهَا بِالذَّاتِ وَأَوَّلًا، وَإِنْ كَانَ لَهَا صِيَغٌ فَهَلْ تَقْتَضِي الْإِيجَابَ أَوِ النَّدْبَ عَلَى جِهَةِ النَّصِّ، أَمْ هِيَ أَظْهَرُ فِي أَحَدِهِمَا وَمَصْرُوفَةٌ إِلَى الثَّانِي بِالتَّأْوِيلِ، عَلَى جِهَةِ مَا يُؤَوَّلُ الظَّاهِرُ، أَوْ هِيَ مُجْمَلَةٌ بَيْنَ الْإِيجَابِ وَالنَّدْبِ.

Those who hold that commands possess signifying forms also disagree whether those forms require immediate performance, allow delay, or remain undecided between these. Likewise, they disagree whether the forms require repetition or performance once.

وَكَذَلِكَ اخْتَلَفَ الَّذِينَ رَأَوْا أَنَّ لَهَا صِيَغًا دَالَّةً فِي هَلْ تَقْتَضِي أَيْضًا بِصِيَغِهَا الْفَوْرَ، أَمِ التَّرَاخِيَ، أَمْ هِيَ مُتَرَدِّدَةٌ بَيْنَ ذَلِكَ. وَكَذَلِكَ أَيْضًا هَلْ تَقْتَضِي التَّكْرَارَ أَمِ الْفِعْلَ مَرَّةً وَاحِدَةً.

We begin this inquiry by considering how these forms stand in linguistic convention and in legal usage. We say:

R 200 · BA 245–247 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 121, 122 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 280

No one denies that Arabic has forms expressing a demand, such as “Go out! Depart!” These forms can nevertheless occur with the intention of threatening and deterring an action, as in His exalted saying, “Eat and enjoy yourselves a little.”[Q1] Generally, however, permission is their more apparent import; they signify threat only metaphorically. Likewise, when speakers intend prohibition, they combine the particle lā with these forms, and the resulting combination signifies prohibition through its structure and form.

أَمَّا أَنَّ لِلِاقْتِضَاءِ صِيَغًا فِي كَلَامِ الْعَرَبِ فَذَلِكَ مَا لَا يَدْفَعُهُ أَحَدٌ، كَقَوْلِهِمْ «اخْرُجْ انْطَلِقْ»، وَإِنْ كَانَ قَدْ تَأْتِي هَذِهِ الصِّيَغُ فِي كَلَامِهِمْ وَالْمَقْصُودُ بِهَا التَّهْدِيدُ وَالْكَفُّ عَنِ الْفِعْلِ، كَقَوْلِهِ تَعَالَى: «كُلُوا وَتَمَتَّعُوا قَلِيلًا»[Q1]. وَلَكِنْ بِالْجُمْلَةِ هِيَ أَظْهَرُ فِي الْإِذْنِ، وَإِنَّمَا تَدُلُّ عَلَى التَّهْدِيدِ بِاسْتِعَارَةٍ. وَكَذَلِكَ أَيْضًا إِذَا أَرَادُوا النَّهْيَ قَرَنُوا بِهَذِهِ الصِّيَغِ حَرْفَ لَا، فَصَارَ مَجْمُوعُهَا يَدُلُّ بِشَكْلِهِ وَصِيغَتِهِ عَلَى النَّهْيِ.

Whether these forms signify command intrinsically by linguistic convention is not evident from them; still less is it evident that there are forms signifying obligation or recommendation as such. These are legal meanings, not meanings of ordinary usage. By legal usage, however, the forms undoubtedly contain the meaning of command. Whether they contain obligation or recommendation is disputed. Most jurists hold that commands prima facie signify obligation in the Law, and are directed to recommendation by evidence. Some suspend judgement and regard them as indeterminate.

فَأَمَّا هَلْ تَدُلُّ هَذِهِ الصِّيَغُ بِذَاتِهَا وَضْعًا لُغَوِيًّا عَلَى الْأَمْرِ فَذَلِكَ مِمَّا لَا يَتَبَيَّنُ فِيهَا، وَأَحْرَى مِنْ ذَلِكَ أَنْ تَكُونَ لَهَا صِيَغٌ تَدُلُّ بِهَا عَلَى الْوُجُوبِ أَوِ النَّدْبِ، لِأَنَّ هَذِهِ الْمَعَانِيَ هِيَ مَعَانٍ شَرْعِيَّةٌ وَلَيْسَتْ بِمَعَانٍ جُمْهُورِيَّةٍ. فَأَمَّا بِالْعُرْفِ الشَّرْعِيِّ فَهِيَ لَا شَكَّ مُتَضَمِّنَةٌ مَعْنَى الْأَمْرِ، وَأَمَّا هَلْ تَتَضَمَّنُ الْوُجُوبَ أَوِ النَّدْبَ فَقَدِ اخْتَلَفُوا فِي ذَلِكَ، فَذَهَبَ أَكْثَرُ الْفُقَهَاءِ إِلَى أَنَّ الْأَوَامِرَ ظَاهِرَةٌ فِي مَعْنَى الْإِيجَابِ فِي الشَّرْعِ وَمَصْرُوفَةٌ إِلَى النَّدْبِ بِدَلِيلٍ. وَذَهَبَ بَعْضُهُمْ إِلَى التَّوَقُّفِ فِي ذَلِكَ وَأَنَّهَا مُجْمَلَةٌ.

This should be investigated inductively in the Law, examining how the Companions, may God be pleased with them, received commands when they appeared without contextual indications. Construing them as obligatory seems more prudent, since the circumstances of the Law show that its commands have a firm and decisive character. There is no sense in assigning them what someone claims is the least that a command signifies—recommendation—on the alleged ground that this always accompanies command.

وَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ يُسْتَقْرَأَ ذَلِكَ فِي الشَّرْعِ، وَيُنْظَرَ كَيْفَ كَانَ قَبُولُ الصَّحَابَةِ رَضِيَ اللَّهُ عَنْهُمْ لِلْأَوَامِرِ إِذَا وَرَدَتْ مُجَرَّدَةً عَنِ الْقَرَائِنِ. وَيُشْبِهُ أَنْ يَكُونَ حَمْلُهَا عَلَى الْإِيجَابِ أَحْوَطَ، إِذْ قَدْ عُرِفَ مِنْ قَرَائِنِ أَحْوَالِ الشَّرْعِ أَنَّ الْأَوَامِرَ فِيهِ عَلَى جِهَةِ الْجَزْمِ وَالْقَطْعِ. وَأَمَّا مَنْ جَعَلَ ذَلِكَ عَلَى أَقَلِّ مَا يَدُلُّ عَلَيْهِ الْأَمْرُ وَهُوَ النَّدْبُ، لِأَنَّهُ زَعَمَ أَنَّ ذَلِكَ هُوَ الَّذِي يَلْزَمُ الْأَمْرَ دَائِمًا، فَلَا مَعْنَى لَهُ.

Obligation and recommendation are two distinct meanings. Either the expression is equivocal between them or one is its more apparent meaning. If no established legal convention can be shown for these forms, commands remain indeterminate between recommendation and obligation until evidence indicates one of them.

وَضْعٌ شَرْعِيٌّ فَصِيَغُ الْأَوَامِرِ مُجْمَلَةٌ بَيْنَ النَّدْبِ وَالْإِيجَابِ حَتَّى يَدُلَّ الدَّلِيلُ عَلَى أَحَدِهِمَا.

As for whether their forms signify immediacy or delay, this is not contained in them: the determination depends upon circumstantial indications. Hence, when the person commanded is uncertain, it is appropriate to ask “When?” Nor is repetition of the act required merely by the imperative. It requires at least one performance, and is as it were prima facie in that sense, and it is construed ⟨as repeated⟩ only when a further indication is subsequently supplied.

وَأَمَّا هَلْ تَدُلُّ صِيَغُهَا عَلَى الْفَوْرِ أَوِ التَّرَاخِي فَلَيْسَ ذَلِكَ مَوْجُودًا فِيهَا، وَإِنَّمَا يَتَّكِلُ الْأَمْرُ فِي ذَلِكَ عَلَى قَرَائِنِ الْأَحْوَالِ. وَلِذَلِكَ إِذَا أَشْكَلَ عَلَى الْمَأْمُورِ حَسُنَ أَنْ يَسْتَفْهِمَ بِمَتَى، وَكَذَلِكَ لَا يُقْتَضَى تَكْرَارُ الْفِعْلِ، وَإِنَّمَا تَقْتَضِي أَقَلَّ ذَلِكَ مَرَّةً وَاحِدَةً وَهِيَ كَالظَّاهِرَةِ فِيهَا، وَتُحْمَلُ ⟨عَلَى التَّكْرَارِ⟩ بَعْدَ أَنْ تَرِدَ الزِّيَادَةُ.

Several questions attach to this discussion; we shall set them out in their customary manner.

Question. When a command to do something follows a prohibition, some hold that this circumstance redirects the demand which, standing alone, would signify either [obligation] or recommendation, so that it now signifies permission. Others hold that this is not a contextual indication: the form of demand retains its original understood meaning.

Abū Ḥāmid says: The preferred view is that, when the prohibition arises for a particular ground and the imperative “Do!” is made conditional upon its cessation —as in His exalted saying, “When you leave the state of consecration, hunt”[Q1]—customary usage indicates the removal of restriction. It may admit recommendation or [obligation], but the meaning just mentioned is more apparent.

N090 · textual. Bou Akl 2015, BA §250 (Arabic p.284; French p.285), records الاقتضاء as the Escorial [أ] reading against al-ʿAlawī’s الاقتصار [ع], now adopted. In the same sentence both [أ] and [ع] repeat الندب; Bou Akl conjectures الوجوب for the first occurrence, which the present text represents as ⟨الوجوب⟩, not as manuscript evidence. The bracketed “obligation” in English reproduces that conjecture; it was already recognized as a necessary alternative in the earlier English draft.

N091 · translation. The critical crux is at the end of Abū Ḥāmid's view: both Escorial [أ] and al-ʿAlawī [ع] read إباحةً ("permission"), whereas Bou Akl (2015, BA §250, Arabic p.284, apparatus citing the Mustaṣfā) conjectures إيجابًا ("obligation"). The new reading is therefore ⟨إيجابًا⟩ and [obligation], visibly editorial. The transmitted "permission" remains in the audit; the legal alternatives must not be misrepresented as securely transmitted.

N092 · grammar. The imperative paradigm is printed أفعل. Here it is normalized as اِفْعَلْ ("Do!"), with hamzat al-waṣl and fatḥa on the second radical, rather than the distinct form-IV command أَفْعِلْ. This is an explicitly recorded orthographic correction; it does not change the quoted command فَاصْطَادُوا.

مَسْأَلَةٌ: مَذْهَبُ الْفُقَهَاءِ أَنَّ وُجُوبَ الْقَضَاءِ لَا يَفْتَقِرُ إِلَى أَمْرٍ مجد د. وَمَذْهَبُ الْمُحَصِّلِينَ أَنَّ الْأَمْرَ بِعِبَادَةٍ فِي وَقْتٍ مُعَيَّنٍ لَا يَقْتَضِي الْقَضَاءَ، لِأَنَّ تَخْصِيصَ الْعِبَادَةِ بِالزَّمَانِ كَالصَّلَاةِ فِي وَقْتِ الزَّوَالِ وَالصِّيَامِ فِي رَمَضَانَ كَتَخْصِيصِ الْحَجِّ بِالْمَكَانِ وَالصَّلَاةِ بِالْجِهَةِ. وَإِذَا فُقِدَ الشَّرْطُ الْمَأْمُورُ بِهِ ارْتَفَعَ الْأَمْرُ إِذَا كَانَ وُرُودُ الْأَمْرِ بِالشَّيْءِ مِنْ جِهَتِهِ.

Question. The jurists' position is that an obligation to make up a missed observance (قضاء) does not require a [renewed] command. Those who carefully distinguish the issues hold that a command to worship at a specified time does not require making it up. Specifying a time for worship—prayer at midday or fasting in Ramadan—is like specifying a place for pilgrimage or a direction for prayer. If the commanded condition is absent, the command ceases to apply, when it was on account of that condition that the command concerning the act was issued.

N093 · textual. Printed محدد ("specified") is retained in Arabic. The English understands the customary issue as requiring an أمر مجدد, a renewed command; this is a conjectural correction of the printed reading.

وَالصَّوَابُ أَنْ يُقَالَ إِنَّ الْأَمْرَ يَقْتَضِي إِجْزَاءَ الْمَأْمُورِ بِهِ إِذَا أُدِّيَ بِكَمَالِهِ وَوَصْفِهِ وَجَمِيعِ شُرُوطِهِ، وَأَمَّا إِنْ تَطَرَّقَ إِلَيْهِ خَلَلٌ كَالْحَجِّ الْفَاسِدِ فَلَا يَدُلُّ الْأَمْرُ عَلَى الْإِجْزَاءِ. فَهَذَا هُوَ الْقَوْلُ فِي صِيَغِ الْأَمْرِ.

Question. The jurists hold that a command entails the sufficiency of the commanded act (إجزاء) when it is fulfilled, without an obligation to make it up. Others say that a command does not entail sufficiency: someone who has invalidated his pilgrimage is commanded to complete it, yet this does not suffice, and he must perform it again.

The correct formulation is that a command entails the sufficiency of the commanded act when it is performed completely, with its prescribed character and all its conditions. If a defect affects it, as with an invalidated pilgrimage, the command does not indicate sufficiency. This completes the discussion of command forms.

N094 · textual. The first two occurrences of the technical term are printed الجزاء and إلا جزاء. Their sense is الإجزاء, "sufficiency/discharge," as the paragraph's final sentences make explicit. Know that the discussion of prohibitive forms parallels that of commands, and its questions correspond to theirs. Whoever construes a command form as imposing obligation construes a prohibitive form as imposing interdiction, and prohibition as indicating the invalidity of the prohibited act. Whether the prohibition concerns the act without qualification or with a description or condition, it renders the underlying act invalid insofar as it bears that qualification or condition.

This is the question mentioned earlier in Part One, where we said that the present place would be more appropriate for discussing it.

وَأَمَّا مَنْ كَانَ عِنْدَهُ صِيغَةُ الْأَمْرِ مُتَرَدِّدَةً بَيْنَ الْإِيجَابِ وَالنَّدْبِ، فَإِنَّهُ يَلْزَمُهُ أَنْ يَكُونَ لَفْظُ النَّهْيِ أَيْضًا مُتَرَدِّدًا بَيْنَ الْحَظْرِ وَالْكَرَاهَةِ، وَسَوَاءٌ وَرَدَ فِي أَصْلِ الشَّيْءِ مُطْلَقًا أَوْ مُقَيَّدًا بِصِفَةٍ أَوْ سَبَبٍ خَارِجٍ عَنْهُ.

Anyone who considers a command form undecided between obligation and recommendation must likewise consider a prohibitive expression undecided between interdiction and disapproval. This holds whether it concerns the underlying act without qualification or with a description or a cause external to it.

اللَّهُمَّ إِلَّا أَنَّ بَعْضَ النَّاسِ مِمَّنْ يَرَى أَنَّ لِلْأَمْرِ وَالنَّهْيِ صِيغَةً تَقْتَضِي الْإِيجَابَ وَالْحَظْرَ يَجْعَلُ كَوْنَهَا إِذَا وَرَدَتْ فِي شَيْءٍ مُقَيَّدٍ بِسَبَبٍ مَا خَارِجٍ عَنِ الشَّيْءِ، قَرِينَةً تَخْرُجُ بِهَا الصِّيَغُ عَنْ كَوْنِهَا مُفِيدَةً لِلْإِيجَابِ وَالْحَظْرِ إِلَى النَّدْبِ وَالْكَرَاهِيَةِ. فَهَذَا هُوَ الْقَوْلُ فِي الْأَدِلَّةِ الْمُتَلَقَّاةِ مِنْ جِهَةِ الْأَلْفَاظِ.

Some who hold that commands and prohibitions have forms requiring obligation and interdiction nevertheless treat their application to an act qualified by an external cause as a contextual indication. On this account the forms cease to convey obligation and interdiction and instead convey recommendation and disapproval. This completes the discussion of evidence received through expressions.

It remains for us to discuss signifying contextual indications, such as the Prophet’s silence and tacit approval, God bless him and grant him peace. Before that, however, we must examine the evidence they call qiyās.

وَقَدْ بَقِيَ عَلَيْنَا الْقَوْلُ فِي الْقَرَائِنِ الدَّالَّةِ كَسُكُوتِهِ وَإِقْرَارِهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ، لَكِنْ قَبْلَ ذَلِكَ يَجِبُ أَنْ نَنْظُرَ فِي الدَّلِيلِ الَّذِي يَعْرِفُونَهُ بِالْقِيَاسِ.

6. On qiyās: analogy and syllogistic inference

6) الْقَوْلُ فِي الْقِيَاسِ

R 210 · BA 256–257 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 124, 125 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 288

We must examine whether qiyās is legal evidence and, if it is, whether it belongs to the kinds already discussed. Our approach will be to investigate what the term qiyās signifies for them in this discipline. We say:

وَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ نَنْظُرَ فِيهِ هَلْ هُوَ دَلِيلٌ شَرْعِيٌّ أَمْ لَا، وَإِنْ كَانَ دَلِيلًا شَرْعِيًّا فَهَلْ هُوَ مِنْ جِنْسِ مَا تَقَدَّمَ أَمْ لَا، وَنَجْعَلَ سَبِيلَنَا فِي الْفَحْصِ عَنْ ذَلِكَ مِمَّا يَدُلُّ عَلَيْهِ اسْمُ الْقِيَاسِ عِنْدَهُمْ فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ فَنَقُولُ:

They describe it as assimilating one of two things to the other in affirming or denying a ruling, when the affirmation or denial is more apparent in one than in the other, because they share a ground or attribute. They call the thing in which the ruling is more apparent the original case (أصل); the thing assigned the ruling because it holds in the original case, the derivative case (فرع); and the shared attribute or cause, the operative ground (علة).

BA004 · scholarship. The jurists' initial account names an original case (aṣl), a derivative case (farʿ), and a shared ʿilla. Ibn Rushd then subjects the extension of the term qiyās itself to analysis: the issue is what mental operation is really being performed, not merely which inference label jurists conventionally use. Compare Bou Akl's distinction between qiyās as juristic umbrella term and as syllogismos in strict logic: Bou Akl, "Averroes on Juridical Reasoning," in Interpreting Averroes: Critical Essays (Cambridge UP, 2018), pp. 45–48.

One should not object to our saying "two things" rather than, as in their description, "two objects of knowledge," on the alleged ground that "thing" does not apply to the nonexistent: the nonexistent is scarcely ever made a basis of comparison. Even granting their point, nothing prevents calling the nonexistent a thing insofar as it exists in the soul. Some things are in the soul as they are outside it; others are in the soul without existing outside it. In general, the theologians should not have quibbled with the Muʿtazila over this.

وَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ لَا تَأْخُذَ عَلَيْنَا لِقَوْلِنَا حَمْلُ شَيْئَيْنِ، وَلَمْ نَقُلْ مَعْلُومَيْنِ عَلَى رَسْمِهِمْ، مِنْ قِبَلِ أَنَّ الشَّيْءَ — زَعَمُوا — لَا يَنْطَلِقُ عَلَى الْمَعْدُومِ، فَإِنَّ الْمَعْدُومَ يَكَادُ لَا يُقَاسُ عَلَيْهِ. وَأَيْضًا فَلَوْ سَلَّمْنَا لَهُمْ هَذَا لَمْ يَكُنْ مُمْتَنِعًا أَنْ يُسَمَّى الْمَعْدُومُ شَيْئًا إِذْ كَانَ لَهُ وُجُودٌ فِي النَّفْسِ، لِأَنَّا نَقُولُ مِنَ الْأَشْيَاءِ مَا هُوَ فِي النَّفْسِ كَحَالِهِ خَارِجَ النَّفْسِ، وَمِنْهَا مَا هُوَ فِي النَّفْسِ مِنْ غَيْرِ أَنْ يَكُونَ خَارِجَ النَّفْسِ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَقَدْ كَانَ يَنْبَغِي لِلْمُتَكَلِّمِينَ أَلَّا يُشَاحُّوا الْمُعْتَزِلَةَ فِي مِثْلِ هَذَا.

Nor should one attend to their saying, "because of a common factor, whether an attribute or a cause, or the negation of these in both.” Negation as negation does not require one ruling for two things—except where negation has the force of privation, and privation follows an attribute that requires a ruling for both things. Our discussion has carried us away from our initial purpose. Let us return to where we were and say:

وَكَذَلِكَ أَيْضًا لَا يُلْتَفَتُ إِلَى قَوْلِهِمْ: لِأَمْرٍ جَامِعٍ بَيْنَهُمَا مِنْ صِفَةٍ أَوْ سَبَبٍ أَوْ نَفْيِهِمَا عَنْهُمَا. فَإِنَّ النَّفْيَ مِنْ جِهَةِ مَا هُوَ نَفْيٌ لَا يُوجِبُ حُكْمًا وَاحِدًا لِشَيْئَيْنِ، اللَّهُمَّ إِلَّا مِنْ جِهَةِ أَنَّ النَّفْيَ فِي مَوَاضِعَ قُوَّتُهُ قُوَّةُ الْعَدَمِ، وَالْعَدَمُ تَابِعٌ لِصِفَةٍ مَا تَقْتَضِي حُكْمًا لِشَيْئَيْنِ. وَقَدْ جَمَحَ بِنَا الْقَوْلُ عَمَّا كُنَّا قَصَدْنَا إِلَيْهِ مِنْ أَوَّلِ الْأَمْرِ فَلْنَرْجِعْ إِلَى حَيْثُ كُنَّا فَنَقُولُ:

N095 · translation. The contrast between نفي (negation) and عدم (privation/nonbeing) is retained. Here عدم functions as a privation associated with a positive attribute, not simply as the logical operation of negating.

Examining what they mean by qiyās here shows that it is not a syllogism, but belongs to using a particular expression in place of the intended universal. The evidence is that the original case receives its ruling through a text or consensus. If the operative ground requiring the ruling is expressly stated and is more general than the original case, this belongs to general expression. An example is his saying, God bless him and grant him peace, concerning water left by a cat: “[The cat] is not impure, because it is among those that circulate around you, male or female.” This too has degrees; many who reject qiyās allow such cases.

If the ground requiring the ruling is not expressly stated, but the expression’s understood meaning requires it and it is more general than the original case, this is using a particular expression in place of the intended universal. We then assign the ruling to anything shown, through independent inquiry or sense perception, to fall under that universal. An example is his prohibition of drinking from silver vessels, God bless him and grant him peace. Extravagance is understood from it; hence we extend the ruling to gold vessels.

H1. For the cat’s remaining water, see Sunan Abī Dāwūd 75. That version reads إنها ليست بنجس إنها من الطوافين عليكم والطوافات; Ibn Rushd’s quotation instead has لأنها and أو. Note N097 preserves this wording distinction. For the silver-vessel report used in the following example, see Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 5634.

N096 · translation. The Arabic قياس in the denial is rendered “syllogism,” preserving Ibn Rushd’s distinction between actual inference and the jurists’ broader use of qiyās. The editor’s suggestion on p126 that الكلي and الجزئي should be reversed is not adopted: the printed order agrees with §§191 and 221. The particular wording stands in for an intended universal meaning.

N097 · translation. سؤر is the liquid remaining after an animal has drunk. The cat hadith’s masculine/feminine alternatives are preserved rather than silently replaced with a different transmitted wording.

BA005 · scholarship. Here the particular expression stands in the discourse where the intended universal could have stood; the judge/reader recovers that universal through the indication of the expression or its recognized contextual sign. This is not the construction of an extra-textual universal from natural causality. Bou Akl describes the procedure as ibdāl, or substitution, and contrasts it with strict inferential qiyās. The corresponding reference in his 2015 numbering is §259; this reader's §212 follows al-ʿAlawī 1994. BA15-I07 · interpretive. Strict vs broad analogy. Bou Akl 2015 intro pp.57–70 distinguishes deriving a ruling by recovering an intended universal from a case where a legal relation between two particulars cannot be supported by such an indicated universal. The narrow genuine qiyās is not denied; his reading is a scholarly argument and needs case-by-case Bidaya testing.

Since this is so, what they mean by qiyās in this discipline generally comes back to what expressions require through their understood meanings. Expressions require this only through accompanying contextual indications—not just any indications, but those whose kind the Law demonstrably takes into account. The situation is thus like that of ordinary communication.

Just as the contextual indications on which a Bedouin relies when addressing another must be known to the addressee, and the speaker's attention to them in speaking must be known, so it must be in the Law. We shall indicate them individually and arrange them according to the rank of each in clarity.

BA006 · scholarship. The qualification "not just any contextual indication" is decisive. Ibn Rushd restricts extension to a class of qarāʾin whose relevance the Law itself witnesses. Thus interpreting implied legal meaning is neither private guesswork nor an unrestricted appeal to similarity. Bou Akl quotes and analyzes this passage as 2015 §261; current §213. As we said, contextual indications can make a statement unambiguous through its understood meaning, when they establish its metaphor or substitution decisively; or prima facie through its understood meaning, when they are preponderant rather than decisive; or indeterminate, when they remain undecided. We should therefore indicate their ranks here, although they are difficult to delimit precisely. We say:

وَلِأَنَّ الْقَرَائِنَ كَمَا تَقَدَّمَ مِنْ قَوْلِنَا أَحَدُ مَا يَجْعَلُ الْقَوْلَ كَالنَّصِّ بِمَفْهُومِهِ، وَذَلِكَ إِذَا كَانَتْ قَاطِعَةً فِي اسْتِعَارَتِهِ وَإِبْدَالِهِ، أَوْ كَالظَّاهِرِ بِمَفْهُومِهِ إِذَا لَمْ تَكُنْ قَاطِعَةً بَلْ أَكْثَرِيَّةً، أَوْ كَالْمُجْمَلِ إِذَا كَانَتْ مُتَرَدِّدَةً، فَقَدْ يَنْبَغِي هَهُنَا أَنْ نُشِيرَ إِلَى مَرَاتِبِهَا وَإِنْ كَانَتْ عَسِيرًا مَا تَنْضَبِطُ فَنَقُولُ:

G-B2-0465 · grammar. «الشرط الوصلي بـ«وإن كان» — «إلى مراتبها وإن كانت عسيرا ما تنضبط فنقول». [Even if / although; the condition does not overturn the principal judgement.]

The first rank has the status of an unambiguous expression: the ruling applies with greater reason to the unmentioned case than to the stated one. Examples are His exalted saying, “God does not wrong anyone by an atom’s weight,”[Q1] and His saying, mighty and exalted, “Do not say ‘Uff’ to the two of them”[Q2]; likewise the Prophet’s saying, peace be upon him, “Hand over the thread and the needle,” and similar expressions. This has a range of clarity. They call it the purport of the discourse (فحوى الخطاب), and most do not call it qiyās.

Q1. Qurʾān, al-Nisāʾ 4:40 ↗.

Q2. Qurʾān, al-Isrāʾ 17:23 ↗. The Arabic quotation has wa-lā where the verse has fa-lā; the author’s wording is retained.

H1. ‘Hand over the thread and the needle’: Sunan al-Nasāʾī 3688. See §191 and the lexical explanation in N083, to which N099 refers.

N098 · translation. The relation is a fortiori: forbidding the lesser harm indicates the graver harm with greater reason. عرض here means a range or breadth of degrees, not an accidental property.

N099 · textual. Printed الخائط is retained; English “thread” understands الخياط. See the lexical and textual note at §191.

BA007 · scholarship. The a fortiori treatment shows how a prohibition against a lesser case may semantically include a more serious unstated case. Bou Akl distinguishes this mode of apprehending the legislator’s intention from moving directly between two particular cases by an inferred resemblance. “No qiyās” in the strict sense here does not mean “no interpretive reasoning.” Source: Bou Akl, “Averroes on Juridical Reasoning,” in Interpreting Averroes: Critical Essays (Cambridge UP, 2018), pp. 47–50, 52–54.

The second rank is where the unmentioned case has the same relevant meaning as the stated case with respect to the ruling. An example is his saying, peace be upon him, “Whoever emancipates his share in a slave must have the remainder assessed against him.” The case of a female slave is included with that of a male slave, since it has the same relevant meaning. They call this analogy within the meaning of the original case (القياس في معنى الأصل). This too has a range of greater and lesser clarity.

الْمَرْتَبَةُ الثَّانِيَةُ: أَنْ يَكُونَ الْمَسْكُوتُ عَنْهُ فِي مَعْنَى الْمَنْطُوقِ بِهِ فِي الْحُكْمِ، كَقَوْلِهِ عَلَيْهِ السَّلَامُ: «مَنْ أَعْتَقَ شِرْكًا لَهُ فِي عَبْدٍ قُوِّمَ عَلَيْهِ الْبَاقِي»، فَإِنَّ الْأَمَةَ تَلْتَحِقُ بِالْعَبْدِ وَهِيَ فِي مَعْنَاهُ. وَهَذَا يُسَمُّونَهُ بِالْقِيَاسِ فِي مَعْنَى الْأَصْلِ. وَلَهَذَا أَيْضًا عَرْضٌ فِي الظُّهُورِ وَقِلَّةِ الظُّهُورِ.

H1. Compare Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 2522. Ibn Rushd abbreviates the report for the analogy between male and female slaves. The full report conditions payment for the remaining share on the emancipator’s having sufficient wealth, and specifies the alternative when he does not.

The third rank is of the same kind as the second: it is prima facie. In most cases, however, its clarity is weaker, so we have placed it third. Here the unmentioned case is joined to the stated one because of a shared benefit (مصلحة), whose kind the Law has acknowledged as beneficial. They call this analogy from a plausible, suitable ground (القياس المخيل والمناسب).

لِجِنْسِهَا بِأَنَّهُ مَصْلَحَةٌ. وَهَذَا يُسَمُّونَهُ الْقِيَاسَ الْمُخَيِّلَ وَالْمُنَاسِبَ.

This kind has degrees of proximity and remoteness. When it is very close, they call it a congruent suitable ground (المناسب الملائم); many proponents of qiyās stop here. When it is intermediate, they do not call it congruent, but suitable and plausible. When it is very remote and completely general, as when we simply say "benefit," many proponents of qiyās reject it. Some jurists reason in this way when holding that divorce pronounced by a sick man does not cut off inheritance.

وَلِهَذَا الْجِنْسِ مَرَاتِبُ فِي الْقُرْبِ وَالْبُعْدِ، فَمَتَى كَانَ قَرِيبًا جِدًّا سَمَّوْهُ الْمُنَاسِبَ الْمُلَائِمَ، وَهُنَا انْتَهَى كَثِيرٌ مِنَ الْقَائِلِينَ بِالْقِيَاسِ. وَمَتَى كَانَ مُتَوَسِّطًا فِي الْقُرْبِ وَالْبُعْدِ لَمْ يُطْلِقُوا عَلَيْهِ اسْمَ الْمُلَائِمِ، وَسَمَّوْهُ الْمُنَاسِبَ وَالْمُخَيِّلَ. وَمَتَى كَانَ بَعِيدًا جِدًّا وَأَعَمَّ شَيْءٍ، كَقَوْلِنَا مَصْلَحَةٌ، فَإِنَّ كَثِيرًا مِنَ الْقَائِلِينَ بِالْقِيَاسِ لَا يَقُولُ بِهِ. وَمِثْلُ هَذَا يَرَاهُ بَعْضُ الْفُقَهَاءِ فِي طَلَاقِ الْمَرِيضِ أَنَّهُ لَا يَقْطَعُ الْمِيرَاثَ.

This last kind rightly deserves rejection as legal evidence, since benefits often diverge and vary with each time and circumstance. Those who reason this way are in fact legislating, rather than deriving rulings from the Law. An example is someone's saying, "New rulings arise for people in proportion to the new wickedness they introduce," or words to that effect. Mālik, God have mercy upon him, has been reproached for this, because he often attends to this kind.

N101 · translation. The rejection concerns the last, remote and unrestricted appeal to benefit; it should not be expanded into rejection of every legally grounded consideration of maṣlaḥa. The inheritance example concerns the effect of a sick husband's divorce on the wife's claim.

BA008 · scholarship. The suitable ground or recognized maṣlaḥa in this section is restricted by the explicit condition that the Law acknowledges the relevant kind. Bou Akl's analysis of semantic substitution cautions against treating an independently posited worldly benefit as a free-standing source of legal status. The passage also requires care: a jurist can reason about which general meaning the legal discourse indicates, without identifying this act with a demonstrative deduction. Source: Bou Akl, "Averroes on Juridical Reasoning," in Interpreting Averroes: Critical Essays (Cambridge UP, 2018), pp. 49–52. The fourth rank is what they call analogy by resemblance (قياس الشبه). The unmentioned case is joined to the stated one neither because it has a stronger claim, nor because it shares the same relevant meaning, nor because of a suitable operative ground. Rather, a resemblance between them suggests that it contains a ground common to both cases and appropriate to the ruling, although that ground has not been identified.

الْمَرْتَبَةُ الرَّابِعَةُ: وَهِيَ الَّتِي يَعْرِفُونَهَا بِقِيَاسِ الشَّبَهِ وَهُوَ أَنْ يَلْحَقَ الْمَسْكُوتُ عَنْهُ بِالْمَنْطُوقِ بِهِ، لَا لِأَنَّهُ أَوْلَى، وَلَا لِأَنَّهُ فِي مَعْنَاهُ، وَلَا لِعِلَّةٍ مُنَاسِبَةٍ، بَلْ يَلْحَقُ الْمَسْكُوتُ عَنْهُ بِالْمَنْطُوقِ بِهِ لِشَبَهٍ بَيْنَهُمَا يُظَنُّ بِهِ أَنَّهُ يَحْتَوِي عَلَى عِلَّةٍ جَامِعَةٍ بَيْنَهُمَا مُنَاسِبَةٍ لِلْحُكْمِ مِنْ غَيْرِ أَنْ يُوقَفَ عَلَيْهَا.

Most cases of this kind seem indeterminate, unless they join the second rank, which is within the meaning of the original case. An example is his saying, God bless him and grant him peace, “Do not sell wheat for wheat —the four known commodities—except hand to hand.” Some say he intended staple nourishment, some food, and some goods measured by volume. All this is their probable judgement: nourishment, measure, or edibility circumscribes the suitable factor requiring prohibition. To me this seems the remotest contextual indication used to understand a universal meaning from a particular expression. Many therefore confine such a report to what its wording requires.

هَذَا قَوْلُهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ: «لَا تَبِيعُوا الْبُرَّ بِالْبُرِّ الْأَرْبَعَةَ الْمَعْلُومَةَ إِلَّا هَاءَ بِهَاءَ»، فَإِنَّ قَوْمًا قَالُوا أَرَادَ بِذَلِكَ الْمُقْتَاتَ، وَقَوْمًا قَالُوا الْمَطْعُومَ، وَقَوْمًا قَالُوا الْمَكِيلَ. وَهَذَا كُلُّهُ ظَنٌّ مِنْهُمْ، فَإِنَّ الِاقْتِيَاتَ أَوِ الْكَيْلَ أَوِ الطَّعْمَ صِفَةٌ حَاصِرَةٌ لِلْأَمْرِ الْمُنَاسِبِ الْمُوجِبِ لِلتَّحْرِيمِ، وَهِيَ بِالْجُمْلَةِ فِيمَا يَظْهَرُ لِي أَبْعَدُ قَرِينَةٍ يُصَارُ إِلَيْهَا إِلَى أَنْ يُفْهَمَ عَنِ اللَّفْظِ الْجُزْئِيِّ الْمَعْنَى الْكُلِّيُّ، وَلِذَلِكَ كَثِيرٌ مِنَ النَّاسِ اقْتَصَرَ بِمِثْلِ هَذَا الْحَدِيثِ عَلَى مُقْتَضَى اللَّفْظِ.

H1. Compare Ṣaḥīḥ Muslim 1587c; see also §191. Ibn Rushd abbreviates the exchange report. The ‘four’ are its four food commodities—wheat, barley, dates and salt—within a full list that also includes gold and silver.

N102 · textual. Corrected against the critical apparatus at Bou Akl 2015, BA §267, Arabic p.294 (facing French p.295): the Escorial manuscript [أ] reads الثانية (“second”), while al-ʿAlawī 1994 [ع] prints الثالثة (“third”). The second rank is indeed the one Ibn Rushd called “within the meaning of the original case.” This is a substantive manuscript-attested correction, not merely a conjectural harmonization. The wheat report remains elliptical as witnessed.

N103 · textual. The editor reports that the manuscript read قياس السنة and emends it to قياس الشبه. The main text and translation follow the edited reading; the manuscript variant belongs to the editor’s apparatus.

N104 · lexical. الطَّعْم here denotes being consumable as food, not merely having a taste. Al-Fayyūmī expressly prefers fatḥa in the juristic phrase “al-ṭaʿm is the cause of ribā,” because it includes consumable liquids as well as solids; al-Miṣbāḥ al-munīr, s.v. طعم. ↗

BA009 · scholarship. “Analogy by resemblance” is contested because the shared ground has not been specified: an apparent resemblance does not automatically supply a valid legal generalization. For Bou Akl, genuine analogical exemplum is the particular-to-particular operation whose universal middle is not independently extracted; the article reconstructs this in conversation with al-Fārābī’s logical works. It is Bou Akl’s historical thesis, not an explicit acknowledgment by Ibn Rushd of his source. Know that the classes of prescribed matters differ in how clearly these contextual indications appear within them. Hence Abū Ḥanīfa did not permit qiyās in fixed penalties and expiations. It is clearer in matters of necessity, such as sale, marriage, and the like. As we said before, when an expression first appears it may be unknown whether it is a specific expression substituted for a general one. In some cases that is known, but the universal for which it has been substituted is unknown.

Here proponents of qiyās employ the kind of inference called testing and division (السبر والتقسيم). Some, though fewer, also employ positive and negative concomitance (الطرد والعكس). We must explain how they use these.

وَالْقَائِلُونَ بِالْقِيَاسِ يَسْتَعْمِلُونَ فِي هَذَا الْمَوْضِعِ مِنْ أَجْنَاسِ الْقِيَاسِ النَّوْعَ الَّذِي يَعْرِفُونَهُ بِالسَّبْرِ وَالتَّقْسِيمِ وَرُبَّمَا اسْتَعْمَلَ بَعْضُهُمْ، لَكِنْ هُمُ الْأَقَلُّ، الطَّرْدَ وَالْعَكْسَ. وَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ نُبَيِّنَ كَيْفَ يَسْتَعْمِلُونَ ذَلِكَ.

When it is unknown whether a particular expression has been used to express a universal meaning, testing and division proceeds as follows. We say: either this particular expression is used to express a universal meaning or it retains its original meaning. We then show that it does not retain that meaning. Next we must determine which universal is intended. We enumerate all the universal meanings probably intended by the particular expression, eliminate them one by one until only one remains, and judge that this is the universal intended by that particular.

If it is apparent from the outset that a particular expression has been substituted for a universal, but not apparent which universal, we employ testing and division to determine it.

Positive concomitance (طرد) occurs when a ruling is given concerning something and we assign it to another thing because of a resemblance we find between them, applying it uniformly to the latter. On this basis we judge that the expression has been cast in particular form while intending the universal in which the two resemble one another.

This procedure may be strengthened by considering both presence and absence: any universal whose presence brings the ruling and whose absence removes it is taken as the ground on which the ruling depends (مناط الحكم). This is what they call negative concomitance (عكس). Most proponents of qiyās agree in rejecting the determination of a ruling's ground through positive and negative concomitance.

N105 · translation. Ṭard and ʿaks here refer to alleged concomitance of a property and a ruling in presence and absence. They do not mean logical conversion of a categorical proposition in this passage. Ibn Rushd reports the rejection of using such correlation alone to identify the operative ground.

In general, it appears that in most cases proponents of qiyās in the Law do not use it to derive an unknown ruling from a known one, in the way an unknown conclusion is derived from intellectually apprehended premises. They use it to establish the correctness of substituting expressions in each context and case. What they call analogy from a plausible, suitable ground and analogy by resemblance are contextual indications of verbal substitution. They are not syllogisms and perform no syllogistic operation, although those studying this discipline have not clearly recognised the distinction.

وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَإِنَّهُ مِمَّا يَظْهَرُ أَنَّ أَكْثَرَ الْمَوَاضِعِ الَّتِي يَسْتَعْمِلُ الْقِيَاسَ فِيهَا الْقَائِلُونَ بِالْقِيَاسِ فِي الشَّرْعِ لَيْسَ يَسْتَعْمِلُونَهُ فِي اسْتِنْبَاطِ حُكْمٍ مَجْهُولٍ عَنْ مَعْلُومٍ، عَلَى جِهَةِ مَا يُسْتَنْبَطُ عَنِ الْمُقَدِّمَاتِ الْمَعْقُولَةِ مَطْلَبٌ مَجْهُولٌ، لَكِنْ فِي تَصْحِيحِ إِبْدَالِ الْأَلْفَاظِ فِي مَكَانٍ مَكَانٍ وَنَازِلَةٍ نَازِلَةٍ، فَإِنَّ الْأَنْوَاعَ الَّتِي يُسَمُّونَهَا بِالْقِيَاسِ الْمُخَيِّلِ وَالْمُنَاسِبِ وَقِيَاسِ الشَّبَهِ هِيَ قَرَائِنُ تَدُلُّ عِنْدَهُمْ عَلَى إِبْدَالِ الْأَلْفَاظِ، وَلَيْسَتْ أَقْيِسَةً، وَلَا يُوجَدُ لَهَا فِعْلُ الْقِيَاسِ، وَإِنْ كَانَ لَمْ يَتَمَيَّزْ لِلنَّاظِرِينَ فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ أَمْرُ هَذَا التَّمْيِيزِ،

This is evident from their arguments against those who reject qiyās, whom they call the Ẓāhirīs (أهل الظاهر, "People of the Apparent"). The latter confronted them with a difficulty they could not escape: where knowledge comes through revelation and God's command, intellects have no part in affirming or denying anything of it. Moreover, rulings are not attributes of things' essences that intellects can apprehend. In general, qiyās has no part in whatever depends upon authoritative instruction (توقيف); its means of knowledge is transmitted communication (سمع), as with languages and similar things.

وَذَلِكَ ظَاهِرٌ مِنْ أَقَاوِيلِهِمُ الَّتِي يَسْتَعْمِلُونَهَا فِي مُنَاقَضَةِ الْقَائِلِينَ بِرَدِّ الْقِيَاسِ، وَهُمُ الْمُسَمَّوْنَ عِنْدَهُمْ أَهْلَ الظَّاهِرِ، لِأَنَّ هَؤُلَاءِ الْقَوْمَ أَلْزَمُوا الْقَائِلِينَ بِالْقِيَاسِ أَمْرًا لَمْ يَجِدُوا عَنْهُ مَحِيصًا، وَهُوَ أَنَّ مَا سَبِيلُ الْمَعْرِفَةِ بِهِ الْوَحْيُ وَالْأَمْرُ مِنَ اللَّهِ فَإِنَّهُ لَيْسَ لِلْعُقُولِ فِي إِثْبَاتِ شَيْءٍ مِنْ ذَلِكَ وَإِبْطَالِهِ مَدْخَلٌ، وَأَيْضًا فَإِنَّ الْأَحْكَامَ لَيْسَتْ صِفَاتِ ذَوَاتٍ فَتُدْرِكَهَا الْعُقُولُ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ كُلُّ مَا ثبوته التَّوْقِيفُ لَا مَدْخَلَ لِلْقِيَاسِ فِيهِ، وَإِنَّمَا طَرِيقُ الْمَعْرِفَةِ بِهِ السَّمْعُ كَاللُّغَاتِ وَغَيْرِ ذَلِكَ.

This objection applies only to someone who reasons from an original case whose wording contains no indication pointing to the underlying ground—for example, analogising the penalty for wine drinking to that for an unsubstantiated accusation of illicit intercourse (قذف). It does not apply to someone whose original case includes its operative ground in the understood meaning, even if the verbal form does not contain it. Most legal instances of qiyās belong to this kind. Had they understood this point, they could have answered their opponents.

N106 · translation. The Arabic repeats الأصل in the phrase التنبيه على الأصل. “Underlying ground” conveys its function without silently supplying a new Arabic word. The relevant contrast is an extension indicated by the source’s meaning versus a comparison unsupported by that source’s signification.

BA011 · scholarship. Critical interpretive point: Ibn Rushd repeatedly says “in most cases” (akthar al-mawāḍiʿ), not “in every case.” His denial that the familiar suitable/resemblance operations are aqyisa in the strict logical sense is compatible with accepting a narrower kind of genuine juristic analogy where no textual tanbīh gives the underlying ground. This is the distinction Bou Akl argues was already present here, and became clearer in the Bidāya. Article p. 50 cites this as 2015 §272; here it is §223. Source: Bou Akl, “Averroes on Juridical Reasoning,” in Interpreting Averroes: Critical Essays (Cambridge UP, 2018), pp. 46, 49–55, 62–63. This remains an interpretive argument; not a silently adopted manuscript reading.

BA15-I08 · interpretive. Juristic inference and Farabi. Bou Akl 2015 pp.57–70 compares the classification with al-Fārābī’s exemplum (mithāl) and the rhetorical particular-to-particular inference. Ibn Rushd’s “in most cases” qualification matters: treating all legal qiyās as linguistic substitution would erase the limited residual genuine analogy.

وَأَمَّا أَهْلُ الظَّاهِرِ وَمَنْ يُجَوِّزُ الِاسْتِدْلَالَ بِظَوَاهِرِ الْأَلْفَاظِ مِنْ جِهَةِ صِيَغِهَا، فَقَدْ يَنْبَغِي لَهُ أَلَّا يُنْكِرَ الْقِيَاسَ الَّذِي فِي مَعْنَى الْأَصْلِ، وَالْمُخَيِّلَ وَالْمُنَاسِبَ الْمُلَائِمَ إِذَا شَهِدَ الشَّرْعُ بِالِالْتِفَاتِ إِلَى جِنْسِهِ الْقَرِيبِ. فَإِنَّ هَذِهِ كُلَّهَا قَرَائِنُ نَظِيرَ الْأَلْفَاظِ ظَاهِرَةً بِمَفْهُومَاتِهَا، وَإِنْ لَمْ تَكُنْ بِصِيَغِهَا، وَلَا مَعْنَى لِقَوْلِ مَنْ لَا يَرَى الظَّاهِرَ إِلَّا فِي الصِّيغَةِ.

The Ẓāhirīs, and anyone allowing inference from expressions’ prima facie forms, should therefore not deny analogy within the original case’s meaning, or analogy from a plausible and congruently suitable ground, when the Law demonstrably attends to its proximate kind. These are all contextual indications that [make] expressions prima facie through their understood meanings, even when they are not so through their forms. There is no sense in recognising prima facie signification only in verbal form.

N107 · textual. The scan prints قرائن نظير الألفاظ ظاهرة. The syntax is defective. English tentatively reads نظير as تصير, “make,” consistent with the repeated account of contextual indications making expressions prima facie through their understood meaning. The Arabic preserves نظير, and the supplied English verb is bracketed.

N108 · textual. The vowels on the retained defective phrase do not repair its syntax. The reading نظير remains a crux (†); the English’s contextual supplement is not a recovered Arabic verb.

BA012 · scholarship. The objection to recognizing only a wording’s surface form targets an overly narrow account of verbal signification. Intended import may be apparent through contextual indications although the overt expression is particular. In Bou Akl’s account the Ẓāhirīs can dispute a genuine exemplum but cannot consistently exclude ordinary semantic substitution without rejecting recognized usages of speech. The 2015 article concordance is §273 = reader §224. Source: Bou Akl, “Averroes on Juridical Reasoning,” in Interpreting Averroes: Critical Essays (Cambridge UP, 2018), pp. 51–54.

وَقَدْ رَامَ الْقَائِلُونَ بِالْقِيَاسِ أَنْ يُثْبِتُوهُ مِنْ جِهَةِ إِجْمَاعِ الصَّحَابَةِ عَلَى ذَلِكَ، فَنَقَلُوا عَنْ كَثِيرٍ مِنْهُمْ أَقَاوِيلَ تَدُلُّ فِيمَا زَعَمُوا عَلَى الْقَوْلِ بِالْقِيَاسِ، فَعَانَدَهُمْ أَهْلُ الظَّاهِرِ فِي مَوْضِعَيْنِ: أَحَدُهُمَا: فِي نَفْسِ الْإِجْمَاعِ، وَذَلِكَ أَنَّهُ لَمْ يُنْقَلْ ذَلِكَ عَنْ جَمِيعِهِمْ، وَلَيْسَ يُنْسَبُ إِلَى سَاكِتٍ قَوْلُ قَائِلٍ كَمَا تَقَدَّمَ. وَالثَّانِي: أَنَّهُ لَوْ وَقَعَ مِنْهُمْ فِي ذَلِكَ إِجْمَاعٌ لَمَا وَرَدَ

Proponents of qiyās have sought to establish it through the Companions’ consensus. They transmitted statements from many Companions which, they claimed, support qiyās. The Ẓāhirīs challenged them on two grounds. First, consensus itself was unestablished: such statements were not transmitted from all the Companions, and, as explained earlier, a speaker’s statement cannot be attributed to someone silent. Second, had consensus occurred, disagreement would not have been transmitted from the Successors. They also cited reports from the Companions rejecting qiyās. In general, its proponents could not establish their claimed consensus.

عَنِ التَّابِعِينَ فِي ذَلِكَ خِلَافٌ. وَأَيْضًا فَقَدْ تَمَسَّكَ أَهْلُ الظَّاهِرِ بِأَحَادِيثَ نُقِلَتْ عَنِ الصَّحَابَةِ فِي دَفْعِ الْقِيَاسِ. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ فَلَمْ يَقْدِرِ الْقَائِلُونَ بِالْقِيَاسِ أَنْ يُصَحِّحُوا الْإِجْمَاعَ الَّذِي ادَّعَوْهُ فِي ذَلِكَ.

Moreover, the Companions' transmitted expressions about qiyās admit several interpretations. On examination they seem likely to disclose the meaning we have assigned to qiyās: the Companions were exercising independent inquiry into expressions' understood meanings. What the Ẓāhirīs seem entitled to resist is deriving substitution or metaphor through testing and division, or through other procedures, when none of the contextual indications we have enumerated is present.

وَأَيْضًا فَإِنَّ الْأَلْفَاظَ الْوَارِدَةَ عَنِ الصَّحَابَةِ فِي الْقِيَاسِ مُحْتَمِلَةٌ، وَيُشْبِهُ إِذَا تُؤُمِّلَتْ أَنْ يَظْهَرَ مِنْ أَمْرِهَا هَذَا الْمَعْنَى الَّذِي قُلْنَاهُ فِي الْقِيَاسِ، وَإِنَّ ذَلِكَ إِنَّمَا كَانَ مِنْهُمُ اجْتِهَادًا فِي مَفْهُومِ الْأَلْفَاظِ. وَالَّذِي يُشْبِهُ أَنْ يَكُونَ لِأَهْلِ الظَّاهِرِ فِيهِ مَدْفَعٌ اسْتِنْبَاطُ الْإِبْدَالِ أَوِ الِاسْتِعَارَةِ بِطَرِيقِ السَّبْرِ وَالتَّقْسِيمِ أَوْ بِغَيْرِهَا مِنَ الطُّرُقِ، إِذَا لَمْ يَكُنْ هُنَالِكَ إِحدى الْقَرَائِنِ الَّتِي عَدَدْنَاهَا.

Anyone who permits that procedure should permit it for all expressions involving substitution, metaphor, omission, or, generally, alteration. Just as these contextual indications can generalise a specific expression, they can also restrict a general one.

This discussion has shown what the term qiyās signifies in this discipline, which class of legal evidence it belongs to, and where it may and may not be used. Among the ways of legal evidence, there remain the Prophet's action and tacit approval, God bless him and grant him peace. These are evidence through their character as contextual indications, rather than through verbal forms or understood meanings. We shall discuss each of them and its force.

فَقَدْ ظَهَرَ مِنْ هَذَا الْقَوْلِ مَا هُوَ الْمَعْنَى الْمَدْلُولُ عَلَيْهِ بِاسْمِ الْقِيَاسِ فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ، وَفِي أَيِّ جِنْسٍ دُخُولُهُ مِنْ أَجْنَاسِ الْأَدِلَّةِ الشَّرْعِيَّةِ، وَفِي أَيِّ الْمَوَاضِعِ يُسْتَعْمَلُ، وَفِي أَيِّهَا لَا. وَقَدْ بَقِيَ عَلَيْنَا مِنْ طُرُقِ الْأَدِلَّةِ الشَّرْعِيَّةِ الدَّلِيلُ الَّذِي هُوَ فِعْلُهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ وَإِقْرَارُهُ. وَهَذَانِ الصِّنْفَانِ لَيْسَ هُمَا أَدِلَّةً مِنْ جِهَةِ صِيَغِ الْأَلْفَاظِ أَوْ مَفْهُومِهَا، بَلْ مِنْ جِهَةِ مَا هِيَ قَرَائِنُ. وَنَحْنُ نَقُولُ فِي وَاحِدٍ وَاحِدٍ مِنْهَا، وَمَا قُوَّتُهُ.

As for his tacit approval, God bless him and grant him peace: when an act is done in his presence and it is certainly known that he saw and approved it, this shows that the act may occur in that manner and—if it is a legal judgement—that it is binding. Or it shows permissibility when the act had been supposed forbidden. This follows from his established protection from error in what he called people to and in what he approved, God bless him and grant him peace.

أَمَّا إِقْرَارُهُ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ عَلَى فِعْلٍ فُعِلَ بِمُشَاهَدَتِهِ وَعُلِمَ قَطْعًا أَنَّهُ رَآهُ فَأَقَرَّهُ، فَإِنَّهُ يَدُلُّ عَلَى جَوَازِ وُقُوعِ ذَلِكَ الْفِعْلِ عَلَى تِلْكَ الصِّفَةِ وَإِيجَابِهِ إِنْ كَانَ حُكْمًا شَرْعِيًّا، أَوْ عَلَى إِبَاحَةِ ذَلِكَ إِنْ تُخُيِّلَ فِيهِ أَنَّهُ مَحْظُورٌ لِثُبُوتِ عِصْمَتِهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ فِيمَا دَعَا إِلَيْهِ، وَفِيمَا أَقَرَّ عَلَيْهِ.

8. On action

8) الْقَوْلُ فِي الْفِعْلِ

R 228 · BA 277 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 133 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 302

His actions, God bless him and grant him peace, are of several kinds. One explains a general or indeterminate expression. Such an action by him, God bless him and grant him peace, bears the ruling of the general expression: if that is recommended, the action is recommended; if obligatory, the action is obligatory. The evidence is his saying, peace be upon him, "Pray as you have seen me pray, and take your pilgrimage rites from me."

H1. These clauses come from separately transmitted reports: 'Pray as you have seen me pray' is in Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 631; for the pilgrimage rites, compare Ṣaḥīḥ Muslim 1297. Muslim's wording is لتأخذوا مناسككم, whereas Ibn Rushd quotes خذوا عني مناسككم. The latter clause is not part of al-Bukhārī 631.

The second kind is the opposite: it is known through a circumstantial or verbal indicator ⟨that the action is peculiar to him. The third is⟩ intermediate between these two: actions of his, God bless him and grant him peace, for which it is unknown whether they explain an indeterminate expression, clarify a general one, or are peculiar to him. Here people disagree. Some construe them as obligatory, others as recommended, and others withhold judgement. This is Abū Ḥāmid's preferred view, because an action has no verbal form.

Those construing the action as obligatory cite prima facie expressions that nevertheless admit other meanings, such as His exalted saying, "In God's Messenger you have a good example."[Q1] Those construing it as recommended appeal to the Companions' imitation of his actions, God bless him and grant him peace: removing their sandals in prayer when he removed his, and refraining from shaving in the year of al-Ḥudaybiyya until he shaved. Proponents of obligation can also appeal to these actions of the Companions, may God be pleased with them.

In reply, someone who holds that an action establishes no ruling may say: the Companions acted this way only where they knew, from either circumstantial indications or a statement, that he, God bless him and grant him peace, was explaining obligations or recommendations through his action. In general, the question admits independent judgement. The more apparent view is that no ruling can be assigned on the basis of this kind of action by him, God bless him and grant him peace, since it remains undecided between obligation, recommendation, permission, and being peculiar to him.

When his actions, peace be upon him, explain [an indeterminate expression] or clarify a general one and conflict, they have the same status as two conflicting statements. We shall discuss this later, as also the conflict of an action with a statement. Here ends the discussion in Part Three of this book.

الْقَوْلُ فِي الْجُزْءِ الرَّابِعِ

It comprises three chapters: one on independent juristic inquiry, one on following authority, and one on weighing the evidence.

Chapter One. On independent juristic inquiry

الْفَصْلُ الْأَوَّلُ: فِي الِاجْتِهَادِ

R 231 · BA 282 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 137 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 306

Its discussion divides into examination of the independent jurist (مجتهد), the subject of his inquiry, and independent inquiry itself (اجتهاد). Independent inquiry is the jurist's exertion of his utmost capacity in seeking an answer by means of the instruments required of him.

وَيَنْقَسِمُ الْقَوْلُ فِيهِ إِلَى النَّظَرِ فِي الْمُجْتَهِدِ، وَالْمُجْتَهَدِ فِيهِ، وَنَفْسِ الِاجْتِهَادِ. أَمَّا الِاجْتِهَادُ فَهُوَ بَذْلُ الْمُجْتَهِدِ وُسْعَهُ فِي الطَّلَبِ بِالْآلَاتِ الَّتِي تُشْتَرَطُ فِيهِ.

The definition of the independent jurist is that he knows the sources from which he derives rulings and possesses the rules and requisite conditions by which he derives them. Since the sources are three—the Book, the Sunna, and consensus—we must state how much knowledge of each suffices for him.

Sufficient knowledge of the Book consists in knowing the verses containing rulings and distinguishing the abrogating from the abrogated among them; they number about five hundred verses. This is a concession: knowing the whole Book is preferable. He is also excused from memorising the verses containing rulings if he knows where they occur, so that when a question arises he knows where to look for them.

أَمَّا مَا يَكْفِيهِ مِنْ مَعْرِفَةِ الْكِتَابِ فَمَعْرِفَةُ الْآيَاتِ الْمُتَضَمِّنَةِ لِلْأَحْكَامِ، وَمَعْرِفَةُ النَّاسِخِ مِنْهَا مِنَ الْمَنْسُوخِ، وَهِيَ نَحْوُ خَمْسِ مِئَةِ آيَةٍ، هَذَا عَلَى وَجْهِ التَّخْفِيفِ، وَالْأَفْضَلُ لَهُ مَعْرِفَةُ الْكِتَابِ كُلِّهِ. وَقَدْ رُخِّصَ لَهُ فِي حِفْظِ الْآيَاتِ الْمُتَضَمِّنَةِ لِلْأَحْكَامِ إِذَا كَانَتْ مَوَاضِعُهَا مَعْلُومَةً عِنْدَهُ بِحَيْثُ إِذَا وَرَدَتْ مَسْأَلَةٌ فِي أَمْرٍ مَا عَلِمَ أَيْنَ يَطْلُبُهَا.

Sufficient knowledge of the Sunna consists in knowing the reports that contain rulings. He may be excused from memorising them: it is enough to possess a corrected collection of all the reports containing rulings, to which he can refer when a legal opinion is needed. Memorizing them is preferable.

وَأَمَّا مَا يَكْفِيهِ مِنْ مَعْرِفَةِ السُّنَّةِ، فَمَعْرِفَةُ الْأَحَادِيثِ الَّتِي تَتَضَمَّنُ الْأَحْكَامَ. وَقَدْ يُخَفَّفُ عَنْهُ فِي أَنْ لَا يَحْفَظَهَا، بَلْ يَكْفِيهِ أَنْ يَكُونَ عِنْدَهُ أَصْلٌ مُصَحَّحٌ لِجَمِيعِ الْأَحَادِيثِ الْمُتَضَمِّنَةِ لِلْأَحْكَامِ يَرْجِعُ إِلَيْهِ وَقْتَ الْحَاجَةِ إِلَى الْفَتْوَى، وَالْأَفْضَلُ لَهُ أَنْ يَحْفَظَهَا.

As for knowing the soundness of their transmission chains, if he relies on someone he trusts, such as al-Bukhārī or Muslim, he is following authority. Yet if he must himself establish the transmitters' uprightness and investigate their biographies, circumstances, and dates, the task becomes protracted and immensely intricate, especially as time grows distant. The concession is to accept a leading scholar's accreditation, provided he knows that scholar's approach to discrediting and accrediting transmitters and it agrees with his own.

وَأَمَّا مَعْرِفَةُ صِحَّةِ أَسَانِيدِهَا، فَإِنْ هُوَ عَوَّلَ فِي صِحَّتِهَا عَلَى مَنْ يُحْسِنُ ظَنَّهُ بِهِ كَالْبُخَارِيِّ وَمُسْلِمٍ كَانَ مُقَلِّدًا، وَإِنْ هُوَ

أَيْضًا احْتَاجَ أَنْ يُعَدِّلَ الرُّوَاةَ وَيَتَّبِعَ سِيَرَهُمْ وَأَحْوَالَهُمْ وَأَوْقَاتَهُمْ طَالَ عَلَيْهِ وَتَشَعَّبَ جِدًّا، وَلَا سِيَّمَا مَا تَبَاعَدَ الزَّمَانُ. وَالتَّخْفِيفُ عَنْهُ فِي ذَلِكَ أَنْ يَكْتَفِيَ بِتَعْدِيلِ الْإِمَامِ فِي ذَلِكَ إِذَا عَلِمَ مَذْهَبَهُ فِي التَّجْرِيحِ وَالتَّعْدِيلِ، وَكَانَ ذَلِكَ مُوَافِقًا لِمَذْهَبِهِ.

As for consensus, he should know all the questions on which consensus has been reached. It may suffice that he knows his opinion on the question he is answering does not oppose consensus, by knowing that it agrees with an opinion someone has held. Before all this, he must possess enough knowledge of vocabulary and language to understand the Book of God, exalted is He, and the Sunna of His Prophet, God bless him and grant him peace, without linguistic error.

They also require knowledge of theology (علم الكلام): possession of the evidence giving knowledge of God and His attributes, leading to knowledge of the world's origination, and the other matters theology contains. This is required only on the view that the first obligation is rational examination and inference. On the other view, faith based simply on the Law suffices without rational examination. As for the derived details of jurisprudence, he has no need of them, because it is the independent jurist who generates them.

These requirements as a whole apply to the independent jurist in the unrestricted sense, who can give a legal opinion in every case. Someone who possesses only some of them may exercise independent inquiry in a question for which the requirements he possesses are sufficient. His relation to that question is the same as that of the unrestricted independent jurist to all questions.

The subject of independent inquiry is every legal ruling for which there is no decisive evidence. We must consider whether the ruling sought is determinate in itself and one is charged with attaining it, or whether no determinate ruling exists toward which the inquiry is directed, the obligation resting solely on attaining a preponderant judgement. On the latter account, every independent jurist would be correct, even when their opinions on the same thing contradict one another. We say:

N112 · grammar. The compressed phrase وَمُكَلَّفٌ إِصَابَتُهُ is vocalised as a passive nominal construction, with attainment itself treated as the thing required. The English makes the implicit responsible inquirer explicit. This does not settle a possible ellipsis in the source wording.

BA015 · scholarship. Distinguish two questions rather than collapsing both into "every mujtahid is correct": (a) is there a determinate true ruling independent of an individual judgement? and (b) is the mistaken, diligent jurist morally/legal culpable? Bou Akl calls these the alethic and juridical levels. His distinction provides a useful map of §§237–245, but the scheme is modern scholarly analysis, not vocabulary Ibn Rushd himself employs. Source: Bou Akl, "Splitting the Process and the Result," in Philosophy and Jurisprudence in the Islamic World (De Gruyter, 2019), pp. 140–143.

BA15-I09 · interpretive. Fallibilism with a determinate object. Bou Akl 2015 intro pp.88–99 argues that Ibn Rushd's consistent juristic fallibilism presupposes a determinate intended legal judgement even when evidence remains probable; this is different from a claim that the individual's knowledge is infallible.

Whoever holds that rulings are attributes of things' essences—whether known when the Law is added, or beforehand, or with both kinds among them, as the Muʿtazila hold—cannot declare every independent jurist correct. The same applies to those rejecting qiyās in the Law. They too hold that whatever has received no legal discourse remains under original freedom from obligation, as permissible; whereas something receiving legal discourse has a determinate ruling.

وَأَمَّا نَحْنُ فَقَدْ سَلَفَ مِنْ قَوْلِنَا أَنَّ مَدَارِكَ أَحْكَامِ الشَّرْعِ الْخِطَابُ، وَأَنَّ الْخِطَابَ مِنْهُ مَا يُوجِبُ الْحُكْمَ بِصِيغَتِهِ، وَمِنْهُ بِمَفْهُومِهِ. وَأَنَّ الَّذِي يَعْنُونَ بِالْقِيَاسِ دَاخِلٌ فِي هَذَا

Our own position has already been stated: legal rulings are apprehended through discourse, which sometimes requires a ruling through its form and sometimes through its understood meaning. What they mean by qiyās falls within this class. Both kinds divide, with respect to the obligation to act on them, into unambiguous and prima facie indications. Consequently, one cannot maintain that every independent jurist is correct, since rulings are received through the given discourse in all the kinds we have enumerated, whether verbal expression or contextual indication.

الْجِنْسِ، وَأَنَّ كِلَا هَذَيْنِ الصِّنْفَيْنِ يَنْقَسِمَانِ فِي وُجُوبِ الْعَمَلِ بِهِمَا إِلَى نَصٍّ وَإِلَى ظَاهِرٍ. وَإِذَا كَانَ هَذَا هَكَذَا لَمْ يَتَصَوَّرْ أَنْ يُقَالَ كُلُّ مُجْتَهِدٍ مُصِيبٌ، إِذْ كَانَتْ سَبِيلُ تَلَقِّي الْأَحْكَامِ الْخِطَابَ الْوَارِدَ، وَذَلِكَ فِي جَمِيعِ أَصْنَافِهِ الَّتِي عُدِّدَتْ مِنْ لَفْظٍ أَوْ قَرِينَةٍ.

Where knowledge comes through discourse, there is undoubtedly a determinate ruling: that to which the discourse relates. What the given discourse does not contain, and no contextual indication signifies, remains under original freedom from obligation and is excused. This is one kind of permission ascribed to the Law. This is the meaning of His saying, mighty and exalted, “We have neglected nothing in the Book”[Q1]: nothing bearing a ruling is left uncontained there; whatever it does not contain through any of the forms of legal evidence is passed over.

N113 · translation. The Qurʾānic quotation ends at “the Book” in the English translation of ما فرطنا في الكتاب من شيء. The following explanation about things bearing rulings is Ibn Rushd’s gloss, not additional Qurʾānic wording.

Abū Ḥāmid holds here that every independent jurist is correct. He has enumerated and rejected the objections to that claim, but has not included the argument we have given. He follows two routes in establishing that every independent jurist is correct. We shall show that his alleged consequences do not follow.

His first route is this. He says: if there were a determinate ruling in matters whose path is independent inquiry, the obligation would concern attaining it. In that case there would be decisive evidence leading to it; otherwise this would impose an obligation beyond one’s capacity, which has already been shown impossible.

إِحْدَاهُمَا أَنَّهُ قَالَ: لَوْ كَانَ هَهُنَا حُكْمٌ مُتَعَيِّنٌ فِيمَا طَرِيقُهُ الِاجْتِهَادُ لَكَانَ التَّكْلِيفُ مُتَعَلِّقًا بِإِصَابَتِهِ، وَلَوْ كَانَ ذَلِكَ لَكَانَ عَلَيْهِ دَلِيلٌ قَطْعِيٌّ يُفْضِي إِلَيْهِ، وَإِلَّا كَانَ مِنْ بَابِ تَكْلِيفِ مَا لَا يُطَاقُ، وَقَدْ تَقَدَّمَ امْتِنَاعُهُ.

He then attempts to show that the indications used in independent inquiry are probable, yield the two contradictories equally, and acquire preponderance only according to each person’s natural inclination in each ruling and each case.

ثُمَّ أَخَذَ يُبَيِّنُ أَنَّ الدَّلَائِلَ الْمُسْتَعْمَلَةَ فِي الِاجْتِهَادِ ظَنِّيَّةٌ يَحْصُلُ عَنْهَا النَّقِيضَانِ بِالسَّوَاءِ، وَأَنَّ التَّرَجُّحَ فِيهَا إِنَّمَا هُوَ

بِحَسَبِ مَا طُبِعَ عَلَيْهِ شَخْصٌ شَخْصٌ مِنَ الْمَيْلِ فِي حُكْمٍ حُكْمٍ، وَنَازِلَةٍ نَازِلَةٍ.

To say such a thing is a grave offence and a resort to arbitrary judgement in the Law through desires and inclinations; we seek God’s protection from it. Legal evidence, as we said, is either decisive or preponderantly probable, with action on the latter required by a certainly established principle. In either case the ruling undoubtedly follows from the evidence itself, according to its signification, not according to each person’s natural disposition.

وَالْقَوْلُ بِمِثْلِ هَذَا كَبِيرَةٌ وَمَصِيرٌ إِلَى التَّحَكُّمِ فِي الشَّرْعِ بِالْأَهْوَاءِ وَالْإِرَادَاتِ، نَعُوذُ بِاللَّهِ مِنْ ذَلِكَ. بَلِ الْأَدِلَّةُ الشَّرْعِيَّةُ، كَمَا تَقَدَّمَ مِنْ قَوْلِنَا، إِمَّا قَطْعِيَّةٌ، وَإِمَّا ظَنِّيَّةٌ أَكْثَرِيَّةٌ وَجَبَ الْعَمَلُ بِهَا بِالْأَصْلِ الْمَقْطُوعِ بِهِ. وَمَا كَانَ هَكَذَا فَالْحُكْمُ لَا شَكَّ يَحْصُلُ عَنْهَا بِذَاتِهَا، لَا بِحَسَبِ مَا طُبِعَ عَلَيْهِ إِنْسَانٌ إِنْسَانٌ، بَلْ بِحَسَبِ دَلَالَتِهَا،

Hence an indication undecided equally between contradictories is called indeterminate in this discipline and is not accepted as legal evidence at all. In general, denying that evidence itself yields what is sought—whether the evidence is rational or legal—is a thoroughly sophistical claim, to be avoided because of its great harm to the Law. Since evidence leading to the object sought exists, requiring one to attain it is not an obligation beyond one’s capacity.

وَلِذَلِكَ مَا كَانَ مِنَ الْأَدِلَّةِ مُتَرَدِّدًا بَيْنَ النَّقِيضَيْنِ عَلَى السَّوَاءِ سُمِّيَ فِي هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ مُجْمَلًا، وَلَمْ يُجْعَلْ دَلِيلًا شَرْعِيًّا أَصْلًا. وَبِالْجُمْلَةِ الْقَوْلُ بِأَنْ لَيْسَ هُنَا أَدِلَّةٌ يَحْصُلُ عَنْهَا بِذَاتِهَا الطَّلَبُ، وَسَوَاءٌ كَانَتِ الْأَدِلَّةُ عَقْلِيَّةً أَوْ شَرْعِيَّةً، هُوَ قَوْلٌ سُوفَسْطَائِيٌّ جِدًّا، وَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ يُتَجَنَّبَ، فَإِنَّهُ عَظِيمُ الضَّرَرِ فِي الشَّرِيعَةِ. وَإِذَا كَانَ هَذَا هَكَذَا، وَكَانَ هَهُنَا أَدِلَّةٌ تُفْضِي إِلَى الْمَطْلُوبِ، لَمْ يَكُنْ تَكْلِيفُ إِصَابَتِهِ مِنْ بَابِ مَا لَا يُطَاقُ.

His other argument is drawn from obligation. Since the obligatory was defined as that whose omission incurs punishment, he argues: if the obligation concerning a thing were a determinate ruling, failure to attain it would incur sin. But consensus establishes that independent jurists are not charged with sin.

Therefore, the absence of sin entails the absence of error.

We say that exemption from sin does not entail absence of error. Unintentional error is pardoned in the Law; it occurs through forgetfulness, inattention, and inadvertence. We have repeatedly said that legal evidence is either decisive or preponderant. The path to decisive evidence is plainly accessible, and inadvertence and mistake are rare in it; hence error there seems to entail sin. With probable evidence, however, mistake and inadvertence occur often, so error does not entail sin.

وَنَحْنُ نَقُولُ إِنَّهُ لَيْسَ يَلْزَمُ عَنْ سُقُوطِ التَّأْثِيمِ انْتِفَاءُ الْخَطَإِ، إِذِ الْخَطَأُ الغير متعم د مَصْفُوحٌ عَنْهُ فِي الشَّرْعِ، وَهُوَ يَقَعُ بالنسيان وَالْغَفْلَةُ وَالسَّهْوُ. وَقَدْ قُلْنَا غَيْرَ مَا مَرَّةٍ إِنَّ الْأَدِلَّةَ الشَّرْعِيَّةَ إِمَّا قَطْعِيَّةٌ، وَإِمَّا أَكْثَرِيَّةٌ. أَمَّا الْقَطْعِيَّةُ فَالطَّرِيقُ إِلَيْهَا مَهْيَعٌ، وَوُقُوعُ السَّهْوِ فِيهَا وَالْغَلَطِ يَقِلُّ، فَلِذَلِكَ يُشْبِهُ أَنْ يَلْزَمَ التَّأْثِيمُ فِيهَا بِلُزُومِ الْخَطَإِ. وَأَمَّا الظَّنِّيَّةُ فَالْغَلَطُ كَثِيرًا مَا يَقَعُ فِيهَا وَالسَّهْوُ، فَلِذَلِكَ لَمْ يَلْزَمْ مِنَ الْخَطَإِ فِيهَا التَّأْثِيمُ.

The definition of the obligatory as that whose omission incurs punishment means that punishment attaches to omission after its obligatory status has become known, where decisive evidence leads to that knowledge. If someone errs or is inadvertent in a matter liable to error and thus has no way to know its obligatory status, how could he incur sin? The Prophet, peace be upon him, has said, “Error and forgetfulness have been lifted from my community.”

وَالَّذِي أُخِذَ فِي حَدِّ الْوَاجِبِ بِأَنَّهُ الَّذِي فِي تَرْكِهِ عِقَابٌ، إِنَّمَا مَعْنَى ذَلِكَ أَنَّ الْعِقَابَ متعلق بِتَرْكِهِ بَعْدَ الْمَعْرِفَةِ بِوُجُوبِهِ، فِيمَا كَانَ إِلَى الْمَعْرِفَةِ بِوُجُوبِهِ دَلِيلٌ قَطْعِيٌّ. وَأَمَّا مَنْ غَلِطَ أَوْ سَهَا فِيمَا الْغَلَطُ فِيهِ مُعَرَّضٌ فَلَمْ يَكُنْ لَهُ سَبِيلٌ إِلَى مَعْرِفَةِ وُجُوبِهِ، فَكَيْفَ يَلْحَقُ بِمِثْلِ هَذَا تَأْثِيمٌ. وَقَدْ قَالَ عَلَيْهِ السَّلَامُ: «رُفِعَ عَنْ أُمَّتِيَ الْخَطَأُ وَالنِّسْيَانُ».

H1. Compare Sunan Ibn Mājah 2043: إن الله تجاوز عن أمتي الخطأ والنسيان وما استكرهوا عليه. That version uses تجاوز, ‘has pardoned’, and includes coercion; Ibn Rushd’s quotation uses رفع, ‘has lifted’, and omits the final clause. His wording is retained.

N117 · textual. The compressed clause وهو يقع به النسيان والغفلة والسهو has an awkward pronoun/preposition sequence. Its contextual point is that forgetfulness and inadvertence belong to the pardoned class of unintentional error; the English expresses this relation without claiming a new Arabic reading.

BA018 · scholarship. Most important distinction: unintentional error (khaṭaʾ ghayr mutaʿammad) may be pardoned without becoming a correct judgement. Bou Akl cites this very argument as §295 of his 2015 edition, while the al-ʿAlawī-based reader numbers it §243. His 2019 reading distinguishes truth/error from an accusation of culpable error, applying the juristic distinction to philosophical inquiry in the Faṣl al-maqāl. BA15-I10 · interpretive. Wrong vs blameworthy. Bou Akl 2015 intro pp.93–99 distinguishes an incorrect proposition from a culpable error. If it is said that this entails freedom from sin even when a jurist unintentionally misses something established by decisive evidence, we reply: this requires examination. The difference is clear. Decisive evidence is seldom hidden from someone who has attained the rank of independent inquiry. Its being hidden is conceivable only through desire, partiality, something opposing it, or other psychological impediments. This has degrees corresponding to the degrees of evidence. Hence some cases incur a judgement of unbelief and others a charge of sin; the Law determines these differences.

نَظَرٌ. وَالْفَرْقُ بَيْنَهُمَا بَيِّنٌ. فَإِنَّ الدَّلِيلَ الْقَطْعِيَّ قَلَّمَا يَخْفَى عَلَى أَحَدٍ مِمَّنْ بَلَغَ رُتْبَةَ الِاجْتِهَادِ، وَإِنَّمَا يُتَصَوَّرُ خَفَاؤُهُ لِهَوًى أَوْ هَوَادَةٍ أَوْ لِشَيْءٍ عَلَى خِلَافِهِ أَوْ غَيْرِ ذَلِكَ مِنَ الْعَوَارِضِ النَّفْسِيَّةِ. وَلِهَذَا مَرَاتِبُ بِحَسَبِ مَرَاتِبِ الْأَدِلَّةِ، وَلِذَلِكَ يُكَفَّرُ فِي بَعْضِهَا، وَيُؤَثَّمُ فِي بَعْضٍ، وَمُدْرَكُ هَذَا التَّفَاوُتِ الشَّرْعُ.

Our discussion has shown that not every independent jurist is correct, in what respect he is free from sin when he errs, and that he is charged with attaining something that is itself attainable. When he errs, he is forgiven out of mercy and pardon.

BA020 · scholarship. This conclusion preserves BOTH a truth one may miss and an excuse when a qualified jurist has diligently pursued it. Bou Akl stresses professional effort and methodology as grounds of exculpation, whereas the Arabic here still states that the jurist is charged with attaining what is in itself attainable. It remains to consider the jurist’s position when evidence conflicts for him on a question, and what course he should take. Abū Ḥāmid reports three views: suspending judgement, adopting the more cautious course, and the Judge’s view that the jurist may choose. This last view is weak, because granting a choice is permission, whereas contradictory evidence concerning the command about a single matter is more apt to produce doubt and perplexity than to be thought to establish such permission.

وَقَدْ بَقِيَ عَلَيْنَا مِنْ هَذَا الْبَابِ كَيْفَ حَالَةُ الْمُجْتَهِدِ، إِذَا تَعَارَضَتْ عِنْدَهُ الْأَدِلَّةُ فِي مَسْأَلَةٍ مَا، وَإِلَى أَيِّ شَيْءٍ يَصِيرُ فَنَقُولُ: إِنَّ الَّذِي حَكَى فِي ذَلِكَ أَبُو حَامِدٍ ثَلَاثَةُ آرَاءٍ: أَحَدُهَا رَأْيُ مَنْ يَرَى التَّوَقُّفَ وَالثَّانِي الْأَخْذُ بِالْأَحْوَطِ وَالثَّالِثُ رَأْيُ الْقَاضِي وَهُوَ أَنْ يَتَخَيَّرَ الْمُجْتَهِدُ، وَهَذَا رَأْيٌ ضَعِيفٌ لِأَنَّ التَّخْيِيرَ إِبَاحَةٌ، وَالْأَدِلَّةُ الْمُتَنَاقِضَةُ فِي الْأَمْرِ بِالشَّيْءِ الْوَاحِدِ هِيَ أَوْلَى أَنْ تُوقِعَ الشَّكَّ وَالْحَيْرَةَ مِنْ أَنْ يُظَنَّ بِهَا أَنَّهَا تُنْتِجُهُ.

Suspending judgement likewise makes no sense, since it leaves rulings inoperative. It is also impossible where a person must do one of two opposite things. Consider the reports about ritual bathing because of the emission of fluid, and bathing because of the meeting of the circumcised parts. When such reports conflict, suspension is impossible: one must adopt one or the other.

وَكَذَلِكَ التَّوَقُّفُ لَا مَعْنَى لَهُ، فَإِنَّ فِي ذَلِكَ تَعْطِيلًا لِلْأَحْكَامِ. وَأَيْضًا فَإِنَّهُ غَيْرُ مُمْكِنٍ فِي الْأَشْيَاءِ الَّتِي لَيْسَ يُمْكِنُ الْإِنْسَانَ فِيهَا إِلَّا أَنْ يَأْتِيَ أَحَدَ الضِّدَّيْنِ، كَالْأَحَادِيثِ الْوَارِدَةِ مَثَلًا فِي الْغُسْلِ مِنَ الْمَاءِ، وَالْغُسْلِ مِنِ الْتِقَاءِ الْخِتَانَيْنِ، فَإِنَّ مِثْلَ هَذِهِ الْأَحَادِيثِ إِذَا تَعَارَضَتْ لَمْ يُمْكِنْ فِيهَا التَّوَقُّفُ، فَإِنَّهُ لَا بُدَّ مِنَ الْمَصِيرِ إِلَى أَحَدِهِمَا.

In such a case, adopting the more cautious course appears plausible. Although it may seem preferable because it avoids blame, one must equally fear blame for adding to the Law something that does not belong to it.

وَفِي مِثْلِ هَذَا يُخَيَّلُ الْمَصِيرُ إِلَى الْأَخْذِ بِالْأَحْوَطِ. وَهُوَ وَإِنْ كَانَ يُخَيَّلُ فِيهِ أَنَّهُ أَوْلَى لِمَكَانِ النَّجَاةِ مِنَ الذَّمِّ، فَكَذَلِكَ يُخَافُ لُحُوقُ الذَّمِّ بِزِيَادَةِ مَا لَيْسَ مِنَ الشَّرْعِ فِي الشَّرْعِ.

H1. For ‘water is required because of water’ (الماء من الماء), compare Ṣaḥīḥ Muslim 343a; for bathing on the meeting of the circumcised parts, Muslim 349. These are the two reports contrasted in the example. Note N118 explains the reference to emission and intercourse.

The Ẓāhirīs have a fourth view: when the evidence is equally balanced, the independent jurist returns to original freedom from obligation. An obligation imposed through contradictory evidence exceeds one’s capacity and is like an obligation lacking evidence. Just as original freedom from obligation is presumed to continue where there is no evidence—or where evidence exists but cannot be reached—it likewise continues where available proofs appear to conflict. And just as a ruling supported by evidence does not bind someone whom that evidence has not reached, so apparently opposed proofs cease to bind the person for whom they conflict.

وَلِلظَّاهِرِيَّةِ فِي هَذَا قَوْلٌ رَابِعٌ، وَهُوَ أَنْ يَرْجِعَ الْمُجْتَهِدُ عِنْدَ تَكَافُؤِ الْأَدِلَّةِ إِلَى الْبَرَاءَةِ الْأَصْلِيَّةِ، لِأَنَّ التَّكْلِيفَ بِالْأَدِلَّةِ الْمُتَنَاقِضَةِ تَكْلِيفُ مَا لَا يُطَاقُ، وَهُوَ فِي ذَلِكَ بِمَنْزِلَةِ التَّكْلِيفِ بِمَا لَيْسَ عَلَيْهِ دَلِيلٌ. فَكَمَا أَنَّ مَا لَيْسَ عَلَيْهِ دَلِيلٌ تُسْتَصْحَبُ فِيهِ الْبَرَاءَةُ الْأَصْلِيَّةُ، أَوْ مَا كَانَ عَلَيْهِ دَلِيلٌ إِلَّا أَنَّهُ لَمْ يُمْكِنْ بُلُوغُهُ، كَذَلِكَ مَا تَضَادَّتْ فِيهِ الدَّلَائِلُ، وَكَمَا أَنَّ مَا عَلَيْهِ دَلِيلٌ سَاقِطٌ فِي حَقِّ مَنْ لَمْ يَبْلُغْهُ، كَذَلِكَ مَنْ تَعَارَضَتْ عِنْدَهُ الْأَدِلَّةُ فِي شَيْءٍ مَا سَاقِطَةٌ فِي حَقِّهِ.

These two conditions occur only relative to particular people or people of a particular period: those whom the legal evidence has not reached, or who have not distinguished the abrogating from the abrogated, or other matters producing conflict. For contradictory evidence cannot occur within the Law itself.

وَإِنَّمَا يَقَعُ هَذَانِ الصِّنْفَانِ فِي حَقِّ قَوْمٍ وَأَهْلِ زَمَانٍ مَا مِمَّنْ لَمْ يَصِلْهُمُ الدَّلِيلُ الشَّرْعِيُّ، أَوْ مِمَّنْ لَمْ يَتَمَيَّزْ لَهُمُ النَّاسِخُ فِي ذَلِكَ وَالْمَنْسُوخُ وَغَيْرُ ذَلِكَ مِمَّا يُوجِبُ التَّعَارُضَ، إِذْ كَانَ لَيْسَ يَجُوزُ وُقُوعُ دَلَائِلَ مُتَضَادَّةٍ فِي الشَّرْعِ.

N119 · translation. The opening explicitly reports a Ẓāhirī position. The final sentence distinguishes conflict as it appears to particular inquirers from contradiction in the Law itself; the translation does not erase that distinction.

BA15-I11 · interpretive. Contradictory evidence. Bou Akl 2015 intro pp.99–106 relates equal evidential balance (takāfuʾ) to preference (tarjīḥ). Ibn Rushd’s view that unreconciled opposition can reflect missing historical information is not a license to choose arbitrary rulings.

BA15-T01 · translation. Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 318, §299, preserves «كذلك ما تضادت فيه الدلائل، وكما أن ما عليه دليل ساقط في حق من لم يبلغه» (Escorial reading [أ]), omitted by al-ʿAlawī [ع]. The first comparison concerns original nonliability where proof is absent, unreachable, or in apparent conflict; the second concerns the non-binding status of proof not received or of opposition not resolved. Ibn Rushd denies that contradictory proofs occur within the Law itself. The English already distinguished both comparisons.

وَإِذْ قَدْ فَرَغْنَا مِنَ الْقَوْلِ فِي الِاجْتِهَادِ وَالْمُجْتَهِدِ فِيهِ، فَلْنَقُلْ فِي التَّقْلِيدِ وَالْمُقَلِّدِ.

Having completed the discussion of independent inquiry and its subject matter, let us discuss following authority and the person who does so.

الْفَصْلُ الثَّانِي: الْقَوْلُ فِي التَّقْلِيدِ

Chapter Two. On following authority

R 249 · BA 301 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 143 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 318

وَالتَّقْلِيدُ هُوَ قَبُولُ قَوْلِ قَائِلٍ يَغْلِبُ عَلَى الظَّنِّ صِدْقُهُ لِحُسْنِ الثِّقَةِ فِيهِ. وَالْفَرْقُ بَيْنَ هَذَا وَبَيْنَ تَقْلِيدِهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ، أَنَّ تَقْلِيدَهُ هُوَ قَبُولُ قَوْلٍ يَقَعُ لِلْإِنْسَانِ الْيَقِينُ بِهِ لِدَلَالَةِ الْمُعْجِزَةِ عَلَى صِدْقِهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ.

Following authority (تقليد) is accepting someone’s statement whose truth is judged preponderantly probable because of confidence in that person. It differs from following the Prophet, God bless him and grant him peace: following him is accepting a statement of which one attains certainty, because the miracle indicates his truthfulness, God bless him and grant him peace.

وَأَمَّا مَنْ يَجُوزُ لَهُ التَّقْلِيدُ، فَهُمُ الْعَوَامُّ، بِدَلِيلِ أَنَّ النَّاسَ لَا يَخْلُونَ مِنْ ثَلَاثَةِ أَقْسَامٍ: إِمَّا أَنْ يَكُونُوا كُلُّهُمْ مُجْتَهِدِينَ، وَهَذَا مُحَالٌ وُقُوعُهُ وَالتَّكْلِيفُ بِهِ، لِأَنَّهُ كَانَ يُؤَدِّي إِلَى انْقِطَاعِ الْمَعَايِشِ لَوْ كَانَ مُمْكِنًا أَنْ تحصل لِكُلِّ أَحَدٍ رُتْبَةُ الِاجْتِهَادِ.

Those permitted to follow authority are ordinary people. The proof is that people must fall under one of three arrangements. Either all are independent jurists; this is impossible both in practice and as an obligation, since, even if everyone could attain that rank, it would bring the means of livelihood to a halt.

وَإِمَّا أَنْ تُفْقَدَ فِي جَمِيعِهِمْ شُرُوطُ الِاجْتِهَادِ، وَهَذَا أَيْضًا مُمْتَنِعٌ، لِأَنَّهُ كَانَ يُؤَدِّي إِلَى إِهْمَالِ أَكْثَرِ الْأَحْكَامِ، إِذْ أَكْثَرُ الْفَرَائِضِ وَالسُّنَنِ إِنَّمَا يَقُومُ بِفَرْضِ مَعْرِفَتِهَا وَتَعْلِيمِهَا لِلنَّاسِ الْمُجْتَهِدُونَ.

Or all lack the qualifications for independent inquiry. This too is impossible, because it would lead to the neglect of most rulings: independent jurists are those who discharge the obligation of knowing most prescribed duties and practices and teaching them to people.

وَإِمَّا أَنْ يُوجَدَ فِي النَّاسِ الصِّنْفَانِ جَمِيعًا، وَهُوَ أَنْ تَكُونَ فِيهِمْ طَائِفَةٌ تَقُومُ لِلْجُمْهُورِ بِضَبْطِ الْفَرَائِضِ وَالسُّنَنِ، وحفظها عَلَيْهِمْ، وَأَخْذِهِمْ بِهَا، وَاسْتِنْبَاطِ مَا شَأْنُهُ أَنْ يُسْتَنْبَطَ مِنْهَا فِي وَقْتٍ وَقْتٍ وَنَازِلَةٍ نَازِلَةٍ. وَتَكُونَ فِيهِمْ

Or both classes exist: one group preserves the prescribed duties and practices for the public, lays them upon people, requires their observance, and derives what may be derived from them at each time and in each case. Another group, ordinary people, follows the authority of the first because of confidence in them and a preponderant judgement of their truthfulness.

وَكَأَنَّ غَلَبَةَ الظَّنِّ لِحُسْنِ الثِّقَةِ جُعِلَتْ هَهُنَا أَمَارَةً لِلُزُومِ الْأَحْكَامِ لَهُمْ، كَمَا جُعِلَتْ غَلَبَةُ الظَّنِّ لِلْمُجْتَهِدِ أَمَارَةً لِلُزُومِ الْحُكْمِ لَهُ. وَبِالْوَاجِبِ مَا سُمِّيَ هَذَا فَرْضَ كِفَايَةٍ، إِذْ يَكْفِي فِي الْقِيَامِ بِهِ الْبَعْضُ عَنِ الْبَعْضِ.

Here it is as though preponderant judgement based on confidence has been made a sign that the rulings bind them, just as the independent jurist's preponderant judgement is a sign that a ruling binds him. This is rightly called a collective obligation (فرض كفاية), since its performance by some suffices on behalf of others.

BA021 · scholarship. The general public and trained interpreters occupy complementary positions because not everybody can devote themselves to the craft of legal inference. Bou Akl observes that the Decisive Treatise's philosopher/layperson distinction draws upon juridical mujtahid/muqallid relations; this is about relation to disciplinary competence, not an immutable caste classification. R 251 · BA 303–304 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 144 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 320 فَقَدْ تَبَيَّنَ مِنْ هَذَا أَنَّ النَّاسَ صِنْفَانِ: صِنْفٌ فَرْضُهُ التَّقْلِيدُ، وَهُمُ الْعَوَامُّ الَّذِينَ لَمْ يَبْلُغُوا رُتْبَةَ الِاجْتِهَادِ الَّتِي حُدِّدَتْ فِيمَا قَبْلُ. وَصِنْفٌ ثَانٍ وَهُمُ الْمُجْتَهِدُونَ الَّذِينَ كَمُلَتْ لَهُمْ شُرُوطُ الِاجْتِهَادِ.

It is therefore clear that people are of two classes. One is obliged to follow authority: ordinary people who have not attained the rank of independent inquiry defined earlier. The second comprises independent jurists who fully possess its qualifications.

وَأَمَّا هَلْ لِهَذَا الصِّنْفِ الثَّانِي وَهُمُ الْمُجْتَهِدُونَ أَنْ يُقَلِّدَ بَعْضُهُمْ بَعْضًا، فَفِيهِ نَظَرٌ. فَإِنَّ تَقْلِيدَ الْعَوَامِّ شَيْءٌ أَدَّتْ إِلَيْهِ الضَّرُورَةُ، وَوَقَعَ عَلَيْهِ الْإِجْمَاعُ. لَكِنْ يَنْبَغِي أَنْ يُقَالَ: يَجُوزُ لِلْمُجْتَهِدِ تَقْلِيدُ الْمُجْتَهِدِ إِذَا كَانَ أَعْلَمَ مِنْهُ، وَتَرَجَّحَ عِنْدَهُ حُسْنُ الظَّنِّ بِهِ تَرَجُّحًا يَفْضُلُ عِنْدَهُ الظَّنَّ الْوَاقِعَ لَهُ فِي الشَّيْءِ عَنِ اجْتِهَادِهِ.

Whether those in the second class may follow one another's authority requires examination. Ordinary people's following authority is required by necessity and established by consensus. Nevertheless, one should say that an independent jurist may follow another who is more knowledgeable than he, when his confidence in the other's judgement outweighs the probable judgement he himself reaches through independent inquiry into the matter.

G-B2-0549 · grammar. الفاء الاستئنافية مع «إنَّ/إنْ/إنّما» — «ففيه نظر. فإن تقليد العوام شيء أدت إليه». [The initial فـ links the reasoning. Distinguish إنَّ (assertion), إنْ (condition) and إنّما (restriction) from the words and vowelled context.]

فَصْلٌ

Section

R 252 · BA 305 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 144, 145 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 322

وَلِأَنَّ هَهُنَا طَائِفَةً تُشْبِهُ الْعَوَامَّ مِنْ جِهَةٍ، وَالْمُجْتَهِدِينَ مِنْ جِهَةٍ، وَهُمُ الْمُسَمَّوْنَ فِي زَمَانِنَا هَذَا أَكْثَرَ ذَلِكَ بِالْفُقَهَاءِ،

There is a group resembling ordinary people in one respect and independent jurists in another: those mostly called jurists in our time. We should examine to which class they more properly belong. Their condition plainly shows that their rank is that of ordinary people and that they are followers of authority.

They differ from ordinary people by memorising independent jurists' opinions and reporting them to others, without themselves possessing the qualifications for independent inquiry. Their rank is thus like that of transmitters from independent jurists. Had they stopped there, matters would have been more fitting. Instead, they go beyond it, analogising cases for which no ruling has been transmitted from their authorities to cases for which one has. They make a source of what is not a source, turning independent jurists' statements into sources for their own inquiry. That is sufficient error and innovation!

فَيَنْبَغِي أَنْ نَنْظُرَ فِي أَيِّ الصِّنْفَيْنِ أَوْلَى أَنْ تُلْحِقَهُمْ. وَهُوَ ظَاهِرٌ مِنْ أَمْرِهِمْ أَنَّ مَرْتَبَتَهُمْ مَرْتَبَةُ الْعَوَامِّ، وَأَنَّهُمْ مُقَلِّدُونَ.

وَالْفَرْقُ بَيْنَ هَؤُلَاءِ وَبَيْنَ الْعَوَامِّ، أَنَّهُمْ يَحْفَظُونَ الْآرَاءَ الَّتِي لِلْمُجْتَهِدِينَ فَيُخْبِرُونَ عَنْهَا الْعَوَامَّ، مِنْ غَيْرِ أَنْ تَكُونَ عِنْدَهُمْ شُرُوطُ الِاجْتِهَادِ، فَكَأَنَّ مَرْتَبَتَهُمْ فِي ذَلِكَ مَرْتَبَةُ النَّاقِلِينَ عَنِ الْمُجْتَهِدِينَ. وَلَوْ وَقَفُوا فِي هَذَا لَكَانَ الْأَمْرُ أَشْبَهَ، لَكِنْ يَتَعَدَّوْنَ فَيَقِيسُونَ أَشْيَاءَ لَمْ يُنْقَلْ فِيهَا عَنْ مقلدهم حُكْمٌ عَلَى مَا نُقِلَ عَنْهُ فِي ذَلِكَ حُكْمٌ، فَيَجْعَلُونَ أَصْلًا مَا لَيْسَ بِأَصْلٍ، وَيُصَيِّرُونَ أَقَاوِيلَ الْمُجْتَهِدِينَ أُصُولًا لِاجْتِهَادِهِمْ، وَكَفَى بِهَذَا ضَلَالًا وَبِدْعَةً.

BA-T158 · textual. قراءة الإسكوريال كما أثبتها بو عقل: «مقلدهم»، مقابل «مقلديهم» في طبعة العلوي. (Escorial reading as reported by Bou Akl, 2015, Arabic p. 322; variant against al-ʿAlawī.)

G-B2-0552 · grammar. «مِنْ غَيْرِ أَنْ» مع المصدر المؤوّل — «العوام، من غير أن تكون عندهم شروط الاجتهاد، فكأن». ["Without" a further act, fact, or condition being present. The أَنْ-clause is a verbal-noun complement of غَيْر, not an adversative "nevertheless".]

May they, however, remain in the first condition: transmitting from an independent jurist whom they judge probably correct, with successors carefully transmitting from predecessors, so that, for example, no one in our time discharges the obligation of independent inquiry, apart from those of the past? Would it suffice that someone in the earliest period discharged it, even one man or more, as we find among these groups—the Mālikīs, Shāfiʿīs, and Ḥanafīs?

فَأَمَّا هَلْ تَجُوزُ لَهُمُ الْحَالُ الْأُولَى، وَهِيَ أَنْ يَكُونُوا فِي ذَلِكَ نَاقِلِينَ عَنْ مُجْتَهِدٍ غَلَبَ عَلَى ظَنِّهِمْ إِصَابَتُهُ وَيَتَحَرَّى ذَلِكَ خَلَفُهُمْ عَنْ سَلَفِهِمْ فِي النَّقْلِ حَتَّى يَكُونَ الْقَائِمُونَ بِفَرْضِ الِاجْتِهَادِ غَيْرَ مَوْجُودِينَ فِي زَمَانِنَا هَذَا مَثَلًا، إِلَّا مَا قَدْ سَلَفَ وَيَكْفِي فِي ذَلِكَ مَثَلًا أَنْ كَانَ فِي الصَّدْرِ الْأَوَّلِ مَنْ قَامَ بِهَذَا الْفَرْضِ وَلَوْ رَجُلٌ وَاحِدٌ أَوْ أَكْثَرُ مِنْ وَاحِدٍ، عَلَى مِثَالِ مَا أَدْرَكْنَا عَلَيْهِ هَذِهِ الطَّوَائِفَ، أَعْنِي الْمَالِكِيَّةَ وَالشَّافِعِيَّةَ وَالْحَنَفِيَّةَ،

By my life, consensus proves that this is impermissible: for every collective obligation there must be someone in every period who performs it; only then does it cease to bind the others. Moreover, the cases that arise are without limit. It is impossible to transmit from earlier independent jurists a separate pronouncement for every case.

This leaves only three possibilities: to make earlier independent jurists' legal opinions into sources from which rulings are derived; to leave many rulings

أُصُولًا يُسْتَنْبَطُ عَنْهَا. وَإِمَّا أَنْ يَتَعَطَّلَ كَثِيرٌ مِنَ الْأَحْكَامِ. وَكِلَا الْوَجْهَيْنِ مُمْتَنِعٌ، فَلَمْ يَبْقَ إِلَّا الْوَجْهُ الثَّالِثُ وَهُوَ أَلَّا يَخْلُوَ زَمَانٌ مِنْ مُجْتَهِدٍ.

inoperative; or, since both alternatives are impermissible, to accept the third—that no period should be without an independent jurist.

وَأَنْتَ تَعْلَمُ أَنَّ الزَّمَانَ الَّذِي سَلَفَ هَكَذَا كَانَتْ حَالُهُ، أَعْنِي أَنَّهُ لَمْ يَكُنْ فِيهِ مُجْتَهِدٌ. وَإِنْ كَانَ لَا يُدْفَعُ أَنَّهُ قَدْ كَانَ فِيهِ مَنْ بَلَغَ رُتْبَةَ الِاجْتِهَادِ. لَكِنْ مَعَ هَذَا فَإِنَّمَا كَانَ مُقَلِّدًا.

You know that the period just past was in this condition: it had no practising independent jurist. Although it cannot be denied that someone in it had attained the rank of independent inquiry, he nevertheless acted only as a follower of authority.

N120 · translation. “Practicing” makes explicit the distinction in the Arabic between possessing the rank of ijtihād and actually exercising it. The criticism concerns the author’s own preceding period; it is not a claim that independent juristic inquiry historically ceased in every place.

BA022 · scholarship. The demand for available qualified juristic interpretation should be read with the preceding distinction between ijtihād and taqlīd. Bou Akl uses this institutional pattern to explain how Ibn Rushd frames expertise in the Decisive Treatise. That parallel does not prove that every social judgement in the philosophical work is explicitly stated in the present section. R 255 · BA 308 · al-ʿAlawī (1994), p. 146 · Bou Akl (2015), Arabic p. 324 فَقَدْ تَبَيَّنَ مِنْ هَذَا الْقَوْلِ مَنِ الْمُقَلِّدُ، وَمَا التَّقْلِيدُ، وَفِي أَيِّ الْمَوَاضِعِ يَصِحُّ وَفِي أَيِّهَا لَا.

This discussion has clarified who follows authority, what following authority is, and where it is and is not valid.

الْفَصْلُ الثَّالِثُ: فِي تَرْجِيحِ طُرُقِ النَّقْلِ

Chapter Three. On weighing transmission routes

وَبَقِيَ الْقَوْلُ فِي الْفَصْلِ الثَّالِثِ وَهُوَ يَتَضَمَّنُ الْقَوْلَ فِي تَرْجِيحِ طُرُقِ النَّقْلِ، وَتَرْجِيحِ مَا تَدُلُّ عَلَيْهِ الْأَلْفَاظُ بِمَفْهُومَاتِهَا، وَذَلِكَ فِيمَا كَانَ مِنْ ذَلِكَ مِنْ نَوْعٍ وَاحِدٍ، لِأَنَّ الْأَدِلَّةَ الَّتِي أَنْوَاعُهَا مُخْتَلِفَةٌ قَدْ تَبَيَّنَ تَرَجُّحُ بَعْضِهَا عَلَى بَعْضٍ فِيمَا سَلَفَ، وَهِيَ قَوَانِينُ تَقْتَرِنُ بِدَلِيلٍ دَلِيلٍ وسند سند وَتَكَادُ لَا تَتَنَاهَى.

There remains the third chapter, concerning the comparative weight of transmission routes and of what expressions signify through their understood meanings. This concerns evidence of the same kind, since the relative weight of different kinds has already been established. The relevant rules attach to particular items of evidence and particular chains of transmission, and are virtually without limit.

وَقَدْ رَامَ أَهْلُ هَذِهِ الصِّنَاعَةِ حَصْرَهَا، لَكِنْ أَمَّا نَحْنُ فَلَا حَاجَةَ لَنَا إِلَى تَعْدِيدِهَا، إِذْ كَانَ الْإِنْسَانُ يُمْكِنُهُ مِنْ تِلْقَاءِ نَفْسِهِ الْوُقُوفُ عَلَى مَا فِيهَا يُفِيدُ غَلَبَةَ ظَنٍّ مِمَّا لَيْسَ يُفِيدُ. فَأَمَّا مَنْ كَانَ لَهُ فَرَاغٌ، وَأَحَبَّ أَنْ يُثْبِتَهَا هَهُنَا فَلْيَفْعَلْ، لَكِنْ يَجِبُ أَنْ تُثْبَتَ الْقَرَائِنُ الَّتِي يَقَعُ بِهَا تَرْجِيحُ طُرُقِ النَّقْلِ فِي كِتَابِ الْأَخْبَارِ، وَالَّتِي يَقَعُ بِهَا تَرْجِيحُ الْمَفْهُومِ فِي الْجُزْءِ الثَّالِثِ مِنْ هَذَا الْكِتَابِ.

Practitioners of this discipline have attempted to enumerate them. We have no need to do so, since a person can determine for himself which produce a preponderant judgement and which do not. Anyone with leisure who wishes to record them here may do so. However, the contextual indications establishing the superiority of transmission routes should be placed in the discussion of reports, and those establishing the superiority of an understood meaning in Part Three of this book.

That adopting and acting upon the stronger of two probable judgements constitutes legal evidence is shown by the Companions' consensus on this, and by what a person finds in himself: he turns to the stronger of two probable judgements when they conflict.

Applications in the Bidāyat al-mujtahid

Illustrative legal comparisons. These are editorial commentary, separate from the authorial al-Ḍarūrī.

18 · Marriage: one form of act, different legal rulings

Marriage · ch. 1, preliminaries, issue 1: the legal status of marriage

The majority recommend marriage; the Ẓāhirīs require it; later Mālikīs distinguish obligatory, recommended and permitted marriage according to the person's circumstances. Ibn Rushd identifies both the interpretation of imperative expressions and an appeal to welfare as causes of the disagreement. This illustrates the distinction between an act's general description and the ruling applicable to a situated agent. It does not prove that an imperative by itself encodes all those contextual differences. The welfare argument reported here should also be compared with the stricter controls of Darūrī §§146 and 217.

23 · Wiping the head: a minimum performance and a contested particle

Purification from ritual impurity · Book of Wuḍūʾ, ch. 2, issue 6: the extent of wiping the head

Mālik requires the whole head, al-Shāfiʿī allows part, and Abū Ḥanīfa specifies a quarter. Ibn Rushd relates the disagreement to the bāʾ in Q 5:6—whether emphatic or partitive—and to reports describing the Prophet's wiping. Even on the emphatic reading, the amount satisfying the name of the act remains disputed. This is a representative application of the Darūrī's minimum-sufficiency problem, but one in which grammar and transmitted practice jointly determine the legally adequate minimum.

Qur'an source. Qurʾān 5:6.

Hadith source. For a description of the Prophet's head-wiping, cf. Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 185.

§23 · §165 · §205

28 · Proposing over another proposal: prohibition and contractual effect

Marriage · ch. 1, preliminaries, issue 3: proposing over another man's proposal

Jurists distinguish the prohibition of intervening in an existing proposal from the validity of the ensuing marriage. Ibn Rushd records invalidation by Dāwūd, validity according to al-Shāfiʿī and Abū Ḥanīfa, and differing Mālikī outcomes. The question is whether the forbidden preliminary act vitiates the contract or is an independently culpable circumstance. Read this alongside the Darūrī's distinctions of aspect and the later question whether prohibition entails invalidity; the note identifies a legal parallel, not an explicit cross-citation between the books.

Hadith source. For the prohibition of proposing over another man's proposal, see Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 5142.

38 · Zakāt on a child's property: worship or a claim upon wealth?

Zakāt · first division: those liable; property belonging to minors

Mālik, al-Shāfiʿī and others impose zakāt on a minor's property; other views exempt it or distinguish agricultural produce. Ibn Rushd identifies the underlying question: is zakāt principally worship requiring adult responsibility, or a financial right of the poor in wealth? The latter need not depend on the owner's puberty. This demonstrates why exemption from direct moral obligation does not automatically remove every legal consequence affecting a child's property.

§38 · §42 · §55

43 · Intention in ablution: devotional act and intelligible cleansing

Purification from ritual impurity · Book of Wuḍūʾ, ch. 2, issue 1: intention as a condition of validity

Mālik, al-Shāfiʿī and others require intention; Abū Ḥanīfa and al-Thawrī do not. Ibn Rushd locates ablution between pure devotion and an act whose cleansing purpose is intelligible. The relevant inquiry is which resemblance governs its legal classification. Read beside Darūrī §43, this shows that intending obedience and performing an objectively effective act are distinguishable questions, and that a condition of worship cannot simply be transferred to every act associated with worship.

47 · Coerced divorce: voluntary utterance is not sufficient freedom

Divorce · second division, ch. 2: the person whose divorce is legally effective; coerced divorce

Abū Ḥanīfa treats the coerced utterance as effective, whereas Mālik, al-Shāfiʿī and others do not. Ibn Rushd locates the dispute in the sense of choice: the speaker chooses the words, but the threat may still make him "coerced" in the Law's usage. He invokes Q 16:106 against identifying every chosen utterance with unqualified freedom. This sharpens Darūrī §47: physical possibility, intention, legal coercion and the effect of an act must be distinguished.

55 · Financial maturity: an operative condition or its official recognition?

Interdiction · ch. 2: release of minors from interdiction; those under an executor

Some Mālikī positions continue to invalidate transactions until an executor or judge formally releases the ward. Ibn al-Qāsim gives decisive weight to actual maturity or improvidence. Ibn Rushd criticizes treating the continued formal status as controlling when maturity is established: the operative consideration is maturity, not the judge's declaration. This provides an institutional illustration of the difference between a condition's existence and a procedure which establishes or announces it, without reducing all judicial acts to mere factual reports.

§55 · §42 · §56

56 · A remoter guardian: invalidity, permission, or ratification

Marriage · ch. 2; conditions of contract; guardians, third topic, issue 1: a remoter guardian contracts while the nearer is present

For the cases under discussion, Mālik's transmitted positions include invalidity, validity and dependence on the nearer guardian's approval. Ibn Rushd explains the alternatives through three questions: is priority a rule of revelation at all; if so, is it the nearer guardian's right; or is it a right of God? These yield, respectively, validity, a ratifiable contract, or invalidity. The ruling is not produced simply by attaching the word "condition" to priority. The discussion excludes certain father–virgin-daughter and executor cases from that threefold variation.

58 · A traveller who fasts: an implied condition in the verse

Fasting · ch. on those permitted to break the fast; the traveller's performance of the fast

A minority requires the travelling person to make up the days even if he fasts; the majority accepts his fast. Ibn Rushd connects the disagreement to whether Q 2:184 implicitly says "and breaks the fast" before requiring other days, alongside reports allowing travelling Companions to fast or refrain. This illustrates both the classification of a concession and the interpretation of an omitted condition. It must not be read as though the mere grammatical form settled the whole dispute.

Qur'an source. Qurʾān 2:184–185. The phrase "and breaks the fast" is an interpretive supply.

Hadith source. Cf. Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 1947: Anas reports that fasting and non-fasting Companions travelling with the Prophet did not reproach one another.

64 · The basmala: Qurʾānic wording and membership in a sūra

Prayer · third division, verbal constituents, issue 4: reciting the basmala

The practical disagreement concerns reciting the basmala and whether aloud or silently. Ibn Rushd separates uncertainty about its status as a verse of al-Fātiḥa from denying that the wording is Qurʾānic at all. He also analyses conflicting reports of the Companions' practice. This parallels Darūrī §64, while warning against an over-simple appeal to mass transmission: the identity of transmitted words and their structural membership in a particular sūra are distinct propositions.

Qur'an source. Qurʾān 27:30. This does not settle the basmala's membership in al-Fātiḥa.

146 · An absent father: welfare within a structured legal situation

Marriage · ch. 2; guardians, third topic, issue 3: the father's absence

The Mālikī distinctions turn on distance, knowledge of the father's whereabouts, maintenance, protection and the woman's need to marry. Ibn Rushd then suggests that urgent risk might justify the ruler's intervention even when the father is relatively near. This is a concrete use of welfare-oriented reasoning, not an unrestricted power to legislate. Its relation to the Darūrī's demand for an acknowledged warrant remains a question of interpretation: the later case develops an existing institution's purpose, but does not expressly cite that earlier restriction.

158 · Touching women: equivocation, generality and counterevidence

Purification from ritual impurity · Book of Wuḍūʾ, ch. 4, issue on touching women

Ibn Rushd explains that touching in Arabic can mean contact by the hand or signify intercourse. Among those taking bodily contact, some require pleasure and others do not; reports about contact between the Prophet and ʿĀʾisha enter the assessment. The first disagreement concerns competing meanings, the second the scope of a selected meaning. This clarifies why the Darūrī distinguishes equivocation from generality: collecting two possible meanings is not the same operation as including all instances under one universal.

Qur'an source. Qurʾān 4:43 and 5:6.

Hadith source. For a report of contact between the Prophet and ʿĀʾisha during prayer, cf. Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 382.

§158 · §167 · §177

160 · Minimum dower: clarification cannot be postponed beyond need

Marriage · ch. 2; conditions of contract; dower, first topic, issue 2: its amount

In Sahl's marriage report, the request for even an iron ring is taken against a fixed minimum. Ibn Rushd expressly argues that a required threshold would have needed explanation at that moment. He also disputes the premises that dower is purely worship and that worship must always be quantitatively fixed. This is a direct application of the rule against delaying clarification beyond need, rather than a merely suggestive similarity supplied by the present editor.

Hadith source. For Sahl b. Saʿd's report and the request for an iron ring, see Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 5135.

167 · The sales-session option: what counts as "separation"?

Sales · part 3, conditions of validity, ch. 1: the contract and the parties' option before separation

Mālik and Abū Ḥanīfa make the completed exchange binding without physical separation; al-Shāfiʿī and others retain the session option. Ibn Rushd examines whether the report concerns bodily separation or completion of bargaining. He weighs the strong Ibn ʿUmar report against Medinan practice, another report's weakness, analogies to other contracts, and the general command to fulfil contracts. The case joins semantic interpretation to evidential preference: a plausible lexical reinterpretation is not enough unless proportionate evidence supports it.

Qur'an source. Qurʾān 5:1.

Hadith source. For Ibn ʿUmar's report on the parties' option before separation, see Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 2111.

§167 · §138 · §166 · §256

171 · Guardianship: a disputed condition cannot be established by ambiguity alone

Marriage · ch. 2, conditions of validity; guardians, first topic: whether guardianship is a condition

In examining marriage guardianship, Ibn Rushd tests the scope of Qurʾānic expressions and the guardian-permission reports rather than treating every apparent address to guardians as a decisive condition of validity. He also considers whether such a widespread requirement could have remained insufficiently explained. The case exemplifies the evidential burden for a restrictive interpretation. It is especially pertinent to Darūrī §171, which rejects an excessively remote narrowing of the permission report; the Bidāya's fuller argument must not be reduced to that single objection.

Hadith source. For the report requiring the guardian's permission, cf. Sunan Abī Dāwūd 2083.

201 · Pilgrimage now or later: a control against a simplistic application

Pilgrimage · first kind of inquiry: when the pilgrimage obligation falls due

Ibn Rushd explicitly denies that the dispute is merely whether an unrestricted command demands immediacy. The competing arguments compare the first available pilgrimage season with the beginning or end of prayer-time, consider the interval when pilgrimage cannot be performed, and assess the risk of death before another year. This is a useful counterexample to a mechanical concordance: Darūrī §201 supplies distinctions, but the Bidāya warns that the applied dispute has additional temporal structure.

§201 · §21 · §25

204 · Completing ʿumra does not by itself prove an initial duty to begin it

Pilgrimage · first kind of inquiry: the legal status of ʿumra

One argument for obligation invokes Q 2:196's command to complete pilgrimage and ʿumra. The opposing reading takes completion to govern an observance once begun, whether its initiation was obligatory or voluntary. Ibn Rushd also records conflicting reports. The lesson is the distinct scope of commands: an obligation to complete an undertaking need not establish an obligation to undertake it. Compare the Darūrī's insistence that a further performance needs its own warrant, rather than extending a command beyond its demonstrated conditions.

Qur'an source. Qurʾān 2:196.

206 · Menstrual divorce: a forbidden act may still have legal effect

Divorce · first division, ch. 2: Sunnī and irregular divorce; divorce during menstruation

The majority count a divorce pronounced during menstruation, while another position does not. Ibn Rushd distinguishes conditions of validity from conditions of proper or complete performance and examines the command that Ibn ʿUmar take his wife back. This provides an especially clear application of the Darūrī's question about prohibition and invalidity. Whether an act is forbidden and whether it produces a legal consequence are different inquiries; their relation must be demonstrated from the relevant address and reports.

211 · Foetal compensation: the identity of the right-holder matters

Offences and injuries · second part, compensation; accidental loss of a foetus, question "to whom is it due?"

Mālik, al-Shāfiʿī and Abū Ḥanīfa treat the compensation as inheritable by the foetus's heirs. Rabīʿa and al-Layth assign it to the mother, comparing the foetus with one of her bodily parts. The dispute illustrates that identifying the legal subject precedes assigning a consequence. It is related to Darūrī §211's caution about the original and derivative terms of an analogy, not a textual claim that the two passages explicitly cross-reference each other.

214 · Jewellery: resemblance to usable possessions or to monetary wealth?

Zakāt · second division: assets subject to zakāt; gold and silver jewellery

The Ḥijāzī jurists exempt jewellery intended for adornment; Abū Ḥanīfa includes it. Ibn Rushd attributes the disagreement chiefly to its double resemblance: usable possessions on one side, gold and silver serving exchange on the other. Conflicting reports matter, but he regards them as weak, especially the exemption report. This is a particularly accessible example of competing analogical descriptions; disagreement about the case's legally relevant likeness need not amount to disagreement about the underlying commodity itself.

217 · Deathbed divorce: blocking an evasion without erasing doctrinal difficulty

Divorce · second division, ch. 2: irrevocable divorce during fatal illness

Some jurists preserve the divorced woman's inheritance because the husband may be evading her entitlement; others apply divorce's ordinary consequences. Ibn Rushd expressly identifies blocking the means (sadd al-dharāʾiʿ) as the issue, but also questions a hybrid status retaining only selected effects of marriage. He rejects a claim of Companion consensus because Ibn al-Zubayr's disagreement is known. Thus purposive prevention and proof of consensus require distinct warrants; the case is not evidence that every welfare argument is self-validating. The Darūrī itself cites this case in §217 while rejecting excessively remote welfare arguments; the difference of framing is therefore substantive.

218 · Ribā in foodstuffs: competing identifications of the operative feature

Sales · part 2, causes of invalidity; ribā in the named foodstuffs and their analogues

Mālikī analysis emphasizes staple, storable food; al-Shāfiʿī emphasizes edibility; Ḥanafī reasoning emphasizes weight or measure. Ibn Rushd treats the dispute as identifying the meaning behind the named commodities, while also evaluating the rival rationales. This corresponds closely to the Darūrī's account of resemblance and uncertain grounds. Yet the Bidāya's comparative assessment is more developed than a blanket dismissal: no uniform verdict on all "analogy" should be imported from either book into the other.

223 · Dower and the theft threshold: verbal resemblance is not one legal meaning

Marriage · ch. 2; dower, first topic, issue 2: critique of the minimum-dower analogy

The proposed analogy sets the minimum dower by the monetary threshold for theft. Ibn Rushd objects that the shared description of bodily "authorization" masks different meanings: punishment and injury differ from lawful marital enjoyment and affection. The relevant similarity must be one in meaning, not merely words, and must ground the original ruling. He distinguishes using this weak analogy to select an amount from establishing that a minimum exists at all.

227 · Triple divorce after mutual imprecation: the limits of tacit approval

Divorce · first division, ch. 2: whether three divorces may be pronounced together; the report of ʿUwaymir

One argument relies on the Prophet's not objecting when ʿUwaymir pronounced three divorces after mutual imprecation (liʿān). The counterargument is that liʿān had already severed the marriage: the utterance then effected no further divorce. Silence cannot establish permissibility for an act whose legally relevant object was absent. This is a precise application of Darūrī §227's contextual restriction: approval must concern the very act and circumstances for which authority is being claimed.

Hadith source. For ʿUwaymir's pronouncement after mutual imprecation, see Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 5259. Its legal significance is the subject of Ibn Rushd's discussion.

237 · A mistaken qibla: required success or adequately conducted inquiry?

Prayer · second division, conditions; facing the qibla, second issue

Al-Shāfiʿī requires repetition when an error in direction becomes known; Mālik and Abū Ḥanīfa do not impose the same unconditional repetition after due inquiry. Ibn Rushd identifies disagreement about whether correct orientation or the act of inquiry is required, and weighs a report against analogy with prayer before its time. The case illuminates Darūrī §§237–245 without proving that every mujtahid's conclusion is true: excusing an error and making its conclusion correct remain different claims.

243 · A physician's mistake: compensation need not imply moral wrongdoing

Offences and injuries · second part, compensation; accidental injury caused in medical treatment

Ibn Rushd reports compensation for a treatment error, while also recording a Mālikī exemption for a qualified practitioner and agreement on liability for an unqualified intruder. The analogy is with accidental injury; there is further disagreement about which fund bears payment. This is an illustrative legal parallel to the Darūrī's distinction between error and sin. It does not assimilate medical judgement to every form of juristic inquiry, nor does compensation alone establish culpability.

246 · Cupping while fasting: three ways of treating conflicting reports

Fasting · ch. on acts from which the fasting person abstains; cupping

A report invalidating the fast of cupper and cupped is set beside the report that the Prophet was cupped while fasting. Ibn Rushd describes disagreement over prohibition, dislike and permissibility, and examines preference, reconciliation and relinquishing the conflicting proofs. This makes concrete the Darūrī's alternatives when evidence appears equipollent. Returning to an original rule is itself a reasoned response to evidential failure; it is not the same as choosing whichever report one happens to prefer.

Hadith source. For the report that cupper and cupped have broken their fast, see Sunan Abī Dāwūd 2367; for the Prophet being cupped while fasting, Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī 1939.

256 · Deferred animal barter: conflict can concern scope as well as authenticity

Sales · part 2, ribā; exchanging animals with deferred delivery

Reports allowing an animal to be exchanged for more animals with later delivery stand against a prohibition of deferred animal-for-animal exchange. Ibn Rushd records different evaluations and reconciliations, including Mālikī attention to whether the animals have distinct uses. The disagreement is not only over which chain is stronger: a proposed distinction of legal purposes may reconcile reports which otherwise conflict. This illustrates why Darūrī §§256–257 insist on a stronger judgement rather than an exhaustive mechanical list of preference rules.

Hadith source. For the one-for-two camel report of ʿAbd Allāh b. ʿAmr, see Sunan Abī Dāwūd 3357; for Samura's prohibition of deferred animal-for-animal exchange, no. 3356.

ARABIC–ENGLISH REFERENCE BACKMATTER

Historical dictionary articles

Complete selected entries · 153 glossary terms · 157 source articles

This appendix replaces the earlier excerpt register and nine-entry pilot. Each source article is reproduced with a full working English translation. Arabic is on the physical left; English is on the right. Shared articles are printed once and linked from each relevant term.

What "complete" means. It means the whole selected headword or root article in the identified digital witness—not all articles in every dictionary. The links distinguish exact headwords, derived forms, internal discussions and related lexical evidence. A root article is not mislabelled as a technical definition of a compound. All 153 glossary terms have a dossier; that is not a claim of 153 exact-headword matches.

Chronology. E = earlier than Ibn Rushd's 552 AH composition; L = later historical witness. Later evidence illuminates terminology but does not prove Ibn Rushd's usage. Source transcriptions and the new translations are not independently manuscript-collated. Unresolved readings are identified beside the affected articles.

Navigation. Select a term below. Its section references lead back to the main text in the integrated edition. The subject index precedes this dictionary; the R/BA concordance follows it. R and BA refer to printed editorial numbering systems, not two manuscripts.

1. ibāḥa إِبَاحَة

In the Darūrī: Permission: a legal allowing of alternatives, distinguished from obligation and from mere absence of an established prohibition.

Text: §16 · §17 · §27 · §203

ibāḥa · الإباحة

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · p. 7. Source ↗

هي الإذن بإتيان الفعل كيف شاء الفاعل. Permission to perform the act as the agent wishes.

2. ibdāl / tabdīl إِبْدَال / تَبْدِيل

In the Darūrī: Substitution: expression of a universal through a particular or vice versa, central to Ibn Rushd's account of semantic extension.

Text: §154 · §165 · §191 · §212 · §221

ibdāl · الإبدال

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · p. 5. Source ↗

هو أن يجعل حرف موضع حرف آخر لدفع الثقل. Placing one letter in the position of another in order to remove phonetic difficulty.

Editorial note. This is a grammatical definition of ibdāl. It is not itself a definition of legal substitution, and it must not be equated with Ibn Rushd's technical use without an additional contextual argument.

3. ijāza إِجَازَة

In the Darūrī: Authorization to transmit, distinguished from hearing a reading, reading before the teacher, and receiving a written text.

Text: §100 · §103 · §104

munāwala · المناولة

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 1492. Source ↗

هي أن يعطيه كتاب سماعه بيده ويقول أجزت لك أن تروي عني هذا الكتاب ولا يكفي مجرد إعطاء الكتاب. To hand someone the book of what one has heard and say, "I authorize you to transmit this book from me." Merely handing over the book is insufficient.

Editorial note. The ijāza cross-reference concerns the authorization expressly included in this munāwala article; it is not an independent ijāza entry.

ijāza · الإجازة

5. ijzāʾ إِجْزَاء

In the Darūrī: Sufficiency or discharge: performance which fulfils the legally required act, including its relevant conditions.

Text: §23 · §56 · §204 · §205

j-z-ʾ · جزأ

al-Muṭarrizī [L] · al-Mughrib fī tartīb al-Muʿrib · root جزأ. Source ↗

جزأت الإبل بالرطب عن الماء واجتزأت إذا اكتفت، ومنه لم تجتزئ بتلك الحيضة. وأجزأني الشيء كفاني، وهذا يجزئ عن هذا أي يقضي أو ينوب عنه، ومنه البدنة تجزئ عن سبعة. وأجزأت عنك مجزأ فلان أي كفيت كفايته ونبت منابه، وله في هذا غناء وجزاء أي كفاية. وقول محمد الفارس أجزأ من الراجل أي أكفى.

Jazaʾat al-ibil bi-l-ruṭb ʿan al-māʾ and ijtazaʾat mean that camels found fresh fodder sufficient in place of water. Hence: "She did not count that menstruation as sufficient." Ajzaʾanī al-shayʾ means that a thing sufficed for me; "this suffices in place of that" means that it discharges or substitutes for it. Hence: "A sacrificial camel suffices for seven people." Ajzaʾtu ʿanka majzaʾa fulān means that I rendered the service that so-and-so would have rendered and took his place. "He has ghanāʾ and jazāʾ in this" means adequacy. Muḥammad's statement that a horseman is ajzaʾ than a foot soldier means that he is more effective.

وتليين مثل هذه الهمزة شاذ على ما حكي عن علي بن عيسى أنه قال يقال هذا الأمر يجزئ عن هذا فيهمز ويلين. وعن الأزهري بعض الفقهاء يقول أجزى بمعنى قضى، وعلى ذلك قوله أجزى فيه الفرك أي الدلك والحك، وتقديره أجزأ الفرك عن الغسل أي ناب وأغنى، وأجزأك بمعنى كفاك على حذف المفعول. ومثله إذا صليت في السفينة قاعدا أجزأك على إضمار الفاعل لدلالة ما سبق عليه كأنه قيل أجزأك ما فعلت، ونظيره من كذب كان شرا له.

Softening a hamza of this kind is irregular. ʿAlī ibn ʿĪsā is reported to have said that one says, "This matter suffices in place of that," either pronouncing the hamza or softening it. Al-Azharī reports that some jurists say ajzā in the sense of qaḍā, "discharged." This explains the statement, "Rubbing sufficed in this," meaning rubbing and scraping: its full construction is that rubbing sufficed instead of washing, taking its place and dispensing with it. Ajzaʾaka, meaning "it sufficed for you," has its object omitted. Likewise, "When you pray sitting down in a ship, it suffices for you": the subject is implicit, indicated by what precedes, as though one had said, "What you did suffices for you." A comparable construction is, "Whoever lies—it is worse for him."

وأما جزى عنه جزاء بمعنى قضى فهو بغير همز، ومنه ولا تجزي عن أحد بعدك أي لا تؤدي عنه ولا تقضي، ومنه الجزية لأنها تجزئ عن الذمي. وأما حديث ابن مسعود أنه اشترى من دهقان أرضا على أن يكفيه جزيتها فالمراد بها خراج الأرض على الاستعارة، والمعنى أنه شرط أن يؤدي عنه الخراج في السنة التي وقع فيها البيع. وقولهم صلاة مجزية إن كان من هذا فالصواب جازية وإلا فهي مجزئة بالهمزة أو تركه على ما ذكر آنفا.

As for jazā ʿanhu jazāʾan in the sense of “discharged on his behalf,” it has no hamza. Hence: “It will not suffice for anyone after you,” meaning that it neither performs nor discharges the duty on his behalf. From this comes jizya, since it discharges the protected non-Muslim’s obligation. In the report that Ibn Masʿūd bought land from a dihqān on condition that the seller take care of its jizya for him, the word figuratively means the land tax. The meaning is that he stipulated that the seller pay the land tax for him in the year of the sale. In the expression “a sufficient prayer” (ṣalāh mujziya), if the adjective derives from this form, the correct form is jāziya; otherwise it is mujziʾa, with the hamza pronounced or omitted as just explained.

An attribute that brings about, in a living being, a state in which an act proceeds from him in one manner rather than another. In its proper sense it is always directed only towards what is not yet existent, for it is an attribute that specifies something for realization and existence. As God, exalted is He, says: "His command, when He wills a thing, is only to say to it, 'Be,' and it is" [Q 36:82].

In the Darūrī: Welfare-oriented reasoning. The Darūrī asks what makes a proposed benefit legally authoritative rather than merely attractive.

maṣlaḥa · المصلحة

هي ما يترتّب على الفعل وقد ذكر في لفظ الغاية في الناقص اليائي، وجمع المصلحة المصالح. والمصالح المرسلة عند الأصوليين هي الأوصاف التي تعرف علّيتها أي بدون شهادة الأصول بمجرّد الإخالة أي بمجرّد كونها مخيّلة أي موقعة في القلب خيال العلّية والصّحة فلم يشهد لها الشرع بالاعتبار ولا بالإبطال، وهي مقبولة عند الغزالي إذا كانت المصلحة ضرورية قطعية كلّية.

It is what results from an act; it has been discussed under ghāya in the section for roots whose final radical is yāʾ. The plural of maṣlaḥa is maṣāliḥ. Among the legal theorists, unrestricted interests (al-maṣāliḥ al-mursala) are attributes whose causal relevance is recognized—that is, without testimony from the established sources—merely through their appearing appropriate (ikhāla): merely through their suggesting, or producing in the mind an impression of, causal relevance and soundness. The revealed law has therefore testified neither to their recognition nor to their invalidation. Al-Ghazālī accepts them when the interest is necessary, certain and universal.

ثم قال الغزالي: وهذه أي المصلحة التي لم يشهد لها الشرع بالاعتبار ولا بالإبطال وإن سمّيناها مصلحة مرسلة، لكنها راجعة إلى الأصول الأربعة لأنّ مرجع المصلحة إلى حفظ مقاصد الشرع المعلومة بالكتاب والسّنّة والإجماع، فهي ليست بقياس إذ القياس له أصل معيّن.

Al-Ghazālī then said: this—that is, an interest to whose recognition or invalidation the revealed law has not testified—even though we call it an unrestricted interest, nevertheless goes back to the four sources. For interest ultimately consists in preserving the purposes of the revealed law that are known through the Book, the Sunna and consensus. It is not analogy, since analogy has a particular original case.

والمصالح الحاجية هي التي في محلّ الحاجة، والمصالح التحسينية هي التي لا تكون في محلّ الضرورة ولا الحاجة بل هي تقرير الناس على مكارم الأخلاق ومحاسن الشّيم، هكذا يستفاد من التوضيح والتلويح والچلبي ويجيء في لفظ المناسبة أيضا.

Interests pertaining to needs (al-maṣāliḥ al-ḥājiyya) are those arising where there is a need. Refining interests (al-maṣāliḥ al-taḥsīniyya) arise neither at the level of necessity nor at that of need; rather, they establish people in noble character and praiseworthy dispositions. This is what is gathered from al-Tawḍīḥ, al-Talwīḥ and al-Chalabī. It will also be discussed under munāsaba.

Editorial note. The historical Arabic article is reproduced in full up to the following headword, al-muṣmat. The modern English/French labels of the 1996 edition are not part of al-Tahānawī's article. "Universal" translates kulliyya in the quoted condition; this is the dictionary's report of al-Ghazālī, not an assertion that Ibn Rushd adopts that condition.

15. istiʿāra اسْتِعَارَة

In the Darūrī: Transfer or metaphorical borrowing of an expression, one way words can signify beyond their original assignment.

Text: §153 · §164 · §180

istiʿāra · الاستعارة

ادعاء معنى الحقيقة في الشيء للمبالغة في التشبيه مع طرح ذكر المشبه من البين كقولك لقيت أسدا وأنت تعني به الرجل الشجاع ثم إذا ذكر المشبه به مع ذكر القرينة يسمى استعارة تصريحية وتحقيقية نحو لقيت أسدا في الحمام.

Claiming that a thing possesses the literal meaning, in order to intensify a comparison, while omitting mention of the thing compared. For example, you say "I met a lion" while meaning a courageous man. When the object of comparison is mentioned together with a contextual indicator, this is called an explicit and realized metaphor, as in "I met a lion in the bathhouse."

وإذا قلنا المنية أي الموت أنشبت أي علقت أظفارها بفلان فقد شبهنا المنية بالسبع في اغتيال النفوس أي هلاكها من غير تفرقة بين نفاع وضرار فأثبتنا لها الأظفار التي لا يكمل ذلك الاغتيال فيه بدونها تحقيقا للمبالغة في التشبيه فتشبيه المنية بالسبع استعارة بالكناية وإثبات الأظفار لها استعارة تخيلية.

When we say, "Death has fastened its claws upon so-and-so"—maniyya meaning death, and anshabat meaning fastened—we compare death to a beast of prey in its destroying lives, without distinguishing between the beneficial and the harmful. We attribute to death the claws without which the beast's destruction would not be complete, to realize the force of the comparison. Comparing death to the beast is an implicit metaphor; attributing claws to it is an imaginative metaphor.

Metaphor in a verb is always derivative, as in "The situation spoke."

16. istiqrāʾ اسْتِقْرَاء

In the Darūrī: Induction: discerning a pattern from cases, including the recovery of early jurists' implicit methods from their decisions.

Text: §4 · §217

istiqrāʾ · الاستقراء

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 108. Source ↗

هو الحكم على كلي بوجوده في أكثر جزئياته وإنما قال في أكثر جزئياته لأن الحكم لو كان في جميع جزئياته لم يكن استقراء بل قياسا مقسما ويسمى هذا استقراء لأن مقدماته لا تحصل إلا بتتبع الجزئيات كقولنا كل حيوان يحرك فكه الأسفل عند المضغ لأن الإنسان والبهائم والسباع كذلك وهو استقراء ناقص لا يفيد اليقين لجواز وجود جزئي لم يستقرأ ويكون حكمه مخالفا لما استقرئ كالتمساح فإنه يحرك فكه الأعلى عند المضغ.

Judging concerning a universal on the basis of its presence in most of its particulars. He says "in most of its particulars" because, if the judgement concerned all its particulars, it would not be induction but a divided syllogism. It is called induction because its premises are obtained only by investigating particulars. For example: "Every animal moves its lower jaw when chewing," because human beings, domestic animals, and beasts of prey do so. This is incomplete induction and does not yield certainty, since a particular may exist that has not been investigated and whose case differs from those investigated—as with the crocodile, which, according to the example, moves its upper jaw when chewing.

Editorial note. The crocodile example is reproduced as the author's historical example, not as an independently verified claim about animal anatomy. The article's restriction of "induction" is likewise this source's terminology, not a universal convention of the logical tradition.

17. ishtirāk اشْتِرَاك

In the Darūrī: Equivocation: one expression's established use for distinct meanings, not the inclusion of many instances within a single general meaning.

al-mushtarak · المشترك

ما وضع لمعنى كثير بوضع كثير كالعين لاشتراكه بين المعاني ومعنى الكثرة ما يقابل القلة فيدخل فيه المشترك بين المعنيين فقط كالقرء والشفق فيكون مشتركا بالنسبة إلى الجميع ومجملا بالنسبة إلى كل واحد.

A word assigned to several meanings through several acts of assignment, such as ʿayn, which is shared by different meanings. Multiplicity here is that which contrasts with paucity [so the transcription reads]; this includes a word shared by only two meanings, such as qurʾ and shafaq. It is thus equivocal in relation to all its meanings and indeterminate in relation to each one.

والاشتراك بين الشيئين إن كان بالنوع يسمى مماثلة كاشتراك زيد وعمرو في الإنسانية وإن كان بالجنس يسمى مجانسة كاشتراك إنسان وفرس في الحيوانية وإن كان بالعرض إن كان في الكم يسمى مادة كاشتراك ذراع من خشب وذراع من ثوب في الطول وإن كان في الكيف يسمى مشابهة كاشتراك الإنسان والحجر في السواد وإن كان بالمضاف يسمى مناسبة كاشتراك زيد وعمرو في بنوة بكر وإن كان بالشكل يسمى مشاكلة كاشتراك الأرض والهواء في الكرية وإن كان بالوضع المخصوص يسمى موازنة وهو ألا يختلف البعد بينهما كسطح كل فلك وإن كان بالأطراف يسمى مطابقة كاشتراك الإجانتين في الأطراف.

When two things share a species, this is called likeness in species (mumāthala), as Zayd and ʿAmr share humanity. When they share a genus, it is called common membership of a genus (mujānasa), as a human and a horse share animality. When their sharing is accidental: in quantity, it is called mādda [the transcription's reading], as a cubit of wood and a cubit of cloth share length; in quality, resemblance (mushābaha), as a human and a stone share blackness; in relation, proportional correspondence (munāsaba), as Zayd and ʿAmr are both sons of Bakr; in shape, conformity of shape (mushākala), as earth and air share sphericity; in a particular position, parallelism (muwāzana), meaning that the distance between them does not vary, as with the surface of each celestial sphere; and in extremities, coincidence (muṭābaqa), as with the edges of two basins.

Editorial note.
Complete article, including the second, categorial sense of ishtirāk. Two doubtful digital readings are retained openly: "paucity" probably stands for "unity," and mādda for musāwāt, "equality." Neither conjecture is silently substituted. The second paragraph is not a further definition of lexical equivocity.

bara’a · برأ

أصل البُرْءِ والبَرَاءِ والتَبَرِّي: التقصّي مما يكره مجاورته، ولذلك قيل: بَرَأْتُ من المرض وبَرِئْتُ من فلان وتَبَرَّأْتُ وأَبْرَأْتُهُ من كذا، وبَرَّأْتُهُ، ورجل بَرِيءٌ، وقوم بُرَآء وبَرِيئُون.

The original sense of bur’, barā’ and tabarrī is to free oneself entirely from that whose proximity is disliked. Hence one says: “I recovered from illness”; “I dissociated myself from so-and-so”; “I disowned [something]”; “I released him from such-and-such”; and “I cleared him.” One speaks of a man as barī’, and of a group as burā’ or barī’ūn.

قال عزّ وجلّ: بَراءَةٌ مِنَ اللَّهِ وَرَسُولِهِ [التوبة/1]، أَنَّ اللَّهَ بَرِيءٌ مِنَ الْمُشْرِكِينَ وَرَسُولُهُ [التوبة/3]، وقال: أَنْتُمْ بَرِيئُونَ مِمَّا أَعْمَلُ وَأَنَا بَرِيءٌ مِمَّا تَعْمَلُونَ [يونس/41]، إِنَّا بُرَآؤُا مِنْكُمْ وَمِمَّا تَعْبُدُونَ مِنْ دُونِ اللَّهِ [الممتحنة/4]، وَإِذْ قالَ إِبْراهِيمُ لِأَبِيهِ وَقَوْمِهِ إِنَّنِي بَراءٌ مِمَّا تَعْبُدُونَ [الزخرف/26]، فَبَرَّأَهُ اللَّهُ مِمَّا قالُوا [الأحزاب/69]، وقال: إِذْ تَبَرَّأَ الَّذِينَ اتُّبِعُوا مِنَ الَّذِينَ اتَّبَعُوا [البقرة/166].

God—mighty and majestic—says: “A declaration of release from God and His Messenger” [Q 9:1]; “God is free of the polytheists, and so is His Messenger” [Q 9:3]; “You are free of responsibility for what I do, and I am free of responsibility for what you do” [Q 10:41]; “We disown you and what you worship apart from God” [Q 60:4]; “When Abraham said to his father and his people: I am quit of what you worship” [Q 43:26]; “God cleared him of what they said” [Q 33:69]; and “When those who were followed disown those who followed them” [Q 2:166].

Al-Bāri’ is reserved as a description of God, as in “the Originator, the Fashioner” [Q 59:24] and “Turn in repentance to your Originator” [Q 2:54]. Al-bariyya means created beings. It is said that the word originally had a hamza which was dropped. Another account derives it from “I pared the stick”: creatures are called bariyya because they are fashioned out of barā, that is, earth. This is supported by “He created you from earth” [Q 40:67], “Those are the best of created beings” [Q 98:7], and “the worst of created beings” [Q 98:6].

Editorial note.
This is the complete article برأ, including its theological and etymological senses. It is not an article headed براءة أصلية. The legal principle’s contextual explanation remains in the Darūrī term register; al-Jurjānī’s istiṣḥāb is a separately attributed article, never part of this one.

24. burhān بُرْهَان

In the Darūrī: Demonstration or conclusive proof. Its logical analysis belongs to a different discipline from the present abridgement’s immediate task.

Text: §9 · §15 · §75

burhān · البرهان

هو القياس المؤلف من اليقينيات، سواء كانت ابتداء؛ وهي الضروريات، أو بواسطة؛ وهي النظريات. والحد الأوسط فيه لا بد أن يكون علة لنسبة الأكبر إلى الأصغر؛ فإن كان مع ذلك علة لوجود تلك النسبة في الخارج أيضا، فهو برهان لمي، كقولنا: هذا متعفن الأخلاط، وكل متعفن الأخلاط محموم، فهذا محموم، فتعفن الأخلاط، كما أنه علة لثبوت الحمى في الذهن، كذلك علة لثبوت الحمى في الخارج، وإن لم يكن كذلك كان لا يكون علة للنسبة إلا في الذهن، فهو برهان إني، كقولنا: هذا محموم، متعفن الأخلاط، فهذا متعفن الأخلاط، فالحمى، وإن كانت علة لثبوت تعفن الأخلاط في الذهن، إلا أنها ليست علة له في الخارج، بل الأمر بالعكس.

A syllogism composed of certain premises, whether they are certain immediately—in which case they are necessary truths—or through an intermediary—in which case they are conclusions of inquiry. Its middle term must be a cause of attributing the major term to the minor. If it is also a cause of that relation's existence outside the mind, the demonstration is a "why" demonstration. For example: "This person has putrefied humours; everyone with putrefied humours has a fever; therefore this person has a fever." The putrefaction of the humours is a cause of the fever's being established in the mind and also of its existence outside the mind. If the middle term causes the relation only in the mind, it is a "that" demonstration. For example: "This person has a fever; [the text's statement of the major premise is defective:] putrefied humours; therefore this person has putrefied humours." Although the fever is a cause of establishing the putrefaction of the humours in the mind, it is not its cause outside the mind; rather, the reverse is the case.

Editorial note. The second syllogism is defective in the digital witness: the major premise is not fully expressed. The translation marks the defect instead of silently inserting an allegedly original sentence. The humoral example is a historical illustration, not a contemporary medical claim.

bariha / burhān · برء

قال تعالى: قُلْ: هاتُوا بُرْهانَكُمْ إِنْ كُنْتُمْ صادِقِينَ [البقرة/111]، قُلْ: هاتُوا بُرْهانَكُمْ هذا ذِكْرُ مَنْ مَعِيَ [الأنبياء/24]، قَدْ جاءَكُمْ بُرْهانٌ مِنْ رَبِّكُمْ [النساء/174].

Burhān is the clarification of an argument. Its pattern is fuʿlān, like rujḥān and thunyān. Some say it is a verbal noun of bariha, yabrahu, "to become white": one says abrah of a man, barhāʾ of a woman, and burh of a group. Barahraha is a young, fair-complexioned woman; burha is a period of time. Burhān is therefore the most certain of proofs, invariably requiring truth. For indications are of five kinds: one which always requires truth; one which always requires falsehood; one nearer to truth; one nearer to falsehood; and one equally related to the two.

God says: "Say: bring your proof, if you are truthful" [Q 2:111]; "Say: bring your proof; this is the reminder of those with me" [Q 21:24]; and "A proof has come to you from your Lord" [Q 4:174].

25. bayān بَيَان

In the Darūrī: Clarification: whatever validly brings a meaning to understanding, including wording, context and explanatory action.

Text: §159 · §160 · §161 · §228

bayān · البيان

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 297. Source ↗

عبارة عن إظهار المتكلم المراد للسامع وهو بالإضافة خمسة.

The speaker’s making the intended meaning manifest to the listener. In its subdivisions it is fivefold:

1 - بيان التبديل هو النسخ وهو رفع حكم شرعي بدليل شرعي متأخر.

1. Clarification by replacement is abrogation: removing a legal ruling through a later legal proof.

2 - بيان الضرورة هو نوع بيان يقع بغير ما وضع له لضرورة ما إذ الموضوع له النطق وهذا يقع بالسكوت مثل سكوت المولى عن النهي حين يرى عبده يبيع ويشتري فإنه يجعل إذنا له في التجارة ضرورة دفع الغرر عمن يعامله فإن الناس يستدلون بسكوته على إذنه فلو لم يجعل إذنا لكان إضرارا بهم وهو مدفوع.

2. Clarification by necessity occurs by something other than the appointed means because of a necessity. The appointed means is speech, but this occurs through silence: for example, a master refrains from prohibiting his slave when he sees him buying and selling. This is treated as permission to trade because of the need to remove the risk faced by those dealing with him. People infer permission from the master’s silence; refusing to count it as permission would harm them, and that harm is averted.

3 - بيان التغيير هو تغيير موجب الكلام نحو التعليق والاستثناء والتخصيص.

3. Clarification by modification changes what speech entails, as with conditional attachment, exception, and specification.

4 - بيان التفسير وهو بيان ما فيه خفاء من المشترك أو المشكل أو المجمل أو الخفي كقوله تعالى وأقاموا الصلاة وآتو الزكاة البقرة 277 فإن الصلاة مجمل فلحق البيان بالسنة وكذا الزكاة مجمل في حق النصاب والمقدار ولحق البيان بالسنة.

4. Clarification by explanation explains what is obscure in the equivocal, problematic, indeterminate, or hidden, as in “They establish prayer and give alms” [Q 2:277]. Prayer is indeterminate and received its explanation through the Sunna; likewise alms is indeterminate concerning the threshold and amount, and was explained by the Sunna.

5 - وهو النطق الفصيح المعرب أي المظهر عما في الضمير وإظهار المعنى وإيضاح ما كان مستورا قبله وقيل هو الإخراج عن حد الإشكال والفرق بين التأويل والبيان أن التأويل ما يذكر في كلام لا يفهم منه معنى محصل في أول وهلة والبيان ما يذكر فيما يفهم ذلك لنوع خفاء بالنسبة إلى البعض.

5. It is eloquent, expressive speech—that is, speech making manifest what is in the mind—and the manifestation of meaning and clarification of what was previously concealed. It is also said to be removing something from the domain of difficulty. Interpretation differs from clarification: interpretation concerns speech from which no determinate meaning is understood at first encounter; clarification concerns speech from which such a meaning is understood, but which has a kind of obscurity for some people.

Editorial note. This witness’s fivefold numbering is retained, although its fifth item shifts from a named legal subdivision to general definitions. This is not an editorial repair of the classification.

26. taʾthīm تَأْثِيم

In the Darūrī: Attribution of sin. Its absence does not entail the absence of error; knowledge and the accessibility of evidence matter.

Text: §242 · §243 · §244 · §245

والآثام اسم للأفعال المبطئة عن الثواب، وتسمية الكذاب إثما كتسمية الإنسان حيوانا لكونه من جملتهم، والآثم بالمد المتحمل للإثم. قال الراغب والإثم أعم من العدوان.

Ithm and āthām are names for actions that delay reward. Calling falsehood ithm is like calling a human an animal, since it belongs within that class. Āthim, with a long initial vowel, is someone who bears sin. Al-Rāghib says that ithm is more general than transgression (ʿudwān).

Editorial note. The digital text's al-kadhdhāb may also be read "the liar"; the translation follows the abstract comparison with a class of acts.

27. taʾwīl تَأْوِيل

In the Darūrī: Interpretation supported by evidence, especially departure from an expression's apparent meaning to a less evident one.

Text: §164 · §166 · §171

taʾwīl · التأويل

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 313. Source ↗

في الأصل الترجيع وفي الشرع صرف اللفظ عن معناه الظاهر إلى معنى يحتمله إذا كان المحتمل الذي يراه موافقا للكتاب والسنة مثل قوله تعالى يخرج الحي من الميت الأنبياء 95 أن أراد به إخراج الطير من البيضة كان تفسيرا وإن أراد به إخراج المؤمن من الكافر أو العالم من الجاهل كان تأويلا.

Originally, bringing back. In revealed law: diverting an expression from its apparent meaning to another meaning it admits, provided that the possible meaning one adopts accords with the Book and the Sunna. For example, with God's saying "He brings the living out of the dead": taking it to mean bringing a bird out of an egg is explanation; taking it to mean bringing a believer out of an unbeliever, or a learned person out of an ignorant person, is interpretive redirection.

Editorial note. The verse reference printed in this electronic witness is wrong; the wording occurs, for example, at Q 6:95 and Q 30:19.

28. takhṣīṣ تَخْصِيص

In the Darūrī: Specification: restricting a general expression's scope on adequate evidence; chronology helps distinguish it from abrogation.

Text: §174 · §181 · §182 · §190

takhṣīṣ · التخصيص

تفرد بعض الشيء بما لا يشاركه فيه الجملة، ذكره الراغب. وعبر عنه الأصوليون بقولهم: التخصيص، قصر العام على افراده بدليل مستقل مقترن به واحترز ب المستقل عن الاستثناء والشرط والغاية والصفة فإنها وإن لحقت العام لا تسمى تخصيصا، وبمقترن به عن النسخ نحو {خَالِقُ كُلِّ شَيْءٍ} إذ يعلم ضرورة أن الباري تقدس مخصوص به منه.

Some part of a thing's being distinguished by what the whole does not share: this is al-Rāghib's account. The legal theorists express it as restricting a general expression to [some of] its instances by an independent proof accompanying it. 'Independent' excludes exception, condition, limit and attribute: although these attach to a general expression, they are not called specification in this terminology. 'Accompanying it' excludes abrogation. An example is 'Creator of every thing' [Q 6:102; 13:16], since it is necessarily known that the Creator, exalted is He, is excluded from its scope.

Editorial note. The digital reading قصر العام على افراده lacks “some”. The bracketed words in English supply the restriction required by the definition and its following contrasts; no silent Arabic emendation is made. This restrictive use of takhṣīṣ is not shared by all legal theorists.

30. taṣdīq تَصْدِيق

In the Darūrī: Assent to an assertion. Its cause, necessity and degree are discussed especially in the analysis of mass transmission.

31. taṣwīb تَصْوِيب

In the Darūrī: Declaring juristic conclusions correct; the debate asks whether every qualified conclusion is true or whether one determinate ruling is sought.

Text: §237 · §239 · §240 · §243

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · entry 883. Source ↗

خلاف الخطأ وهما يستعملان في المجتهدات والحق والباطل يستعملان في المعتقدات حتى إذا سئلنا في مذهبنا ومذهب من خالفنا في الفروع يجب علينا أن نجيب بأن مذهبنا صواب يحتمل الخطأ ومذهب من خالفنا خطأ يحتمل الصواب وإذا سئلنا عن معتقدنا ومعتقد من خالفنا في المعتقدات يجب علينا أن نقول الحق ما عليه نحن والباطل ما عليه خصومنا.

The opposite of error. The two terms are used concerning matters subject to juristic reasoning, whereas “true” and “false” are used concerning matters of belief. Thus, when asked about our school and that of those who differ from us concerning derivative legal questions, we must answer: our school’s position is correct but admits the possibility of error, and the position of those who differ from us is erroneous but admits the possibility of correctness. When asked about our belief and the belief of those who differ from us concerning doctrinal matters, we must say: what we hold is true, and what our opponents hold is false.

This is what has been transmitted from the masters; the full discussion belongs to legal theory. In language, ṣawāb means soundness; technically, it is an established matter whose denial is not admissible. It is also said to mean attaining the truth. The distinction between correctness (ṣawāb), truthfulness (ṣidq), and truth (ḥaqq) is that correctness is a matter established in itself whose denial is admissible [as the text here reads]; truthfulness is the correspondence of what is in the mind with what is outside it; and truth is the correspondence of what is outside the mind with what is in it.

Editorial note. The article itself changes from “denial is not admissible” to “denial is admissible”; both readings are translated, not harmonized. This is an attributed later discussion, not a statement that Ibn Rushd adopts the author’s doctrinal contrast.

32. taʿāruḍ تَعَارُض

In the Darūrī: Conflict of evidence: an apparent opposition requiring assessment of reconciliation, chronology, preference or suspension.

Text: §96 · §181 · §229 · §246

al-muʿāraḍa · المعارضة

لغة هي المقابلة على سبيل الممانعة واصطلاحا هي إقامة الدليل على خلاف ما أقام الدليل عليه الخصم ودليل المعارض إن كان عين دليل المعلل يسمى قلبا وإلا فإن كانت صورته كصورته يسمى معارضة بالمثل وإلا فمعارضة بالغير وتقديرها إذا استدل على المطلوب بدليل فالخصم إن منع مقدمة من مقدماته أو كل واحدة منها على التعيين فذلك يسمى منعا مجردا ومناقضة ونقضا تفصيليا ولا يحتاج في ذلك إلى شاهد فإن ذكر شيئا يتقوى به يسمى سندا للمنع وإن منع مقدمة غير معينة بأن يقول ليس دليلك بجميع مقدماته صحيحا ومعناه أن فيها خللا فذلك يسمى نقضا إجماليا ولا بد هاهنا من شاهد على الاختلال وإن لم يمنع شيئا من المقدمات لا معينة ولا غير معينة بأن أورد دليلا على نقض مدعاه فذلك يسمى معارضة.

In language, counter-opposition is confrontation by way of resistance. Technically, it is establishing a proof for the opposite of what the opponent has established by proof. If the counter-arguer’s proof is identical with the original arguer’s proof, it is called reversal (qalb). Otherwise, if its form is the same as the other’s, it is counter-opposition by a like proof; if not, counter-opposition by a different proof. Its analysis is as follows. When someone argues for a conclusion by a proof, if the opponent challenges one of its premises—or each one, specifically—this is called bare denial, contradiction, or detailed refutation; no supporting witness is required. If the opponent mentions something strengthening the challenge, it is called a support for the denial. If an unspecified premise is challenged by saying, “Your proof is not sound in all its premises,” meaning that there is a flaw in them, this is called summary refutation; here a witness to the flaw is required. If no premise is challenged, whether specifically or nonspecifically, but a proof is produced overturning the claim, this is called counter-opposition.

Editorial note. Muʿāraḍa in disputation is not automatically identical with the uṣūl problem of apparently conflicting proofs (taʿāruḍ). The original glossary’s contextual meaning is retained separately.

33. taʿdīl تَعْدِيل

In the Darūrī: Attestation of probity, distinct from criticism and from an automatic guarantee of every report.

التساوي بين الشيئين، ومنه قسمة التعديل وهي قسمة الشيء باعتبار القيمة والمنفعة لا باعتبار العدل، فيجوز كون الجزء الأقل يعادل الأعظم في قيمته ومنفعته. وتعديل الشاهد نسبته إلى العدالة ووصفه بها.

Equality between two things. From this comes division by equalization: dividing a thing with regard to value and benefit, not with regard to “justice” [the transmitted reading]. Thus the smaller portion may equal the larger in value and benefit. The accreditation (taʿdīl) of a witness is attributing probity to him and describing him as possessing it.

Editorial note.
The digital text reads al-ʿadl, “justice,” where al-ʿadad, “number,” is contextually expected; the printed reading has not been silently supplied.

36. tamthīl تَمْثِيل

In the Darūrī: Exemplification or reasoning by a comparable particular; do not assume that every legal extension has this structure.

Text: §1 · §210 · §212 · §223

tamthīl · التمثيل

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 423. Source ↗

إثبات حكم واحد في جزأين لثبوته في جزئي الآخر لمعنى مشترك بينهما والفقهاء يسمونه قياسا والجزئي الأول فرعا والثاني أصلا والمشترك علة وجامعا كما يقال العالم مؤلف فهو حادث كالبيت يعني البيت حادث لأنه مؤلف وهذه العلة موجودة في العالم فيكون حادثا.

Establishing a single judgement in two particulars because it is established in the other particular, on account of a meaning they share. Jurists call this analogy, the first particular the derivative case, the second the original case, and the shared feature the cause and connecting feature. Thus: “The world is composite, so it is originated, like a house.” That is, a house is originated because it is composite, and this cause exists in the world, which is therefore originated.

Editorial note. The opening is awkward in this witness (جزأين … جزئي الآخر). The translation makes its comparison between particulars explicit without changing the Arabic.

Making what is in the speaker’s mind known to the addressee. In ordinary language, indicating what the addressee has overlooked. Technically, what is understood from an indeterminate expression with the least reflection, thus making the speaker’s intention known to the addressee. It is also said to be a rule through which subsequent investigations are known in outline.

38. tawātur تَوَاتُر

In the Darūrī: Mass transmission producing certainty, whose conditions are contextual and not captured by a single numerical threshold.

Text: §74 · §75 · §76 · §78

khabar mutawātir · الخبر المتواتر

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 643. Source ↗

هو الذي نقله جماعة عن جماعة والفرق بين المتواتر والمشهور أن جاحد الخبر المتواتر كافر بالاتفاق وجاحد الخبر المشهور مختلف فيه والأصح أنه يكفر وجاحد خبر الواحد لا يكفر بالاتفاق.

That which a group transmits from a group. The difference between the massively and the widely transmitted report is that denying the former constitutes unbelief by agreement, whereas the status of one who denies the latter is disputed, the view here called sounder being that it constitutes unbelief. Denying a solitary report does not constitute unbelief by agreement.

وهو الخبر الثابت على ألسنة قوم لا يتصور تواطؤهم على الكذب والخبر نوعان مرسل ومسند فالمرسل منه ما أرسله الراوي إرسالا من غير إسناد إلى راو آخر وهو حجة عندنا كالمسند خلافا للشافعي في إرسال سعيد بن المسيب فقد روى عن أبي بكر مرسلا والمسند ما أسنده الراوي إلى راو آخر إلى أن يصل إلى النبي صلى الله عليه وسلم.

It is a report established on the tongues of people whose collusion in falsehood is inconceivable. Reports are of two kinds: mursal and musnad. A mursal report is one the transmitter sends forth without assigning it to another transmitter. According to us it is a proof, like the musnad, in disagreement with al-Shāfiʿī; the passage then mentions the mursal transmission of Saʿīd b. al-Musayyab, who transmitted from Abū Bakr without a connected chain. A musnad report is one assigned by a transmitter to another transmitter until it reaches the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him.

ثم المسند أنواع متواتر ومشهور وآحاد فالمتواتر منه ما نقله قوم عن قوم لا يتصور تواطؤهم على الكذب فيه وهو الخبر المتصل إلى رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم وحكمه يوجب العلم والعمل قطعا حتى يكفر جاحده.

Musnad reports are then of several types: massively transmitted, widely transmitted, and solitary. The massively transmitted is what one body of people transmits from another in circumstances where their collusion in falsehood is inconceivable. It is a report connected to God’s Messenger, peace and blessings be upon him. Its evidential effect is decisively to require knowledge and action, such that its denier is judged an unbeliever.

فالمشهور منه هو ما كان من الآحاد في العصر الأول ثم اشتهر في العصر الثاني حتى رواه جماعة لا يتصور تواطؤهم على الكذب وتلقته العلماء بالقبول وهو أحد قسمي المتواتر وحكمه يوجب طمأنينة القلب لا علم يقين حتى يضل جاحده ولا يكفر وهو الصحيح وخبر الآحاد هو ما نقله واحد عن واحد وهو الذي لم يدخل في حد الاشتهار وحكمه يوجب العمل دون العلم ولهذا لا يكون حجة في المسائل الاعتقادية.

The widely transmitted is what was solitary in the first generation but became widespread in the second, until it was transmitted by a group whose collusion in falsehood was inconceivable and was accepted by the scholars. It is one of the two divisions of massive transmission. Its effect is to produce reassurance of the heart, not certain knowledge; consequently, its denier is held to be astray but not an unbeliever—and this is the correct view. A solitary report is what one person transmits from one person, without its entering the category of wide transmission. Its effect is to require action rather than knowledge, and for this reason it is not a proof in matters of belief.

Editorial note. The article contains both a stricter opening judgement and the later qualification “and this is the correct view” concerning denial of a widely transmitted report. Both are retained. The wording about al-Shāfiʿī and Saʿīd b. al-Musayyab is compressed in this digital witness and is not used here to establish al-Shāfiʿī’s doctrine independently.

39. tawaqquf تَوَقُّف

In the Darūrī: Suspension of judgement when the evidence does not justify a determinate conclusion; distinct from arbitrary choice.

Text: §229 · §246

waqf · وقف

Aḥmad b. Muḥammad al-Fayyūmī [L] · al-Miṣbāḥ al-munīr fī gharīb al-Sharḥ al-kabīr · Kitāb al-wāw, root w-q-f. Source ↗

وَقَفَتِ الدَّابَّةُ تَقِفُ وَقْفًا وَوُقُوفًا سَكَنَتْ وَوَقَفْتُهَا أَنَا يَتَعَدَّى وَلَا يَتَعَدَّى وَوَقَفْتُ الدَّارَ وَقْفًا حَبَسْتُهَا فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ وَشَيْءٌ مَوْقُوفٌ وَوَقْفٌ أَيْضًا تَسْمِيَةٌ بِالْمَصْدَرِ وَالْجَمْعُ أَوْقَافٌ مِثْلُ ثَوْبٍ وَأَثْوَابٍ وَوَقَفْتُ الرَّجُلَ عَنِ الشَّيْءِ وَقْفًا مَنَعْتُهُ عَنْهُ وَأَوْقَفْتُ الدَّارَ وَالدَّابَّةَ بِالْأَلِفِ لُغَةُ تَمِيمٍ وَأَنْكَرَهَا الْأَصْمَعِيُّ وَقَالَ الْكَلَامُ وَقَفْتُ بِغَيْرِ أَلِفٍ

Waqafat al-dābbatu, taqifu, waqfan and wuqūfan: the animal stood still. “I stopped it” is waqaftuhā; the verb is both transitive and intransitive. Waqaftu al-dāra waqfan means that I placed the house in inalienable dedication in God’s path. A thing so dedicated is mawqūf, and also waqf, the verbal noun being used as its name. The plural is awqāf, like thawb and athwāb. Waqaftu al-rajula ʿan al-shayʾi waqfan means that I prevented the man from it. Awqaftu al-dāra wa-l-dābbata, with alif, is the usage of Tamīm. Al-Aṣmaʿī rejected it and said that the expression is waqaftu, without alif.

Awqaftu ʿan al-kalām, with alif, means that I ceased speaking. “So-and-so spoke to me, and I awqaftu” means that I refrained from giving an argument because I could not express myself. Some have reported that, for what is held in the hand, one says awqaftuhu with alif, and for what is not held in the hand one says waqaftuhu without alif. The eloquent usage is waqaftu without alif throughout this class, except when one says mā awqafaka hāhunā, meaning “What circumstance made you stop here?” If you ask about a person, you say man waqafaka, without alif.

Waqaftu bi-ʿArafātin wuqūfan means that I was present there at its appointed time. Tawaqqafa ʿan al-amr means that he held back from the matter. “I made the matter waqf on Zayd’s arrival” means that I made judgement on it conditional upon his arrival. “I deferred the division of the inheritance until the birth” means that I delayed it until she gave birth. Mawqif is the place of standing or stopping.

40. tawqīf تَوْقِيف

In the Darūrī: Dependence on revealed instruction; in §229 the printed term is understood contextually as withholding judgement. Note the distinct usages.

w-q-f · وقف

al-Muṭarrizī [L] · al-Mughrib fī tartīb al-Muʿrib · root وقف. Source ↗

وقفه حبسه وقفا ووقف بنفسه وقوفا يتعدى ولا يتعدى وهو واقف وهم وقوف. ومنه وقف داره أو أرضه على ولده لأنه يحبس الملك عليه، وقيل للموقوف وقف تسمية بالمصدر ولذا جمع على أوقاف كوقت وأوقات. قالوا ولا يقال أوقفه إلا في لغة رديئة، وقيل يقال وقفه فيما يحبس باليد وأوقفه فيما لا يحبس بها. ومنه أوقفته على ذنبه أي عرفته إياه والمشهور وقفته. وما روي أنه صلى الله عليه وآله وسلم قال: من وهب هبة ثم أراد أن يرجع فيها فليوقف وليعرف قبح فعله، يحتمل أن يكون من البابين. وقوله قلت لها قفي فقالت لي قاف أي وقفت فاختصره. وقوله حين وقفه أي عرفه إياه من قولهم وقفت القارئ توقيفا إذا علمته مواضع الوقوف.

Waqafahu means “he detained it,” with the verbal noun waqf; waqafa by itself means “he stopped,” with the verbal noun wuqūf. The verb is both transitive and intransitive; its active participle is wāqif, plural wuqūf. Hence, “He endowed his house or land for his children,” since he restricts ownership to their benefit. The endowed property itself was called waqf, using the verbal noun as its name; hence the plural awqāf, like waqt and awqāt. They say that awqafahu is used only in an inferior dialect. It is also said that waqafahu is used for what is restrained by the hand, and awqafahu for what is not so restrained. Hence, “I apprised him of his sin,” meaning that I made it known to him; the well-known form is waqaftuhu. The reported saying of the Prophet—God bless him and his family and grant them peace—“Whoever gives a gift and then wishes to reclaim it should be stopped/apprised and made to know the ugliness of his action,” may belong to either construction. In “I said to her, ‘Stop!’ and she replied, ‘Qāf,’” qāf abbreviates “I have stopped.” And “when he waqqafahu” means “when he made it known to him,” from the expression “I instructed the reciter” (waqqaftu al-qāriʾa tawqīfan), meaning that I taught him the places at which to pause.

Editorial note. The instruction sense provides lexical evidence only. The article does not define the technical dependence of a ruling on revelation. Waqf as an endowment, stopping, and instruction remain distinct senses, not interchangeable definitions.

“Whoever gives a gift and then wishes to reclaim it should be stopped/apprised and made to know the ugliness of his action”
Cf. Sunan Abī Dāwūd 3540, on reclaiming a gift. The dictionary expands the report’s instruction to stop the giver and make him aware; its explanatory wording is retained.

41. jarḥ جَرْح

In the Darūrī: Criticism of a narrator’s credibility or probity; the grounds and relative force of such criticism require assessment.

Text: §94 · §95 · §96

jarḥ · الجرح

أثر دم في الجلد، ويسمى القدح في الشاهد جرحا تشبيها به، وتسمى الصائدة من الكلاب والفهود والطير جارحة وجمعها جوارح أيضًا لأنها تجرح أو تكسب، وتسمى الأعضاء الكاسبة جوارح تشبيها بها لأحد هذين. وفي المصباح: جرحه بلسانه عابه وتنقصه، ومنه جرحت الشاهد إذا أظهرت فيه ما ترد به شهادته. والاجتراح اكتساب الإثم أصله من الجراحة.

A trace of blood in the skin. Impugning a witness is called jarḥ by analogy with this. Hunting dogs, cheetahs and birds are called jāriḥa, plural jawāriḥ, because they wound or acquire prey; the bodily organs by which one acquires are likewise called jawāriḥ by analogy, for one of these two reasons. In al-Miṣbāḥ: ‘He wounded him with his tongue’ means that he disparaged and belittled him. Hence ‘I impugned the witness’ means that I disclosed something in him on account of which his testimony is rejected. Ijtirāḥ is the acquisition of sin; its original sense comes from wounding.

42. juzʾī جُزْئِيّ

In the Darūrī: Particular: an individual case or more restricted meaning relative to a universal. It is not simply a grammatical “specific expression.”

juzʾī ḥaqīqī · الجزئي الحقيقي

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 489. Source ↗

ما يمنع نفس تصوره من وقوع الشركة كزيد ويسمى جزئيا لأن جزئية الشيء إنما هي بالنسبة إلى الكلي والكلي جزء الجزئي فيكون منسوبا إلى الجزء والمنسوب إلى الجزء جزئي وبإزائه الكلي الحقيقي.

That whose very conception prevents its being shared, as with Zayd. It is called a particular because a thing’s particularity is relative to the universal, and the universal is a part of the particular; the particular is thus related to a part, and what is related to a part is called juzʾī. Its counterpart is the real universal.

Editorial note.
The source’s derivation of the terminology is translated as given; it should not be mistaken for a claim that an individual is merely a physical portion of a universal.

juzʾī iḍāfī · الجزئي الإضافي

عبارة عن كل أخص تحت الأعم كالإنسان بالنسبة إلى الحيوان يسمى بذلك لأن جزئيته بالإضافة إلى شيء آخر وبإزائه الكلي الإضافي وهو الأعم من شيء والجزئي الإضافي أعم من الجزئي الحقيقي فجزء الشيء ما يتركب ذلك الشيء منه ومن غيره كما أن الحيوان جزء زيد وزيد مركب من الحيوان وغيره وهو ناطق وعلى هذا التقدير زيد يكون كلا والحيوان جزءا فإن نسب الحيوان إلى زيد يكون الحيوان كليا وإن نسب زيد إلى الحيوان يكون زيد جزئيا.

Every narrower item falling under a broader one, as the human being falls under animal. It is called this because its particularity is relative to something else. Its counterpart is the relative universal, which is broader than something. The relative particular is broader in extension than the real particular. A part of a thing is that from which, together with something else, the thing is composed. Thus animal is a part of Zayd, and Zayd is composed of animal and something else, namely rational. On this account Zayd is a whole and animal a part. When animal is related to Zayd, animal is universal; when Zayd is related to animal, Zayd is particular.

43. jins جِنْس

In the Darūrī: Genus or kind: a grouping by an intelligible common feature, important in classification and in recognized suitable grounds.

jins · الجنس

اسم دال على كثيرين مختلفين بأنواع.

وكلي مقول على كثيرين مختلفين بالحقيقة في جواب ما هو من حيث هو كذلك فالكلي جنس وقوله مختلفين بالحقيقة يخرج النوع والخاصة والفصل القريب وقوله في جواب ما هو يخرج الفصل البعيد والعرض العام وهو قريب إن كان الجواب عن الماهية وعن بعض ما يشاركها في ذلك الجنس هو الجواب عنها وعن كل ما يشاركها فيه كالحيوان بالنسبة إلى الإنسان وبعيد إن كان الجواب عنها وعن بعض ما يشاركها فيه غير الجواب عنها وعن البعض الآخر كالجسم النامي بالنسبة إلى الإنسان.

A name indicating many things that differ in species.

Also: a universal predicated of many things differing in their realities, in answer to “What is it?”, considered precisely in that respect. “Universal” supplies the genus of the definition. “Differing in their realities” excludes species, property, and proximate differentia. “In answer to ‘What is it?’” excludes remote differentia and common accident. A genus is proximate when the answer concerning a quiddity and some of what shares that genus is the same as the answer concerning it and everything that shares the genus—for example, “animal” in relation to the human being. It is remote when the answer concerning the quiddity and some of what shares it differs from the answer concerning it and the remainder—for example, “growing body” in relation to the human being.

44. ḥākim حَاكِم

In the Darūrī: One who determines or commands; in the account of legal judgement, ultimately God, with derivative human authority distinguished.

Text: §36 · §37

ḥākim · الحاكم

عند الأصوليين والفقهاء هو الله تعالى والمحكوم عليه هو من وقع له الخطاب أي المخاطب بالفتح وهو المكلّف والمحكوم به هو ما يتعلّق به الخطاب وهو فعل المكلّف ويسمّى بالمحكوم فيه. فإذا قيل الصلاة واجبة، فالمحكوم عليه هو المكلّف والمحكوم به هو الصلاة، وهذا كما يقال حكم الأمير على زيد بكذا، وهذا بخلاف اصطلاح المنطقيين فإنهم يطلقون المحكوم عليه وبه على طرفي القضية.

For legal theorists and jurists, the one who rules is God, exalted is He. The person ruled upon is the one to whom the address comes—that is, its addressee—and is the legally responsible person. What is ruled about is that to which the address relates: the act of the legally responsible person. This is also called the matter in which the ruling is made. Thus, when one says ‘Prayer is obligatory’, the person ruled upon is the legally responsible person, and what is ruled about is prayer. This is like saying ‘The ruler adjudged such-and-such against Zayd’. This differs from the terminology of logicians, who apply ‘what is judged upon’ and ‘what is judged’ to the two terms of a proposition.

In the example just given, for logicians the subject judged upon is prayer, and the predicate judged is obligatoriness, not the legally responsible person's act. The jurists' account is clear where the ruling is an attribute of that person's act, such as obligatoriness, and where it is a conditional ruling, such as causal status: the person is addressed to the effect that his act is a cause of something, a condition of it, or the like. But where the ruling is an effect of the person's act—such as ownership of the thing itself, entitlement to conjugal enjoyment or usufruct, or the establishment of a debt as a liability—it is not evident that what is ruled about is the person's act. Indeed, if ownership itself is taken to be the ruling, there is nothing here suitable to serve as what is ruled about. Thus in al-Talwīḥ.

الصحيح لذاته من الحديث: هو ما يشتمل من صفات القبول على أعلاها بأن ينقله عدل تمام الضبط متصل السند غير معلل ولا شاذ. وتتفاوت رتبه بسبب تفاوت هذه الأوصاف في القوة فإن خف الضبط وتكثرت طرقه فهو الصحيح لغيره.

A report sound in itself is one possessing the highest conditions of acceptance: it is transmitted by an upright narrator of complete precision, with a continuous chain, without a hidden defect and without anomalous opposition. Its grades differ according to the differing strength of these characteristics. Where precision is lighter but its transmission routes are numerous, it is sound through corroboration.

It is either rational, revolving around negation and affirmation—[the digital witness is defective at this point concerning the exclusion of further rational, and hence actual, alternatives]—as when we say that indication is either verbal or non-verbal; or inductive, which does not revolve around negation and affirmation but is obtained by induction and investigation. A merely rational possibility does not impair the latter, but an actual counter-instance does. The example given is: "Verbal indication is either conventional or natural."

Editorial note. The reading ومنه الاحتمال العقلي فضلا عن الوجودي is problematic; it is not silently translated as an established corrected reading. The final example, as transmitted, lists only two divisions. No missing category is attributed to this witness.

53. ḥaqīqa حَقِيقَة

In the Darūrī: Proper or literal usage, opposed to transferred or figurative usage; context determines which sense is established.

Text: §65 · §153 · §162 · §164

ḥaqīqa · الحقيقة

اسم أريد به ما وضع له فعيلة من حق الشيء إذا ثبت بمعنى فاعلة أي حقيق والتاء فيه للنقل من الوصفية إلى اسمية كما في العلامة لا للتأنيث وفي الاصطلاح هي الكلمة المستعملة فيما وضعت له في اصطلاح به التخاطب.

A name by which what it was assigned to is intended. It is a faʿīla form from “a thing was established,” with an active meaning, “established”; its final tāʾ marks the transfer from adjectival to nominal use, as in ʿallāma, not feminine gender. Technically, it is a word used for what it was assigned to in the convention governing the discourse.

واحترز به عن المجاز الذي استعمل فيما وضع له في اصطلاح آخر غير اصطلاح التخاطب كالصلاة إذا استعملها المخاطب بعرف الشرع في الدعاء فإنها تكون مجازا لكون الدعاء غير ما وضعت هي له في اصطلاح الشرع لأنها في اصطلاح الشرع وضعت للأركان والأذكار المخصوصة مع إنها موضوعة للدعاء في اصطلاح اللغة.

This excludes figurative usage in which a word is used for what it was assigned to in a convention other than that governing the discourse. For example, when someone speaking according to revealed-law convention uses ṣalāh for supplication, it is figurative: supplication is not what the word was assigned to in that convention, where it denotes specified integral acts and recollections, even though in ordinary language it was assigned to supplication.

Also: every expression remaining with its assigned meaning; or what people have conventionally agreed to use in addressing one another.

والشيء الثابت قطعا ويقينا يقال حق الشيء إذا ثبت وهو اسم للشيء المستقر في محله فإذا أطلق يراد به ذات الشيء الذي وضعه واضع اللغة في الأصل كاسم الأسد للبهيمة وهو ما كان قارا في محله والمجاز ما كان قارا في غير محله.

Also: a thing established decisively and certainly. One says “the thing is true” when it is established. It names a thing settled in its place; when used without qualification it means the very thing for which the institutor of language originally assigned the name, such as “lion” for the animal. Literal usage remains in its own place; figurative usage rests elsewhere.

Editorial note. This complete witness supplies the words lost in the earlier digital extract’s prayer example. The article’s separate senses remain identifiable.

إسناد أمر إلى آخر إيجابا أو سلبا، فخرج بهذا ما ليس بحكم، كالنسبة التقييدية.

Attributing one thing to another affirmatively or negatively. This excludes what is not a judgement, such as a restrictive, non-predicative relation.

55. khāṣṣ خَاصّ

In the Darūrī: Specific expression: wording directly designating a restricted subject, which may nevertheless indicate an intended universal through context.

Text: §165 · §191

khāṣṣ · الخاص

هو كل لفظ وضع لمعنى معلوم على الانفراد المراد بالمعنى الذي وضع له اللفظ عينا كان أو عرضا وبانفراد اختصاص اللفظ بذلك المعنى وإنما قيده بالانفراد ليتميز عن المشترك.

Every expression assigned to a known meaning individually. “Meaning” here is that to which the expression was assigned, whether a concrete entity or an accident; “individually” signifies the expression’s restriction to that meaning. The qualification “individually” distinguishes it from an equivocal expression.

عبارة عن التفرد يقال فلان خص بكذا أي أفرد به ولا شركة للغير فيه.

Also: singleness or exclusive possession. One says that a person was singled out for something, meaning that it was allotted to him alone and no one else shares it.

56. khabar خَبَر

In the Darūrī: Report: a communicated assertion assessed through its source, wording and evidential consequences.

khabar · الخبر

لفظ مجرد عن العوامل اللفظية مسند إلى ما تقدمه لفظا نحو زيد قائم أو تقديرا نحو أقائم زيد وقيل الخبر ما يصح السكوت عليه وهو الكلام المحتمل للصدق والكذب.

An expression free of overt verbal governors, predicated of something that precedes it either in utterance, as in “Zayd is standing,” or in the underlying construction, as in “Is Zayd standing?” It has also been said that a khabar is something after which one may appropriately fall silent. It is discourse admitting truth or falsehood.

وخبر إن وأخواتها هو المسند بعد دخول إن وأخواتها والخبر على ثلاثة أقسام خبر متواتر وخبر مشهور وخبر واحد.

The predicate of inna and its sisters is what is predicated after the introduction of inna or one of its sisters. Reports are of three kinds: massively transmitted, widely transmitted, and solitary.

أما الخبر المتواتر فهو كلام يسمعه من رسول الله جماعة ومنها جماعة أخرى إلى أن ينتهي إلى المتمسك.

A massively transmitted report is discourse heard from God’s Messenger by a group, and from that group by another group, continuing until it reaches the person relying upon it.

وأما الخبر المشهور فهو كلام يسمعه من رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم واحد ويسمعه من الواحد جماعة ومن تلك الجماعة أيضا جماعة إلى أن ينتهي إلى المتمسك والفرق هو أن جاحد الخبر المتواتر يكون كافرا بالاتفاق وجاحد الخبر المشهور مختلف فيه والأصح أن يكفر وجاحد خبر الواحد لا يكون كافرا بالاتفاق.

A widely transmitted report is discourse heard from God's Messenger, peace and blessings be upon him, by one person, from whom a group hears it, and from that group another group, continuing until it reaches the person relying upon it. The difference, according to this passage, is that denying a massively transmitted report constitutes unbelief by agreement; the status of one who denies a widely transmitted report is disputed, the view here called sounder being that it constitutes unbelief; denying a solitary report does not constitute unbelief by agreement.

Editorial note. These judgements are the historical source's formulation, not declarations about any living person. The separate article "massively transmitted report" below preserves a different qualification regarding denial of a widely transmitted report; the difference is not harmonized away.

57. khabar al-wāḥid خَبَر الْوَاحِد

In the Darūrī: Solitary report: a report not attaining the certainty of mass transmission; "solitary" does not necessarily mean only one transmitter at every stage.

58. khaṭaʾ خَطَأ

In the Darūrī: Error: failure to attain the true ruling or perform correctly. It can be pardoned without becoming correctness.

khaṭaʾ · الخطأ

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 659. Source ↗

هو ما ليس للإنسان فيه قصد وهو عذر صالح لسقوط حق الله تعالى إذا حصل عن اجتهاد ويصير شبهة في العقوبة حتى لا يؤثم الخاطئ ولا يؤاخذ بحد ولا قصاص ولم يجعل عذرا في حق العباد حتى وجب عليه ضمان العدوان ووجبت به الدية كما إذا رمى شخصا ظنه صيدا أو حربيا فإذا هو مسلم أو غرضا فأصاب آدميا وما جرى مجراه كنائم ثم انقلب على رجل فقتله.

That in which a person has no intention. When it arises from conscientious judgement, it is an excuse capable of removing a claim belonging to God, exalted is He, and introduces doubt concerning punishment, so that the mistaken person is not held sinful or subjected to a prescribed penalty or retaliation. It is not made an excuse with respect to the rights of created persons: compensation for the injury remains due, and blood-money is required. For example, someone shoots at a person whom he supposes to be game or an enemy combatant, but who turns out to be a Muslim; or shoots at a target but hits a human being. Comparable cases include a sleeping person who rolls over upon a man and kills him.

Editorial note. A historical legal definition, not advice for deciding a contemporary criminal or compensation case.

59. khiṭāb خِطَاب

In the Darūrī: Address or discourse: the Lawgiver’s communication as directed to an addressee concerning an act; context is constitutive of understanding.

Text: §11 · §36 · §38 · §239

khaṭaba · خطب

al-Rāghib al-Iṣfahānī [E] · al-Mufradāt fī gharīb al-Qurʾān · s.v. خطب. Source ↗

الخَطْبُ والمُخَاطَبَة والتَّخَاطُب: المراجعة في الكلام، ومنه: الخُطْبَة والخِطْبَة لكن الخطبة تختصّ بالموعظة، والخطبة بطلب المرأة قال تعالى: وَلا جُناحَ عَلَيْكُمْ فِيما عَرَّضْتُمْ بِهِ مِنْ خِطْبَةِ النِّساءِ [البقرة/235]، وأصل الخطبة: الحالة التي عليها الإنسان إذا خطب نحو الجلسة والقعدة، ويقال من الخُطْبَة: خاطب وخطيب، ومن الخِطْبَة خاطب لا غير، والفعل منهما خَطَبَ.

والخَطْبُ: الأمر العظيم الذي يكثر فيه التخاطب، قال تعالى: فَما خَطْبُكَ يا سامِرِيُّ [طه/95]، فَما خَطْبُكُمْ أَيُّهَا الْمُرْسَلُونَ [الذاريات/31]، وفصل الخِطَاب: ما ينفصل به الأمر من الخطاب.

Khaṭb, mukhāṭaba and takhāṭub mean an exchange of speech. From this come khuṭba and khiṭba: khuṭba is specifically an admonitory address, while khiṭba is seeking a woman in marriage. God says: “There is no blame upon you for what you intimate concerning proposals to women” [Q 2:235]. The original sense of khiṭba is the state of a person when proposing, like jalsa and qaʿda [a manner of sitting]. For khuṭba one says khāṭib or khaṭīb; for khiṭba one says only khāṭib. The verb in both cases is khaṭaba.

Khaṭb also means a momentous affair concerning which much discussion occurs. God says: “What is your affair, O Sāmirī?” [Q 20:95] and “What is your affair, O messengers?” [Q 51:31]. Faṣl al-khiṭāb is speech by which an affair is decisively resolved.

Editorial note. Khuṭba (address) and khiṭba (marriage proposal) are distinguished in the translation even where the digital text leaves the repeated spelling unvowelled. This lexical root article does not itself supply Ibn Rushd’s complete legal definition of divine address.

60. dalāla دَلَالَة

In the Darūrī: Indication or signification: the relation by which words, understood meanings, acts or approval make a ruling intelligible.

Text: §148 · §149 · §150 · §193

dalāla · الدلالة

هي كون الشيء بحالة يلزم من العلم به العلم بشيء آخر، والشيء الأول هو الدال، والثاني هو المدلول، وكيفية دلالة اللفظ على المعنى باصطلاح علماء الأصول محصورة في عبارة النص، وإشارة النص، ودلالة النص، واقتضاء النص. ووجه ضبطه أن الحكم المستفاد من النظم إما أن يكون ثابتا بنفس النظم، أو لا، والأول: إن كان النظم مسوقا له، فهو العبارة، وإلا فالإشارة، والثاني: إن كان الحكم مفهوما من اللفظ لغة فهو الدلالة، أو شرعا فهو الاقتضاء؛ فدلالة النص عبارة عما ثبت بمعنى النص لغة لا اجتهادا. فقوله: لغة، أي يعرفه كل من يعرف هذا اللسان بمجرد سماع اللفظ من غير تأمل، كالنهي عن التأفيف في قوله تعالى: {فلا تقل لهما أف} ، يوقف به على حرمة الضرب وغيره مما فيه نوع من الأذى بدون الاجتهاد.

A thing's being in such a state that knowing it entails knowing something else. The first thing is the indicator, and the second is what is indicated. In the terminology of the scholars of legal theory, the ways in which an expression indicates a meaning are confined to the text's direct expression, its allusion, its implication, and its required presupposition. The classification is controlled as follows: a ruling understood from the wording is either established by the wording itself or is not. In the first case, if the wording is directed towards it, this is direct expression; otherwise it is allusion. In the second case, if the ruling is understood from the expression through language, this is implication; if through revealed law, it is a required presupposition. The text's implication thus denotes what is established by its meaning linguistically, not by juristic exertion. "Linguistically" means that anyone who knows the language recognizes it merely by hearing the expression, without reflection. For example, the prohibition of saying "uff" in His statement, "Do not say 'uff' to them" [Q 17:23], makes one aware, without juristic exertion, of the prohibition of striking them and of other forms of injury.

Editorial note.
The fourfold classification is the author's later technical scheme. It must not be substituted without argument for Ibn Rushd's own arrangement of indication.

61. dalīl دَلِيل

In the Darūrī: Evidence, indicator or proof. Its strength may be conclusive or probable; "proof" does not always mean logical demonstration.

dalīl · الدليل

62. dalīl al-khiṭāb دَلِيل الْخِطَاب

63. rāwī رَاوٍ

In the Darūrī: Narrator or transmitter. Reception, retention, probity, attribution and denial are separate aspects of assessment.

r-w-y · روي

al-Muṭarrizī [L] · al-Mughrib fī tartīb al-Muʿrib · root روي. Source ↗

Riyy, with kasra, is the opposite of thirst. One says rawiya min al-māʾ, "he drank his fill of water"; the masculine adjective is rayyān, the feminine rayyā, and the masculine and feminine plural riwāʾ. A rāwiya is a waterskin made of three hides. Hence the statements "He bought a rāwiya containing water," "He slit a man's rāwiya," and, in al-Siyar, "They captured rawāyā containing water." Originally it meant the water-carrier's camel, because it yarwī the water—that is, carries it. From this comes "transmitter of a report," rāwī al-ḥadīth, and its intensive form rāwiya, whose tāʾ marks intensity. One says rawā al-ḥadītha wa-l-shiʿra riwāyatan, "he transmitted the report and poetry"; rawwaytuhu iyyāhu means "I caused him to transmit it." Hence: "We were given to transmit in the reports" (innā ruwwīnā fī l-akhbār).

65. ziyāda زِيَادَة

In the Darūrī: Addition: extra wording in a report, an added legal requirement, or linguistic surplus; these distinct contexts have different rules.

al-ziyāda · الزيادة

استحداث أمر لم يكن في موجود الشيء، قاله الحرالي. وقال الراغب: أن ينضم إلى ما عليه الشيء في نفسه شيء آخر، وذلك قد تكون تارة مذمومة كالزيادة على الكفاية كزائد الأصابع أو قوائم الدابة، وقد تكون محمودة نحو {للذين أحسنوا الحسنى وزيادة}، وهي النظر إلى وجه الله تعالى.

The introduction of something that was not present in the thing's existing state, according to al-Ḥarāllī. Al-Rāghib says: the joining of something else to what the thing already has in itself. This can sometimes be blameworthy, as with an addition beyond sufficiency, such as extra fingers or extra legs on an animal. It can also be praiseworthy, as in "For those who do good there is the fairest reward and an increase" [Q 10:26]; the increase is beholding the face of God Most High.

66. sibār سِبَار

In the Darūrī: Probe or testing instrument: the opening image for a discipline that guides the mind. It is not the name of a separate metaphysical science.

Text: §2

sabr / sibr / sibār · سبر

Ibn Manẓūr [L] · Lisān al-ʿArab · 7:108–109. Source ↗

السبر: التجربة سبر الشيء سبرا حزره وخبره. واسبر لي ما عنده أي اعلمه، والسبر: استخراج كنه الأمر. والسبر: مصدر سبر الجرح يسبره ويسبره سبرا نظر مقداره وقاسه ليعرف غوره، ومسبرته: نهايته. وفي حديث الغار: قال له أبو بكر: لا تدخله حتى أسبره قبلك أي أختبره وأعتبره وأنظر هل فيه أحد أو شيء يؤذي. والمسبار والسبار ما سبر به وقدر به غور الجراحات؛ قال يصف جرحها: ترد السبار على السابر. التهذيب: والسبار فتيلة تجعل في الجرح؛ وأنشد: ترد على السابري السبارا.

Sabr means testing. Sabara al-shayʾa sabran means that he estimated and examined a thing. Usbur lī mā ʿindahu means: ascertain for me what he has. Sabr also means bringing out the innermost nature of a matter. It is the verbal noun of sabara al-jurḥa, with either yasburu or yasbiru: he examined and measured a wound to discover its depth. Its masbara is its farthest extent. In the report about the cave, Abū Bakr said to him, "Do not enter it until I have examined it before you": that is, tested and inspected it, looking to see whether it contained anyone or anything harmful. Misbār and sibār are instruments used to probe and measure the depth of wounds. A poet, describing her wound, says: "It sends the probe back against the one probing." Al-Tahdhīb says that sibār is a wick placed in a wound, and quotes: "It sends the probe back against the prober."

Any matter you have visited [the digital witness reads zurtahu] you have probed or investigated. One says: “I approved what testing and examination disclosed about him.” Sibr and sabr mean origin, complexion, appearance, and outward aspect. Abū Ziyād al-Kilābī said: “After returning from Iraq I stopped beside a Bedouin, who said: ‘Your speech is Bedouin, but your appearance is urban.’” Sibr, with kasra, means dress and appearance. A Bedouin woman said: “We admired so-and-so’s sibr,” meaning his good condition and bodily flourishing; she said, “I saw him with poor sibr,” when he was pale and physically afflicted. Thus she used sibr in two senses. Someone is said to have good sibr when his complexion and appearance are good; saḥnāʾ means complexion.

In a report: “A man will emerge from the Fire after his ḥibr and sibr have disappeared”—that is, his appearance. Sibr means beauty and a fine appearance. A person has good ḥibr and sibr when he is handsome and well-looking. The poet says: “I am the son of Abū al-Barāʾ; every people wears a cloak of its father’s character. / My character is that I am free-born and unstained, and modesty never leaves me.”

Masbūr means someone of fine sibr. In the report about al-Zubayr, he was told: “Tell your sons to marry outside their kin, for Abū Bakr’s appearance and slenderness have become predominant in them.” Ibn al-Aʿrābī explained that sibr here means resemblance. Abū Bakr had delicate features and a slender body; the man therefore told him to have his sons marry outsiders, so that their descendants might combine Abū Bakr’s beauty with others’ strength. One says: “I recognized him by his father’s sibr,” meaning his appearance and resemblance. The poet says: “I am the son of the noble Abū Shulayl; can daylight be hidden from people? / His appearance is upon us: every sire leaves upon his offspring a stamp of his own stock.”

Sibr also means the lustre of the face; its plural is asbār. Sibr and sabr mean facial beauty. Sibr is an indication by which an animal’s pure breeding or mixed breeding is inferred. Abū Zayd says it is what enables one to recognize an animal’s inferior or noble breeding, or its colour as inherited from its sire. It also means recognizing whether an animal is well-fed or undernourished. Sabarāt is the plural of sabra—with the bāʾ unvowelled—a cold morning. Some say it is the interval between the last part of the night and morning; others, between early morning and sunrise.

In a report: “Over what does the highest assembly dispute, Muḥammad?” He remained silent; then the Lord Most High placed His hand between his shoulders and inspired him, until he said: “Over going to the Friday congregations and completing ablution on cold mornings.” Al-Ḥuṭayʾa said: “Large at the resting-place of their heads, thick-necked, they meet the water’s cutting cold early on chilly mornings.” He means the severity of the cold in winter and a year of hardship.

In the report of Fāṭima’s marriage, peace be upon her: the Messenger of God, God bless him and grant him peace, entered her room on a cold morning. The name Sabra ibn al-ʿAwwāl is derived from this. Sibr is also a name for the lion. Al-Muʾarrij, discussing al-Farazdaq’s verse, “On the two sides of Khilāl, lions concealed in thickets repel oppression from among them; there is no sibr between them,” said that this means there is no hostility between them. Sibr means hostility; he added that this usage is rare.

In a report: there is no harm in a man praying with a sabbūra in his sleeve. These are said to be teak tablets on which memoranda are written. A number of transmitters read it as sattūra; he says this is an error. Sabra is a bird, whose diminutive is subayra. In al-Muḥkam, sibr is a bird smaller than a falcon. Al-Layth quotes: “Until the eagles and the sibr took turns assailing it.”

والسابري من الثياب الرقاق؛ قال ذو الرمة: فجاءت بنسج العنكبوت كأنه على عصويها، سابري مشبرق. وكل رقيق: سابري. وعرض سابري: رقيق، ليس بمحقق، وفي المثل عرض سابري؛ يقوله من يعرض عليه الشيء عرضا لا يبالغ فيه لأن السابري من أجود الثياب يرغب فيه بأدنى عرض؛ قال الشاعر: بمنزلة لا يشتكي السل أهلها وعيش كمثل السابري رقيق.

Sābirī is a kind of fine cloth. Dhū al-Rumma says: “She brought a spider’s weaving, as though on her two little sticks it were a sābirī fabric torn to shreds.” Anything fine is called sābirī. An ʿarḍ sābirī is a slight offer, not one made insistently. In the proverb, “a sābirī offer,” the speaker is someone to whom a thing is offered without much insistence: sābirī is among the finest fabrics and attracts desire with the slightest offer. The poet says: “In a dwelling whose people do not complain of consumption, with a life as delicate as sābirī cloth.”

Ḥabīb ibn Abī Thābit reported: “I saw Ibn ʿAbbās wearing a sābirī garment through which I could see.” They call anything fine sābirī. The original expression is “Sāburian shirts of mail,” named after Sābūr. Sābirī is also a kind of date: it is said that the finest dates of Kufa are narsiyān and sābirī. Sabrūr means a poor person, like sabrūt. Abū ʿAlī records it and cites: “She feeds those who seek her gifts from the fruit she has gathered, and the needy, destitute man.” Ibn Sīda says: if this is sound, the tāʾ in sabrūt is additional.

Sābūr is a foreign place-name adapted into Arabic. In the verse, “At Sābūr’s bridge there is no companion whom your groaning keeps awake, Muʿīn,” it can be a man’s name or a town’s name. Al-Subārā is a tract of land. Labīd says: “[Birds] at al-Subārā, a grain after a hundred [the opening words are textually uncertain], their necks raised, their foremost flight-feathers variegated.”

Editorial note. This is the complete root article, not a selected medical or methodological excerpt. The instrument sibār, the act sabr, bodily appearance, cold mornings and other senses remain distinct. The witness reads zurtahu (“visited it”) where lexical context suggests ruztahu (“tested it”); no unmarked emendation is made. The final verse’s first hemistich is textually uncertain: the literal English rendering is provisional. The reported traditions are translated as lexical witnesses, without a separate authentication judgement. Sabr wa-taqsīm as a technical inferential procedure requires its own technical entry and is not identified with every root sense.

67. sabab سَبَب

In the Darūrī: Cause, occasion or sign. A legal cause may manifest a ruling without producing it as a physical cause produces an effect.

Text: §54 · §55 · §176

sabab · السبب

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 769. Source ↗

في اللغة اسم لما يتوصل به إلى المقصود وفي الشريعة عبارة عما يكون طريقا للوصول إلى الحكم غير مؤثر فيه والسبب التام هو الذي يوجد المسبب بوجوده فقط والسبب الثقيل هو حرفان متحركان نحو لك ولم والسبب الخفيف هو متحرك بعده ساكن نحو قم ومن والسبب الغير التام هو الذي يتوقف وجود المسبب عليه لكن لا يوجد المسبب بوجوده فقط.

In ordinary language: the name of what enables an intended end to be reached. In revealed law: what constitutes a route to a ruling without itself producing it. A complete cause is one through whose existence alone the caused thing exists. In prosody, a heavy sabab comprises two vowelled letters, as in laka and lima; a light sabab comprises a vowelled letter followed by a quiescent one, as in qum and min. An incomplete cause is something upon which the caused thing's existence depends, although the latter does not exist through its presence alone.

69. sunna سُنَّة

In the Darūrī: Prophetic normative teaching and practice; "it is Sunna" as a transmission formula must be assessed for its source and scope.

Text: §66 · §71 · §114

في اللغة الطريقة مرضية كانت أو غير مرضية والعادة وفي الشريعة هي الطريقة المسلوكة في الدين من غير افتراض وجوب فالسنة ما واظب النبي ص - عليها مع الترك أحيانا فإن كانت المواظبة المذكورة على سبيل العبادة فسنن الهدى وإن كانت على سبيل العادة فسنن الزوائد.

In ordinary language: a way, whether approved or not, and a habit. In revealed law: a way followed in religion without an imposed obligation. A sunna is what the Prophet practised regularly while sometimes omitting it. If that regular practice was devotional, these are the practices of guidance; if habitual, they are supplementary practices.

A practice of guidance is one whose observance completes religion and whose omission involves disapproval or blame. A supplementary practice is one whose adoption is guidance—that is, whose observance is good—but whose omission involves neither disapproval nor blame, such as the Prophet's manner of standing, sitting, dressing, and eating.

وهي مشترك بين ما صدر عن النبي ص - من قول أو فعل أو تقرير وبين ما واظب النبي ص - عليه بلا وجوب وهي نوعان.

The word is shared between what proceeds from the Prophet as statement, action, or approval, and what he regularly performed without obligation. It is of two kinds:

سنة هدى ويقال لها السنة المؤكدة كالأذان والإقامة والسنن والرواتب والمضمضة والاستنشاق على رأي وحكمه كالواجب المطالبة في الدنيا إلا أن تاركه يعاقب وتاركها لا يعاقب وسنن الزوائد كأذان المنفرد والسواك والأفعال المعهودة في الصلاة وفي خارجها وتاركها غير معاقب.

A practice of guidance, also called an emphasized sunna, such as the call to prayer, the commencement call, regular supererogatory prayers, and—according to one view—rinsing the mouth and nose. Its ruling resembles the obligatory in being demanded in this world, except that one who omits the obligatory is punished whereas one who omits it is not. Supplementary practices include the call to prayer by someone praying alone, using the tooth-stick, and familiar acts within and outside prayer; their omission is not punished.

71. sharṭ شَرْط

In the Darūrī: Condition: a qualification for a legal ruling or valid performance; not every legal condition is a condition of physical possibility.

sharṭ · الشرط

تعليق شيء بشيء بحيث إذا وجد الأول وجد الثاني وقيل الشرط ما يتوقف عليه وجود الشيء ويكون خارجا عن ماهيته ولا يكون مؤثرا في وجوده وقيل الشرط ما يتوقف ثبوت الحكم عليه.

Making one thing depend upon another so that, when the first exists, the second exists. It is also said to be that upon which a thing's existence depends, while lying outside its quiddity and not producing its existence; or that upon which establishment of a ruling depends.

وفي اللغة عبارة عن العلامة ومنه أشراط الساعة والشروط في الصلاة وفي الشريعة عبارة عما يضاف الحكم إليه وجودا عند وجوده لا وجوبا.

In ordinary language: a sign, whence the signs of the Hour and the conditions of prayer. In revealed law: that to which a ruling is related in respect of its occurring when the condition occurs, not as something that necessitates it.

72. sharʿ شَرْع

In the Darūrī: Revealed Law or revelation as normative authority; distinguish its address from the jurist's reconstruction of a ruling.

sharʿ · الشرع

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 824. Source ↗

في اللغة عبارة عن البيان والإظهار يقال شرع الله كذا أي جعله طريقا ومذهبا ومنه المشرعة.

73. ṣaḥīḥ / ṣiḥḥa صَحِيح / صِحَّة

In the Darūrī: Valid / validity; also soundness of a report in transmission. The intended legal or hadith sense must be specified.

Text: §56 · §93 · §205

ṣiḥḥa · الصحة

حالة أو ملكة بها تصدر الأفعال عن موضعها سليمة. وعند الفقهاء: موافقة الفعل ذي الوجهين وقوعا الشرع وأن تسقط القضاء. وقيل الصحة في العبادة: إسقاط القضاء وفي المصباح: الصحة في البدن حالة طبيعية تجري أفعاله على المجرى الطبيعي، وقد استعيرت الصحة للمعاني فقيل صحت الصلاة إذا أسقطت القضاء، وصح العقد إذا ترتب عليه أثره وصح القول إذا طابق الواقع.

A state or settled capacity by which actions issue soundly from their proper seat. For jurists, it is an act capable of occurring in either of two ways conforming to the Law, and its removing the requirement of make-up performance. It is also said that validity in worship means removal of make-up performance. In al-Miṣbāḥ: health in the body is a natural state in which its functions follow their natural course. Soundness has been extended metaphorically to meanings: a prayer is said to be valid when it removes the requirement of make-up performance; a contract is valid when its legal effect follows from it; and a statement is sound when it corresponds to reality.

Editorial note. The juristic sentence is syntactically compressed in this digital witness; "either of two ways" refers to conformity or nonconformity to the Law. The article reports several definitions rather than declaring them interchangeable.

ضد الفساد، ويختصان في أكثر الاستعمال بالأفعال، وقوبل في القرآن تارة بالفساد وأخرى بالتشبيه.

The contrary of corruption. In most usage both are particularly applied to actions. In the Qurʾān, it is contrasted at one time with corruption and at another with [bad action].

Editorial note. The digital witness reads بالتشبيه (“with comparison”), which does not fit the stated Qur’ānic contrast. The translation follows the contextual reading بالسيئة (“with bad action”), as supported by the parallel in al-Rāghib under ṣalaḥa and Q 9:102. The transmitted Arabic remains visible.

Ṣāgha al-rajulu al-dhahaba, yaṣūghuhu, ṣawghan: the man fashioned gold into jewellery. He is a ṣāʾigh or ṣawwāgh, and the craft is ṣiyāgha. Ṣāgha al-kadhiba ṣawghan means that he fabricated a lie. The original radical of ṣīgha is wāw, as in qīma. Ṣīghat Allāh means His creation or fashioning. Ṣīgha also means workmanship and determining a form or measure. “This is the ṣawgh of that” is said when it corresponds to its measure. “The ṣīgha of the utterance is such-and-such” means its pattern and form, by analogy with workmanship and determining a form or measure.

77. ḍidd ضِدّ

In the Darūrī: Contrary: opposed acts or qualities. Whether alternatives exhaust the possibilities is crucial to the argument about commands and prohibitions.

Text: §26 · §32 · §33 · §34 · §52

ḍiddān · الضدان

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 894. Source ↗

Two positive attributes that alternate in one subject and cannot coexist, such as blackness and whiteness. Contraries differ from contradictories: contradictories can neither coexist nor both be absent, as with nonexistence and existence; contraries cannot coexist but can both be absent, as with blackness and whiteness.

79. ḍarūrī ضَرُورِيّ

In the Darūrī: Necessary; in knowledge, immediately or inevitably known rather than acquired through a consciously constructed argument. In the title, what is indispensable to the craft.

Text: §1 · §2 · §15 · §76

ḍarūrī · الضروري

ما اتصلت الحاجة إليه إلى حد الضرورة كحفظ الدين فالنفس فالعقل فالنسب، فالمال فالعرض.

That for which need reaches the degree of necessity, such as preserving religion, then life, then intellect, then lineage, then property, then honour.

Editorial note. This is the necessities-of-welfare sense, not a claim that the author has here defined immediately evident knowledge.

badīhī · البديهي

ما لا يتوقف حصوله على نظر وكسب سواء احتاج لشيء آخر من نحو حدس أو تجربة أو لا فيرادف الضروري، وقد يراد به ما لا يحتاج بعد توجه العقل إلى شيء أصلا فيكون أخص من الضروري كتصور الحرارة والبرودة والتصديق بأن النفي والإثبات لا يجتمعان ولا يرتفعان.

That whose acquisition does not depend on inquiry and acquisition, whether or not it needs something else, such as intuition or experience. In this sense it is synonymous with necessary knowledge. It may instead mean that which, once the intellect has attended to it, needs nothing further at all; it is then narrower than the necessary. Examples are conceiving heat and cold, and assenting that negation and affirmation can neither both hold nor both fail to hold.

80. ḍamīr ضَمِير

muḍmar · المضمر

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 1393. Source ↗

ما وضع لمتكلم أو مخاطب أو غائب تقدم ذكره لفظا نحو زيد ضربت غلامه أو معنى بأن ذكر مشتقه كقوله تعالى اعدلوا هو أقرب للتقوى المائدة 9 أي العدل أقرب لدلالة اعدلوا عليه أو حكما أي ثابتا في الذهن كما في ضمير الشأن نحو هو زيد قائم.

An expression assigned to a speaker, an addressee, or an absent person previously mentioned: either expressly, as in “Zayd—I struck his servant”; by implication, through mention of a derivative, as in God’s saying “Act justly: it is nearer to godfearingness”—that is, justice is nearer, because “act justly” indicates it; or by an assumed presence in the mind, as with the pronoun introducing a state of affairs, “It is: Zayd is standing.”

وعبارة عن اسم يتضمن الإشارة إلى المتكلم أو المخاطب أو غيرهما بعدما سبق ذكره إما تحقيقا أو تقديرا.

Also: a noun involving reference to the speaker, the addressee, or another, following an actual or understood prior mention.

والمضمر المتصل ما لا يستقل بنفسه في التلفظ. والمضمر المنفصل ما يستقل بنفسه.

A conjunct pronoun cannot stand independently in pronunciation; a disjunct pronoun can.

Editorial note. The actual headword is muḍmar, not ḍamīr. The Qurʾanic verse is Q 5:8; the electronic witness prints “9”. This grammatical article does not establish every legal use of an implicit element.

81. ṭaliba طَلِبَة

In the Darūrī: Request or petition, one of the forms of complete discourse. This is the noun for a request, not the plural ṭalaba, “students.”

ṭalab · طلب

Aḥmad b. Muḥammad al-Fayyūmī [L] · al-Miṣbāḥ al-munīr fī gharīb al-Sharḥ al-kabīr · Kitāb al-ṭāʾ, root ṭ-l-b. Source ↗

Ṭalabtuhu, aṭlubuhu, ṭalaban: I sought it; I am a ṭālib. Its plurals are ṭullāb and ṭalaba, like kāfir, kuffār and kafara, and also ṭālibūn. A woman is ṭāliba; women are ṭālibāt or ṭawālib. Iṭṭalabtu, on the pattern iftaʿaltu, has the meaning of ṭalabtu. The active participle supplied the name ʿAbd al-Muṭṭalib; the relational adjective is formed from the second component. Maṭlab can be a verbal noun or the place of seeking. Ṭilāb, on the pattern kitāb, is what you request from another; it is originally a verbal noun. You say ṭālabtuhu, muṭālabatan and ṭilāban, in the conjugational class of qātala. Ṭaliba, on the pattern kalima, has the same meaning, and its plural is ṭalabāt. Taṭallabtu al-shayʾa means that I sought the thing. Aṭlabtu Zaydan, with initial alif, means that I supplied Zayd with what he requested; aṭlabtuhu can also mean that I made him need to ask.

Editorial note. The witness has ṭaliba on the pattern kalima. It is not the immediately preceding plural ṭalaba. The article supplies lexical evidence for the request noun, not an independent classification of forms of discourse.

In the Darūrī: Apparent or prima-facie indication: the meaning more readily warranted, though another remains possible. It can arise from understood import as well as verbal form.

هو اسم لكلام ظهر المراد منه للسامع بنفس الصيغة ويكون محتملا للتأويل والتخصيص.

The name of speech whose intended meaning is apparent to the listener through its form itself, while admitting interpretive redirection and specification.

Also: that whose intended meaning is apparent to the listener through the speech itself, as in “God has permitted sale” [Q 2:275] and “Marry those who seem good to you” [Q 4:3]. Its opposite is the obscure: that whose intended meaning is reached only through investigation, as in “and prohibited usury” [Q 2:275].

وظاهر العلم عبارة عند أهل التحقيق عن أعيان الممكنات وظاهر الممكنات هو تجلي الحق بصور أعيانها وصفاتها وهو المسمى بالوجود الإلهي وقد يطلق عليه ظاهر الوجود وظاهر المذهب وظاهر الرواية المراد بهما ما في المبسوط والجامع الكبير والجامع الصغير والسير الكبير والمراد بغير ظاهر المذهب والرواية الجرجانيات والكيسانيات والهارونيات.

Among the people of realization, the outward aspect of knowledge means the entities of possible things. The outward aspect of possible things is the Real’s self-disclosure in the forms of their entities and attributes, called divine existence; it may also be called the outward aspect of existence. By the manifest doctrine and manifest transmission they mean what is in al-Mabsūṭ, al-Jāmiʿ al-kabīr, al-Jāmiʿ al-ṣaghīr, and al-Siyar al-kabīr; by what is outside the manifest doctrine and transmission they mean al-Jurjāniyyāt, al-Kaysāniyyāt, and al-Hārūniyyāt.

وظاهر الوجود عبارة عن تجليات الأسماء فإن الإمتياز في ظاهر العلم حقيقي والوحدة نسبية وأما في ظاهر الوجود فالوحدة حقيقية والامتياز نسبي.

The outward aspect of existence means the self-disclosures of the names. In the outward aspect of knowledge, distinction is real and unity relative; in the outward aspect of existence, unity is real and distinction relative.

A preponderant belief while [allowing] its contrary. The word is also used for certainty and doubt. In al-Mufradāt: ẓann names what is obtained from an indication. When the indication becomes strong, it leads to knowledge; when very weak, it does not exceed the level of supposition. When it is strong, or is represented as strong, anna in its doubled or lightened form is used with it. When weak, it is followed by an, the form associated with what has not occurred, whether speech or action.

Editorial note.
The witness reads استعمال النقيض (“using the contrary”), where احتمال النقيض (“allowing the contrary”) is expected. The English brackets mark that contextual reading. Its final grammatical clause is likewise imperfectly transmitted; no additional Arabic wording is invented.

84. ʿāmm عَامّ

In the Darūrī: General expression: wording embracing the instances of a meaning. Do not confuse this linguistic scope with several equivocal meanings.

Text: §169 · §170 · §174 · §177

لفظ وضع وضعا واحدا لكثير غير محصور مستغرق جميع ما يصلح له، فقوله: "وضعا واحدا" يخرج المشترك؛ لكونه بأوضاع، ولكثير يخرج ما يوضع لكثير، كزيد وعمرو، وقوله: "غير محصور" يخرج أسماء العدد فإن المائة مثلا وضعت وضعا واحدا لكثير، وهو مستغرق جميع ما يصلح له لكن الكثير محصور، وقوله: "مستغرق جميع ما يصلح له" الجمع المنكر، نحو: رأيت رجالا؛ لأن جميع الرجال غير مرئي له؛ وهو إما عام بصفته، ومعناه كالرجال، وإما عام بمعناه فقط، كالرهط والقوم.

An expression assigned, by a single act of linguistic institution, to an unrestricted plurality, embracing everything to which it is applicable. The words “by a single act of institution” exclude an equivocal expression, since its meanings arise through several acts of institution. “To a plurality” excludes what is [not] assigned to a plurality, such as Zayd and ʿAmr. “Unrestricted” excludes number-words: “one hundred,” for example, is assigned through a single institution to a plurality and embraces everything to which it applies, but that plurality is restricted in number. “Embracing everything to which it is applicable” [excludes] the indefinite plural, as in “I saw men,” since he has not seen all men. The expression is general either in its form and meaning, as with al-rijāl (“the men”), or in its meaning alone, as with al-raht and al-qawm (“the group” and “the people”).

Editorial note. The digital witness has ما يوضع لكثير where the example and the exclusion require a negation; the translation supplies [not]. It also omits the verb before الجمع المنكر; [excludes] makes the grammatical connection explicit. Neither intervention is presented as an independently verified manuscript reading.

In ordinary language it denotes firm resolve. God, exalted is He, says, “We found no firm resolve in him” [Q 20:115]: that is, he lacked a firmly established intention to perform what he had been commanded. In revealed law it is the name for the original legal prescriptions, without dependence upon supervening circumstances.

89. ʿaql عَقْل

In the Darūrī: Intellect or reason; its relation to goodness, obligation and revealed authority is discussed without making theology the whole of uṣūl.

Text: §11 · §13 · §37 · §45

ʿaql · العقل

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · pp. 150–151. Source ↗

هو حذف الحرف الخامس المتحرك من "مفاعلتن"، وهي اللام، ليبقى: "مفاعلتن"، فينقل إلى "مفاعلن"، ويسمى: معقولا.

[In prosody,] it is the removal of the fifth, vowelled letter of mufāʿalatun—namely, the lām. The remaining pattern is then transferred to mufāʿilun and is called maʿqūl.

جوهر مجرد عن المادة في ذاته، مقارن لها في فعله، وهي النفس الناطقة التي يشير إليها كل أحد بقوله: أنا، وقيل: العقل: جوهر روحاني خلقه الله تعالى متعلقا ببدن الإنسان، وقيل: العقل: نور في القلب يعرف الحق والباطل، وقيل: العقل: جوهر مجرد عن المادة يتعلق بالبدن تعلق التدبير

A substance immaterial in its essence but associated with matter in its activity: the rational soul to which each person refers when saying “I.” It has also been said that intellect is a spiritual substance which God, exalted is He, created in relation to the human body; that it is a light in the heart through which truth and falsehood are known; or that it is an immaterial substance related to the body as its governor.

ما يعقل به حقائق الأشياء، قيل: محله الرأس، وقيل: محله القلب.

That by which the realities of things are apprehended intellectually. Its seat has been said to be the head, and it has been said to be the heart.

مأخوذ من عقال البعير، يمنع ذوي العقول من العدول عن سواء السبيل، والصحيح أنه جوهر مجرد يدرك الفانيات بالوسائط والمحسوسات بالمشاهدة.

The word is taken from the camel’s tether: it prevents those endowed with intellect from departing from the straight path. The correct view [according to the author] is that it is an immaterial substance which apprehends transient things through intermediaries and sensible things through direct observation.

Editorial note. The opening definition concerns the prosodic operation called ʿaql, not intellect. The digital witness repeats the unchanged metrical spelling after the deletion; the translation describes the stated operation without inventing a manuscript correction. Its final paragraph reads الفانيات (“transient things”); that reading is retained rather than silently replaced by a philosophical conjecture.

90. ʿilm عِلْم

In the Darūrī: Knowledge, sometimes certain cognition and sometimes a discipline. Its theoretical, practical and instrumental ends are distinguished.

Text: §2 · §8 · §74 · §75

ʿilm; ʿalam (homograph) · العلم

هو الاعتقاد الجازم المطابق للواقع، وقال الحكماء: هو حصول صورة الشيء في العقل، والأول أخص من الثاني، وقيل: العلم هو إدراك الشيء على ما هو به، وقيل: زوال الخفاء من المعلوم، والجهل نقيضه، وقيل: هو مستغن عن التعريف، وقيل: العلم: صفة راسخة تدرك بها الكليات والجزئيات، وقيل: العلم، وصول النفس إلى معنى الشيء، وقيل: عبارة عن إضافة مخصوصة بين العاقل والمعقول، وقيل: عبارة عن صفة ذات صفة.

ينقسم إلى قسمين: قديم، وحادث، فالعلم القديم هو القائم بذاته تعالى، ولا يشبه بالعلوم المحدثة للعباد، والعلم المحدث ينقسم إلى ثلاثة أقسام: بديهي، وضروري، واستدلالي. فالبديهي: ما لا يحتاج إلى تقديم مقدمة، كالعلم بوجود نفسه، وأن الكل أعظم من الجزء، والضروري، ما لا يحتاج فيه إلى تقديم مقدمة، كالعلم بثبوت الصانع وحدوث الأعراض.

ما وضع لشيء، وهو العلم القصدي، أو غلب وهو العلم اللازم لشيء بعينه خارجا أو ذهنا، ولم تتناوله السببية.

Knowledge is firm belief corresponding to reality. The philosophers say that it is the presence of a thing's form in the intellect; the first definition is narrower than the second. It has also been defined as apprehending a thing as it is; as the removal of obscurity from the known, ignorance being its contrary; as something that needs no definition; as an established attribute through which universals and particulars are apprehended; as the soul's reaching the meaning of a thing; as a particular relation between the intellective subject and the intelligible object; or as "an attribute of something possessing an attribute."

Knowledge is divided into eternal and originated. Eternal knowledge subsists in His essence, exalted is He, and is not comparable to the originated knowledge of created servants. Originated knowledge is divided into three kinds: self-evident, necessary, and inferential. The self-evident requires no prior premise, as with knowing one's own existence and that the whole is greater than the part. The necessary, according to the wording transmitted here, likewise requires no prior premise, as with knowledge that the Maker exists and that accidents originate.

[ʿAlam, a proper name:] that which has been assigned to a thing—an intentionally instituted name—or has become prevalent—a name inseparably attached to a particular thing, externally or mentally, and which is not encompassed by causality [as the digital wording reads].

Editorial note. The third paragraph concerns ʿalam ("proper name"), a distinct word sharing the unvowelled spelling of ʿilm. It is not a definition of knowledge. The digital witness's last phrase السببية and its duplicated definition of "necessary" knowledge are retained and marked; no corrected printed or manuscript reading is claimed.

91. ʿilla عِلَّة

In the Darūrī: Effective ground or explanatory feature connecting a ruling with a case. It must be distinguished from a general benefit or an accidental concomitant.

In ordinary language: a feature that enters a subject and changes its condition without choice. Illness is therefore called an ʿilla, since its presence changes a person's condition from strength to weakness. In revealed law: that together with which a ruling necessarily follows on its account. In prosody: a change in the eight metrical feet when it occurs in the final foot of the first or second hemistich.

الصورية: ما يوجد الشيء بالفعل، والمادية: ما يوجد الشيء بالقوة، والفاعلية: ما يوجد الشيء بسببه، والغائية: ما يوجد الشيء لأجله.

The formal cause: that through which a thing exists in actuality. The material cause: that through which a thing exists potentially. The efficient cause: that because of which a thing exists. The final cause: that for the sake of which a thing exists.

baliya / balāʾ · بلي

بَلِيَ الثَّوْبُ يَبْلَى مِنْ بَابِ تَعِبَ بِلًى بِالْكَسْرِ وَالْقَصْرِ وَبَلَاءً بِالْفَتْحِ وَالْمَدِّ خَلُقَ فَهُوَ بَالٍ وَبَلِيَ الْمَيِّتُ أَفْنَتْهُ الْأَرْضُ.

Baliya al-thawbu, yablā, in the conjugational class of taʿiba, with the verbal nouns bilan, with kasra and short final alif, and balāʾan, with fatḥa and long final vowel: the garment became worn out, so it is bālin. Baliya al-mayyitu means that the earth consumed the dead person.

وَبَلَاهُ اللَّهُ بِخَيْرٍ أَوْ شَرٍّ يَبْلُوهُ بَلْوًا وَأَبْلَاهُ بِالْأَلِفِ وَابْتَلَاهُ ابْتِلَاءً بِمَعْنَى امْتَحَنَهُ وَالِاسْمُ بَلَاءٌ مِثْلُ سَلَامٍ وَالْبَلْوَى وَالْبَلِيَّةُ مِثْلُهُ.

Balāhu Allāhu bi-khayrin aw sharrin, yablūhu, balwan; ablāhu with alif; and ibtalāhu ibtilāʾan all mean that God tested him with good or evil. The noun is balāʾ, on the pattern salām; balwā and baliyya have the same meaning.

وَبَلَى حَرْفُ إِيجَابٍ فَإِذَا قِيلَ مَا قَامَ زَيْدٌ وَقُلْتَ فِي الْجَوَابِ بَلَى فَمَعْنَاهُ إِثْبَاتُ الْقِيَامِ وَإِذَا قِيلَ أَلَيْسَ كَانَ كَذَا وَقُلْتَ بَلَى فَمَعْنَاهُ التَّقْرِيرُ وَالْإِثْبَاتُ وَلَا تَكُونُ إِلَّا بَعْدَ نَفْيٍ إِمَّا فِي أَوَّلِ الْكَلَامِ كَمَا تَقَدَّمَ وَإِمَّا فِي أَثْنَائِهِ كَقَوْلِهِ تَعَالَى { أَيَحْسَبُ الْإِنْسَانُ أَنْ لَنْ نَجْمَعَ عِظَامَهُ بَلَى } وَالتَّقْدِيرُ بَلَى نَجْمَعُهَا وَقَدْ يَكُونُ مَعَ النَّفْيِ اسْتِفْهَامٌ وَقَدْ لَا يَكُونُ كَمَا تَقَدَّمَ فَهُوَ أَبَدًا يَرْفَعُ حُكْمَ النَّفْيِ وَيُوجِبُ نَقِيضَهُ وَهُوَ الْإِثْبَاتُ.

Balā is a particle of affirmation. If someone says, “Zayd did not stand,” and you answer balā, it affirms that he did stand. If someone asks, “Was it not such-and-such?” and you say balā, it means confirmation and affirmation. It occurs only after a negation, whether at the beginning of the utterance, as above, or within it, as in His saying: “Does man think that We shall not gather his bones? Yes indeed!” The understood wording is: “Yes indeed, We shall gather them.” The negation may or may not be accompanied by a question, as above. The particle always cancels the negation and establishes its contrary, namely affirmation.

وَقَوْلُهُمْ لَا أُبَالِيه وَلَا أُبَالِي بِهِ أَيْ لَا أَهْتَمُّ بِهِ وَلَا أَكْتَرِثُ لَهُ وَلَمْ أُبَالِ وَلَمْ أُبَلِ لِلتَّخْفِيفِ كَمَا حَذَفُوا الْيَاءَ مِنَ الْمَصْدَرِ فَقَالُوا لَا أُبَالِيه بَالَةً وَالْأَصْلُ بَالِيَةٌ مِثْلُ عَافَاهُ مُعَافَاةً وَعَافِيَةً قَالُوا وَلَا تُسْتَعْمَلُ إِلَّا مَعَ الْجَحْدِ وَالْأَصْلُ فِيهِ قَوْلُهُمْ تُبَالِي الْقَوْمُ إِذَا تَبَادَرُوا إِلَى الْمَاءِ الْقَلِيلِ فَاسْتَقَوْا فَمَعْنَى لَا أُبَالِي: لَا أُبَادِرُ إِهْمَالًا لَهُ وَقَالَ أَبُو زَيْدٍ مَا بَالَيْتُ بِهِ مُبَالَاةً وَالِاسْمُ الْبِلَاءُ وِزَانُ كِتَابٍ وَهُوَ الْهَمُّ الَّذِي تُحَدِّثُ بِهِ نَفْسَكَ.

Their expressions lā ubālīhi and lā ubālī bihi mean “I do not concern myself with it or pay it any heed.” They say lam ubāli and, in a shortened form, lam ubal, just as they remove the yāʾ from the verbal noun and say lā ubālīhi bālatan; its original form is bāliya, like ʿāfāhu, muʿāfātan and ʿāfiyatan. They say that it is used only with a negation. Its origin is their expression tubālī al-qawmu, when people hasten to a small quantity of water and draw it. Thus lā ubālī means “I do not hasten to it, because I disregard it.” Abū Zayd said: mā bālaytu bihi, mubālātan; the noun is al-bilāʾ, on the pattern kitāb, meaning the concern about which you converse with yourself.

Editorial note. This is a lexical witness for balwā, not a technical definition of ʿumūm al-balwā. No complete historical dictionary article under that exact compound has been verified in this release. The distinction is retained in the term register. The digital witness’s unusual tubālī al-qawmu is retained rather than silently vocalized differently.

In ordinary language it means understanding the speaker’s purpose from what he says. Technically, it is knowledge of practical legal rulings acquired from their detailed proofs. It has also been defined as reaching and discerning the concealed meaning to which a ruling attaches. It is knowledge derived by reasoned judgement and juristic exertion, requiring inquiry and reflection. For this reason God, exalted is He, may not be called a faqīh, since nothing is concealed from Him.

102. qurʾ قُرْء

In the Darūrī: An equivocal legal expression for a menstrual period or a period of purity, used as an example of indeterminate wording.

qaraʾa · قرأ

al-Rāghib al-Iṣfahānī [E] · al-Mufradāt fī gharīb al-Qurʾān · s.v. قرأ. Source ↗

قَرَأَتِ المرأة: رأت الدّم، وأَقْرَأَتْ: صارت ذات قُرْءٍ، وقَرَأْتُ الجاريةَ: استبرأتُها بالقُرء. والقُرْءُ في الحقيقة: اسم للدّخول في الحيض عن طهر.

Qaraʾat al-marʾa means that the woman saw menstrual blood; aqraʾat, that she became one who experiences a qurʾ. Qaraʾtu al-jāriya means that I ascertained her freedom from pregnancy by means of a qurʾ. Qurʾ, properly speaking, names the transition from a state of purity into menstruation.

ولمّا كان اسما جامعا للأمرين الطّهر والحيض المتعقّب له أطلق على كلّ واحد منهما، لأنّ كلّ اسم موضوع لمعنيين معا يطلق على كلّ واحد منهما إذا انفرد، كالمائدة: للخوان وللطّعام، ثم قد يسمّى كلّ واحد منهما بانفراده به. وليس القُرْءُ اسما للطّهر مجرّدا، ولا للحيض مجرّدا بدلالة أنّ الطّاهر التي لم تر أثر الدّم لا يقال لها: ذات قرء. وكذا الحائض التي استمرّ بها الدّم والنّفساء لا يقال لها ذلك. وقوله: يَتَرَبَّصْنَ بِأَنْفُسِهِنَّ ثَلاثَةَ قُرُوءٍ [البقرة/228] أي: ثلاثة دخول من الطّهر في الحيض.

Because the name embraces both things—purity and the menstruation which follows it—it is applied to either of them. Every name instituted for two meanings together can be applied to either separately: māʾida denotes both the table and the food, and each may then be called by that name independently. Qurʾ is not a name for purity alone or for menstruation alone. The evidence is that a woman in purity who has not seen any trace of blood is not called “one having a qurʾ”; neither is a menstruating woman whose bleeding continues uninterruptedly, nor a woman with postnatal bleeding. “They shall wait by themselves for three qurūʾ” [Q 2:228] thus means three transitions from purity into menstruation.

وقوله عليه الصلاة والسلام: «اقعدي عن الصّلاة أيّام أَقْرَائِكَ» أي أيّام حيضك، فإنما هو كقول القائل: افعل كذا أيّام ورود فلان، وروده إنما يكون في ساعة وإن كان ينسب إلى الأيّام. وقول أهل اللّغة: إنّ القُرْءَ من: قَرَأَ، أي: جمع، فإنّهم اعتبروا الجمع بين زمن الطّهر وزمن الحيض حسبما ذكرت لاجتماع الدّم في الرّحم، والقِرَاءَةُ: ضمّ الحروف والكلمات بعضها إلى بعض في التّرتيل، [وليس يقال ذلك لكلّ جمع].

His saying—blessings and peace be upon him—“Refrain from prayer during the days of your aqrāʾ”, meaning the days of your menstruation, is like saying “Do such-and-such during the days of so-and-so’s arrival”: the arrival occurs in a single moment, though it is ascribed to days. When lexicographers say that qurʾ derives from qaraʾa, “to gather”, they consider the combination of the time of purity and the time of menstruation, as I have explained, because blood gathers in the womb. Qirāʾa is the joining of letters and words to one another in ordered recitation; [the expression is not used for every kind of gathering].

One does not say “I read the people” to mean “I gathered them”. This is also shown by the fact that uttering a single letter is not called reading. Qurʾān is originally a verbal noun, like kufrān and rujḥān. God says: “Upon Us are its gathering and its recitation; when We have recited it, follow its recitation” [Q 75:17–18]. Ibn ʿAbbās explains: when We have gathered it and established it in your breast, act upon it. The word has become restricted to the Book sent down to Muḥammad—God bless him and grant him peace—and has become like its proper name, just as Torah names what was sent down to Moses and Gospel what was sent down to Jesus—God bless them both and grant them peace.

Some scholars say: “This Book, among God’s books, is called Qurʾān because it gathers together the fruit of His books”—indeed, because it gathers the fruit of all the sciences. God indicates this in “an exposition of everything” [Q 12:111] and “a clarification of everything” [Q 16:89]. Other occurrences are “an Arabic Qurʾān without crookedness” [Q 39:28]; “a Qurʾān which We have divided so that you may recite it” [Q 17:106]; “in this Qurʾān” [Q 30:58]; “the recitation of dawn” [Q 17:78], meaning its reading; and “a noble Qurʾān” [Q 56:77]. Aqraʾtu fulānan kadhā means “I taught so-and-so to recite such-and-such”. He says: “We shall teach you to recite, and you shall not forget” [Q 87:6]. Taqaraʾtu means “I sought to understand”; qāraʾtuhu means “I studied it together with him”.

Editorial note. The full root article is retained, including its discussion of reading and the Qurʾān after the menstrual terminology. Square brackets around the sentence on gathering are retained from the consulted edition, whose editor identifies an older parallel in al-Zarkashī. Al-Rāghib’s analysis is his own account, not a neutral ruling resolving the juristic disagreement. The source’s brief ḥadīth quotations are translated as quotations, without certifying their transmission.

In the sense of a segment of discourse.

وفي اللغة فعلية بمعنى المفاعلة مأخوذ من المقارنة وفي الاصطلاح أمر يشير إلى المطلوب.

In ordinary language it is a faʿīla form with a reciprocal meaning, derived from accompaniment. Technically: something pointing to what is intended.

وهي إما حالية أو معنوية أو لفظية نحو ضرب موسى عيسى وضرب من في الغار من على السطح فإن الإعراب منتف فيه بخلاف ضربت موسى حبلى وأكل موسى الكمثرى فإن في الأول قرينة لفظية وفي الثانية قرينة حالية.

It may be situational, semantic, or verbal. Consider “Mūsā struck ʿĪsā” and “The one in the cave struck the one on the roof”: visible case inflection is absent. Contrast “Ḥublā struck Mūsā,” with a feminine verb, and “Mūsā ate the pear”: in the first there is a verbal indicator, and in the second a situational indicator.

Editorial note. Unvowelled ضربت permits more than one reading in isolation. The example’s function requires the feminine third-person verb; Ḥublā is the illustrative feminine subject. This is editorial explanation, not an added dictionary paragraph.

106. qiyās قِيَاس

Text: §210 · §212 · §223 · §226

qiyās · القياس

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 1160. Source ↗

قول مؤلف من قضايا إذا سلمت لزم عنها لذاتها قول آخر كقولنا العالم متغير وكل متغير حادث فإنه قول مركب من قضيتين إذا سلمتا لزم عنهما لذاتهما العالم حادث هذا عند المنطقيين وعند أهل الأصول القياس إبانة مثل حكم المذكورين بمثل علته في الآخر واختيار لفظ الإبانة دون الإثبات لأن القياس مظهر للحكم لا مثبت وذكر مثل الحكم ومثل العلة احتراز عن لزوم القول بانتقال الأوصاف واختيار لفظ المذكورين ليشمل القياس بين الموجودين وبين المعدومين.

A discourse composed of propositions which, when conceded, entail another discourse through themselves. For example, “The world changes; everything that changes is originated”: this consists of two propositions which, when conceded, themselves entail “The world is originated.” That is the logicians’ usage. For legal theorists, analogy discloses the like of a ruling concerning the things mentioned, through the like of its cause in the other. “Disclosure” is chosen rather than “establishment” because analogy manifests a ruling rather than creating it. “The like of the ruling” and “the like of the cause” avoid committing one to a transfer of attributes. “The things mentioned” includes analogy between existing things and between nonexistent things.

Analogy is either evident, which understandings readily apprehend, or hidden, which is otherwise and is called juristic preference. Juristic preference is nevertheless broader than hidden analogy: every hidden analogy is juristic preference, but not every juristic preference is hidden analogy, for the former may also denote what is established by text, consensus, or necessity. Usually, however, hidden analogy is intended when juristic preference is mentioned.

An exceptive syllogism actually mentions its conclusion or its contradictory: “If this is a body, it occupies space; but it is a body,” yielding “It occupies space,” which is itself mentioned in the syllogism. Alternatively, “But it does not occupy space” yields “It is not a body,” whose contradictory, “It is a body,” is mentioned there.

والقياس الاقتراني نقيض الاستثنائي وهو ما لا يكون عين النتيجة ولا نقيضها مذكورا فيه بالفعل كقولنا الجسم مؤلف وكل مؤلف محدث ينتج الجسم محدث فليس هو ولا نقيضه مذكورا في القياس بالفعل.

A conjunctive syllogism is the opposite of an exceptive one: neither the conclusion itself nor its contradictory is actually mentioned. “A body is composite; every composite is originated” yields “A body is originated”; neither it nor its contradictory is actually stated in the syllogism.

وقياس المساواة هو الذي يكون متعلق محمول صغراه موضوعا في الكبرى فإن استلزامه لا بالذات بل بواسطة مقدمة أجنبية حيث تصدق بتحقق الاستلزام كما في قولنا أ مساو ب و ب مساو ج و أ مساو ج إذ المساوي للمساوي للشيء مساو لذلك الشيء وحيث لا يصدق ولا يتحقق كما في قولنا أ نصف ب وب نصف ل ج فلا يصدق أ نصف ل ج لأن نصف النصف ليس بنصف بل ربع.

An equality syllogism is one in which the correlate of the minor premise’s predicate is the major premise’s subject. Its entailment is not intrinsic but proceeds through an external premise. Where that premise is true, the entailment holds: “A equals B; B equals C; therefore A equals C,” since what equals the equal of something equals that thing. Where it is not true, the entailment fails: “A is half of B; B is half of C” does not yield “A is half of C,” because half of a half is not a half but a quarter.

Editorial note. The legal definition’s “حكم المذكورين … في الآخر” is compressed or defective; the wording of this witness is preserved. The paragraph’s argument indicates two compared cases, not an invented single merged case.

107. qiyās al-shabah قِيَاس الشَّبَه

In the Darūrī: Analogy of resemblance: extending a ruling because a likeness is thought to contain a shared ground, without identifying that ground securely.

Text: §218 · §224

shabah · الشبه

بالكسر وسكون الموحدة وبفتحتين أيضا المثل كما في المنتخب. وعند الأصوليين هو من مسالك إثبات العلية.

With kasra and a quiescent bāʾ, or with two fatḥas, it means a likeness, as stated in al-Muntakhab. Among legal theorists it is one of the methods for establishing causal relevance.

قالوا الوصف إما أن تعلم مناسبته بالنظر إلى ذاته أو لا، والأول المناسب، والثاني إما أن يكون مما اعتبره الشرع في بعض الأحكام والتفت إليه أو لا، والأول الشبه والثاني الطرد. وعلية الشبه تثبت بجميع المسالك من الإجماع والنص والسير، وهل تثبت بمجرد المناسبة أي تخريج المناط؟ فيه نظر، وإلا يخرج عن كونه شبيها إلى كونه مناسبا مع أن ما بينهما من التقابل.

They say: either the appropriateness of an attribute is known by considering it in itself, or it is not. The first is the appropriate attribute (al-munāsib). In the second case, either the revealed law has recognized it in some rulings and taken it into account, or it has not. The first is resemblance (al-shabah), and the second is mere concomitance (al-ṭard). The causal relevance of resemblance is established by all the methods, including consensus, explicit text and examination [see the textual note]. Whether it is established by appropriateness alone—that is, by eliciting the operative ground (takhrīj al-manāṭ)—requires consideration; otherwise it would cease to be a resemblance and become an appropriate attribute, notwithstanding the opposition between the two.

Because it is not established by appropriateness alone, resemblance has sometimes been defined as that whose appropriateness is established only by separate evidence. At other times it has been defined as that which suggests appropriateness without being appropriate. Both definitions rest on the position that resemblance is not established by appropriateness alone: additional evidence is needed for its appropriateness to the ruling. If that were established by considering the attribute in itself, it would be an appropriate attribute rather than a resembling one.

وقيل إثباته بتخريج المناط مبني على تفسيره فمن فسره بما يوهم المناسبة منعه لأن تخريج المناط يوجب المناسبة، ومن فسره بالمناسب الذي مناسبته لذاته جوزه لجواز أن يكون الوصف الشبهي مناسبا يتبع المناسب بالذات وهذا فاسد لأن تخريج المناط يقتضي كون الوصف مناسبا بالنظر إلى ذاته.

It has also been said that establishing it by eliciting the operative ground depends on how it is explained. Those who explain it as what suggests appropriateness disallow this, because eliciting the operative ground establishes appropriateness. Those who explain it as the appropriate attribute whose appropriateness belongs to it intrinsically permit it, on the ground that the resembling attribute may be appropriate by following what is intrinsically appropriate. This is unsound, because eliciting the operative ground requires the attribute to be appropriate when considered in itself.

مثاله أن يقال في عدم جواز إزالة الخبث بالمائع أن إزالة الخبث طهارة تراد للصلاة فلا تجوز بغير الماء، كطهارة الحدث بجامع الطهارة، وهو وصف شبهي لأن مناسبتها لتعيين الماء فيها بعد البحث التام غير ظاهرة، لكن الشارع لما أثبت الحكم وهو تعيين الماء في بعض الصور وجودها كالصلاة والطواف ومس المصحف أوهم ذلك مناسبتها. ثم الشبه حجة عند جماعة وهو مذهب الشافعي.

An example is the argument against removing physical impurity with a liquid other than water: removal of impurity is a purification intended for prayer, and therefore is not permissible with anything other than water, by comparison with purification from ritual impurity; the common feature is purification. This is an attribute of resemblance, because, even after exhaustive inquiry, its appropriateness to requiring water is not evident. Yet when the Lawgiver established the ruling—that water is required—in some instances of its occurrence, such as prayer, circumambulation and touching the Qur'anic codex, this suggested its appropriateness. Resemblance is an authoritative proof according to a group of scholars, and this is al-Shāfiʿī's position.

It is not an authoritative proof according to the Ḥanafīs and a group including al-Qāḍī Abū Bakr al-Bāqillānī: either the reasoner has discerned the causally effective appropriate attribute, in which case he judges by it, or he has not, in which case the judgement is without evidence. Know that the word resemblance also applies equivocally to other meanings. Indeed, the Imām al-Ḥaramayn said that no consistently applicable formulation of resemblance can be established within the art of definitions.

فمنهم من فسره بما تردد فيه الفرع بين الأصلين يشاركهما في الجامع إلا أنه يشارك أحدهما في أوصاف أكثر فيسمى إلحاقه به شبها كإلحاق العبد المقتول بالحر فإن له شبها بالفرس من حيث المالية وشبها بالحر، لكن مشابهته بالحر في الأوصاف والأحكام أكثر، فألحق بالحر لذلك. وحاصل هذا المعنى تعارض مناسبتين ترجح إحداهما.

Some have explained it as a case in which a derivative case lies between two original cases and shares the common feature with both, but shares more attributes with one. Assimilating it to that one is called resemblance. An example is assimilating an enslaved person who has been killed to a free person. The former resembles a horse in respect of being property, and also resembles a free person; but the resemblance to the free person in attributes and rulings is greater, so the case is assimilated to that of the free person. In essence, this meaning involves two conflicting relations of appropriateness, one of which is preferred.

ومنهم من فسره بما يعرف فيه المناط قطعا إلا أنه يفتقر في آحاد الصور إلى تحقيقه كما في طلب المثل في جزاء الصيد بعد العلم بوجوب المثل. ومنهم من فسره بما اجتمع فيه مناطان لحكمين لا على سبيل الكمال، لكن أحدهما أغلب، فالحكم به حكم بالأشبه كالحكم في اللعان بأنه يمين لا شهادة وإن وجدا فيه.

Some have explained it as a case in which the operative ground is known with certainty, but its presence in individual instances needs to be ascertained: for example, seeking an equivalent in compensation for hunted game after the obligation of an equivalent has been established. Others explain it as a case containing two operative grounds for two rulings, neither completely present, but one predominating; to judge by it is to judge by the closer resemblance. An example is ruling that mutual imprecation (liʿān) is an oath rather than testimony, although both features are present in it.

وقال القاضي هو الجمع بين الأصل والفرع بما لا يناسب الحكم، لكن يستلزم المناسب وهو قياس الدلالة فليس شيء من تلك المعاني معنى من الشبه المعدود في مسالك العلة. هكذا يستفاد من العضدي وحاشيته للمحقق التفتازاني وغيرهما.

Al-Qāḍī said that it consists in joining the original and derivative cases by something that is not appropriate to the ruling but entails what is appropriate; this is analogy by an indication (qiyās al-dalāla). None of these meanings is therefore the meaning of resemblance counted among the methods for establishing the effective cause. This is gathered from al-ʿAḍudī and the gloss on it by the investigator al-Taftāzānī, and from other works.

Editorial note. Continues on the following digital page, ending before shibh al-fiʿl. The witness prints al-sayr (السير) where its reported variant is al-sabr (السبر); “examination” follows the latter and the former is retained in the Arabic. The clause “whose appropriateness belongs to it intrinsically” is textually awkward in the consulted witness; it has not been silently rewritten. Modern English/French labels and editorial footnotes are not attributed to al-Tahānawī.

That whose very conception does not prevent its being shared, as with “human being.” It is called universal because a thing’s universality is relative to the particular, and the universal is a part of the particular; the thing is thus related to the whole, and what is related to the whole is called kullī.

هو الأعم من شيء.

That which is broader than something else.

واعلم أنه إذا قلنا الحيوان مثلا كلي فهناك أمور ثلاثة الحيوان حيث هو ومفهوم الكلي والحيوان من حيث إنه يعرض له الكلية والمجموع المركب منهما أي من الحيوان والكلي والتغاير بين هذه المفهومات ظاهر فإن مفهوم الكلي ما لا يمنع نفس تصوره عن وقوع الشركة فيه ومفهوم الحيوان الجسم النامي الحساس المتحرك بالإرادة فالأول يسمى كليا طبيعيا لأنه موجود في الطبيعة أي في الخارج والثاني كليا منطقيا لأن المنطق إنما يبحث عنه والثالث كليا عقليا لعدم تحقيقه إلا في العقل.

Know that when we say, for example, “Animal is universal,” three things are involved: animal as such; the concept of the universal; and animal insofar as universality accrues to it—the combination composed of animal and universal. The difference between these concepts is evident. The concept of the universal is that whose very conception does not prevent sharing in it; the concept of animal is a growing, sentient body moving by will. The first is called the natural universal, since it exists in nature, that is, outside the mind; the second, the logical universal, because logic investigates it; and the third, the intellectual universal, since it is realized only in the intellect.

A universal is either essential, entering into the reality of its particulars, as animal does in relation to the human being and the horse; or accidental, not entering into their reality, by not being a part or by being external to it, as “capable of laughter” is in relation to the human being.

112. kināya كِنَايَة

In the Darūrī: Indirect expression: signifying by an associated meaning rather than simply naming the referent directly.

Text: §164 · §167

kināya · الكناية

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 1194. Source ↗

كلام استتر المراد منه بالاستعمال وإن كان معناه ظاهرا في اللغة سواء كان المراد به الحقيقة أو المجاز فيكون تردد فيما أريد به فلا بد من النية أو ما يقوم مقامها من دلالة الحال كحال مذاكرة الطلاق ليزول التردد ويتعين ما أريد منه.

Discourse whose intended meaning is concealed in its use, although its linguistic meaning is apparent, whether the intended meaning is literal or figurative. There is therefore uncertainty about what is intended, and intention—or what takes its place, such as a contextual indication, for example the circumstance of discussing divorce—is required to remove the uncertainty and determine the intended meaning.

Among the scholars of rhetoric, kināya is expressing something, whether a word or a meaning, by an expression that does not indicate it explicitly, for some purpose: for example, leaving it unspecified to the hearer, as in “So-and-so came”; or for an eloquent effect, as in “So-and-so has abundant ashes,” meaning that he is abundantly hospitable.

Also: that whose meaning is concealed and is known only through an additional indicator. For this reason they call the tāʾ in anta (“you”) and the hāʾ in innahu (“indeed he”) a letter of kināya, and likewise the expression huwa (“he”). The term is taken from their expressions kanawtu al-shayʾ and kanaytuhu, meaning “I concealed it.”

117. majāz مَجَاز

Text: §65 · §153 · §154 · §162 · §164

majāz · المجاز

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 1278. Source ↗

اسم لما أريد به غير ما وضع له لمناسبة بينهما كتسمية الشجاع أسدا وهو مفعل بمعنى فاعل من جاز إذا تعدى كالمولى بمعنى الوالي سمي به لأنه متعد من محل الحقيقة إلى محل المجاز قوله لمناسبة بينهما احترز به عما استعمل في غير ما وضع له لا لمناسبة فإن ذلك لا يسمى مجازا بل كان مرتجلا أو خطأ.

A name for an expression by which something other than its assigned meaning is intended, because of a relation between the two, as when a courageous man is called a lion. It has the pattern mafʿal with an active meaning, from jāza, “to pass beyond,” just as mawlā can mean wālī. It is so called because it passes from the domain of literal usage into the domain of figurative usage. “Because of a relation between the two” excludes an expression used outside its assigned meaning without such a relation: that is not figurative usage but a newly coined usage or a mistake.

والمجاز إما مرسل أو استعارة لأن العلاقة المصححة له إما أن تكون مشابهة المنقول إليه بالمنقول عنه في شيء وإما أن تكون غيرها فإن كان الأول يسمى المجاز استعارة كلفظ الأسد إذا استعمل في الشجاع وإن كان الثاني فيسمى مرسلا كلفظ اليد إذا استعمل في النعمة كما يقال جلت أياديه عندي أي كثرت نعمه لدي واليد في اللغة العضو المخصوص والعلاقة كون ذلك العضو مصدرا للنعمة فإنها تصل إلى المنعم عليه من اليد.

Figurative usage is either unrestricted transfer or metaphor. The relation validating it is either a resemblance, in some respect, between the transferred-to and transferred-from meanings, or another relation. In the first case it is called metaphor, as when “lion” is used for a courageous man. In the second it is called unrestricted transfer, as when “hand” is used for a favour: “His hands towards me are great,” meaning that his favours to me are many. In language “hand” denotes the particular bodily member; the relation is that this member is the source of a favour, which reaches its recipient from the hand.

والفرق بين المعنيين أن الاستعارة في الأول اسم للفظ المنقول وفي الثاني للنقل وعلى الثاني يسمى المشبه به وهو الحيوان المفترس مستعارا منه والمشبه وهو الشجاع مستعارا له واللفظ وهو لفظ الأسد مستعارا والمتلفظ وهو المستعمل للفظ الأسد في الشجاع مستعيرا ووجه الشبه وهو الشجاعة ما به الاستعارة ولا تصح هذه الاشتقاقات في الاستعارة بالمعنى الأول وهو ظاهر.

The difference between the two senses [of istiʿāra] is that in the first it names the transferred expression and in the second the transfer itself. In the second sense, the object of comparison—the predatory animal—is "that from which the borrowing is made"; the subject compared—the courageous person—is "that for which it is made"; the expression "lion" is "what is borrowed"; the speaker using "lion" for the courageous person is "the borrower"; and the point of resemblance, courage, is "that through which the borrowing occurs." These derivatives do not apply to metaphor in the first sense, as is evident.

Figurative usage is also that which goes beyond and passes from the place assigned to it into another because of a relation between them—in form, in a well-known concomitant meaning, or in proximity and adjacency—as with the name "lion" for the courageous man and with expressions by which discourse is conveyed indirectly.

والمجاز العقلي ويسمى مجازا حكميا ومجازا في الإثبات وإسنادا مجازيا وهو إسناد الفعل أو معناه إلى ملابس له غير ما هو له أي غير الملابس الذي ذلك الفعل أو معناه له يعني غير الفاعل فيما بني للفاعل وغير المفعول فيما بني للمفعول بتأول متعلق بإسناده.

Intellectual figurative usage—also called figurative judgement, figurative affirmation, or figurative predication—is attributing an act, or its meaning, to something associated with it other than that to which it properly belongs: that is, other than the agent in an active construction or the patient in a passive construction, by an interpretive transfer affecting the attribution.

In sum, one establishes an indicator diverting the attribution from its proper subject. For example, "in a contented life" [Q 69:21; 101:7] uses an active form but attributes it to what is properly the object, since the life is that with which one is content. Conversely, "a filled torrent" uses a passive participle from "I filled the vessel," but attributes it to the agent that does the filling.

Linguistic figurative usage is a word used for other than what it was actually assigned to denote in the convention governing the discourse, together with an indicator preventing that meaning from being intended—that is, its meaning within that convention.

والمجاز المركب هو اللفظ المستعمل فيما شبه بمعناه الأصلي أي بالمعنى الذي يدل عليه ذلك اللفظ بالمطابقة للمبالغة في التشبيه كما يقال للمتردد في أمر إني أراك تقدم رجلا وتؤخر أخرى.

Composite figurative usage is an expression used for something compared with its original meaning—the meaning it indicates by complete correspondence—in order to intensify the comparison. For example, one says to someone hesitating over a matter: "I see you putting one foot forward and drawing the other back."

Editorial note. This complete numbered article includes the source's subordinate discussions of intellectual, linguistic, and composite figurative usage. They are not reduced to its opening definition.

mujmal · المجمل

هو ما خفي المراد منه بحيث لا يدرك بنفس اللفظ إلا ببيان من المجمل سواء كان ذلك لتزاحم المعاني المتساوية الإقدام كالمشترك أو لغرابة اللفظ كالهلوع أو لإنتقاله من معناه الظاهر إلى ما هو غير معلوم فترجع إلى الاستفسار ثم الطلب ثم التأمل كالصلاة والزكاة والربا فإن الصلاة في اللغة الدعاء وذلك غير مراد وقد بينها النبي ص - بالفعل فتطلب المعنى الذي جعلت الصلاة لأجله صلاة أهو التواضع والخشوع أو الأركان المعلومة ثم نتأول أي نتعدى إلى صلاة - الجنازة فيمن يخلفه ويصلي أم لا.

An expression whose intended meaning is hidden so that it cannot be grasped from the wording itself without explanation from the one who left it indeterminate. This may result from competing senses with equal claims, as with an equivocal word; unfamiliarity, as with halūʿ; or transfer from its apparent sense to an unknown one. One consequently turns to requesting explanation, then investigation, then reflection: examples include prayer, alms, and usury. Prayer ordinarily means supplication, but that is not what is intended here, and the Prophet explained it by action. One investigates what makes prayer prayer: humility and reverence, or the known integral acts? One then interprets—that is, extends the consideration—to funeral prayer, concerning someone who replaces him and whether he prays or not.

Editorial note. The final phrase "فيمن يخلفه" is unclear in this witness; it is translated cautiously rather than silently reconstructed. The article is retained complete up to the next numbered headword.

d-r-k · درك

الدرك كالدرج، لكن الدرج يقال اعتبارا بالصعود، والدرك اعتبارا بالحدور، ولهذا قيل: درجات الجنة، ودركات النار، ولتصور الحدور في النار سميت هاوية، وقال تعالى: إن المنافقين في الدرك الأسفل من النار [النساء/145]، والدرك أقصى قعر البحر. ويقال للحبل الذي يوصل به حبل آخر ليدرك الماء درك، ولما يلحق الإنسان من تبعة درك كالدرك في البيع. قال تعالى: لا تخاف دركا ولا تخشى [طه/77]، أي: تبعة.

Dark resembles daraj, but daraj is used with regard to ascent and dark with regard to descent. Hence one speaks of the ascending degrees of Paradise and the descending levels of the Fire; because descent is conceived in the Fire it is called Hāwiya, the abyss. God Most High says: “The hypocrites are in the lowest level of the Fire” [Q 4:145]. Darak also means the deepest bottom of the sea. The rope joined to another rope to reach water is called darak, as is a liability that catches up with a person, such as liability in a sale. God says: “Fearing neither pursuit nor harm” [Q 20:77], that is, being overtaken.

Adraka means to reach a thing's furthest point. "The boy adraka" means that he reached the limit of childhood, at puberty. God says: "Until drowning overtook him" [Q 10:90]. As for "Eyes do not encompass Him, but He encompasses eyes" [Q 6:103], some interpret this as bodily sight and others as inner perception. It has been said that this points to the saying reported from Abū Bakr, God be pleased with him: "O You, the limit of whose knowledge is falling short of knowing You!" For the utmost knowledge of Him Most High is to know things and thereby know that He is neither any of them nor like them, but is the bringer-into-existence of everything one apprehends.

Tadāruk is most often used for aid and favour, as in "Had not a favour from his Lord reached him" [Q 68:49]. "Until, when they have all caught up with one another in it" [Q 7:38] means that each joined the other. He also says: "Rather, their knowledge concerning the Hereafter has reached its limit" [Q 27:66]: iddāraka here represents tadāraka, with the tāʾ assimilated into dāl and a connecting alif permitting pronunciation of the initial consonant cluster. The same applies to iddārakū in Q 7:38, and similarly to iththāqaltum, "you clung heavily to the earth" [Q 9:38], and iṭṭayyarnā bika, "we take you as an evil omen" [Q 27:47]. The reading "bal adraka ʿilmuhum fī l-ākhira" is also transmitted. Al-Ḥasan says it means that they were ignorant of the Hereafter: strictly, their knowledge ended when it came to reaching the Hereafter, so they were ignorant of it. Another interpretation is that their knowledge will apprehend it in the Hereafter—when they arrive there—because what is conjectural in this world is certain in the Hereafter.

Editorial note. The inherited glossary's technical contextual gloss is not claimed to be a dictionary definition of this exact vocalization. The root article distinguishes sensory and intellectual apprehension.

من الحديث خلاف المرسل وهو الذي اتصل إسناده إلى رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم وهو ثلاثة أقسام المتواتر والمشهور والآحاد.

Among reports, the counterpart of mursal: a report whose attribution is connected to God's Messenger, peace and blessings be upon him. It has three divisions: massively transmitted, widely transmitted, and solitary.

والمسند قد يكون متصلا ومنقطعا والمتصل مثل ما روى مالك عن نافع عن ابن عمر عن رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم والمنقطع مثل ما روى مالك عن الزهري عن ابن عباس عن رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم فهذا مسند لأنه قد أسند إلى رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم ومنقطع لأن الزهري لم يسمع من ابن عباس رضي الله عنه.

A musnad report may have a connected or an interrupted chain. A connected example is Mālik's transmission from Nāfiʿ, from Ibn ʿUmar, from God's Messenger, peace and blessings be upon him. An interrupted example is Mālik's transmission from al-Zuhrī, from Ibn ʿAbbās, from God's Messenger, peace and blessings be upon him. This is musnad because it is attributed to God's Messenger, but interrupted because, according to the source, al-Zuhrī did not hear from Ibn ʿAbbās, God be pleased with him.

Editorial note. The apparent tension between the opening definition and the subsequent acceptance of an interrupted musnad is preserved: attribution to the Prophet and continuity of every link are not silently conflated.

Sometimes applied to what subsequent investigations depend upon, sometimes to a proposition made a constituent of a syllogism, and sometimes to what the validity of a proof depends upon.

An extraneous premise is one mentioned in a syllogism neither actually nor potentially. Thus, “A equals B; B equals C” yields “A equals C” by an extraneous premise, here worded: “Everything equal to a thing is equal to that thing.”

A book’s introduction is what is mentioned before commencing the intended subject because of its connection with it. A science’s introduction is what commencing that science depends upon. The former is therefore broader than the latter, their relation being unrestricted generality and particularity. An introduction is also broader than principles: problems depend immediately on principles, whereas they may depend on an introduction either mediately or immediately.

Editorial note. The extraneous premise is abbreviated or defective in this witness: transitivity requires equality to the equal of a thing. The translation preserves the transmitted wording rather than silently supplying it.

134. maqṣūd مَقْصُود

In the Darūrī: What is intended: the intelligible aim of the address, recovered through indications rather than supplied by arbitrary preference.

Text: §161 · §191 · §217 · §239

qaṣada · قصد

al-Rāghib al-Iṣfahānī [E] · al-Mufradāt fī gharīb al-Qurʾān · s.v. قصد. Source ↗

القَصْدُ: استقامة الطريق، يقال: قَصَدْتُ قَصْدَهُ، أي: نحوت نحوه، ومنه: الِاقْتِصَادُ، والِاقْتِصَادُ على ضربين: أحدهما محمود على الإطلاق، وذلك فيما له طرفان: إفراط وتفريط كالجود، فإنه بين الإسراف والبخل، وكالشّجاعة فإنّها بين التّهوّر والجبن، ونحو ذلك، وعلى هذا قوله: وَاقْصِدْ فِي مَشْيِكَ [لقمان/19] وإلى هذا النحو من الاقتصاد أشار بقوله: وَالَّذِينَ إِذا أَنْفَقُوا [الفرقان/67].

Qaṣd is straightness of a path. “I directed myself towards his direction” means “I went where he was going.” From this comes iqtiṣād, moderation. Moderation is of two kinds. The first is unconditionally praiseworthy: it concerns things with two extremes, excess and deficiency. Generosity, for example, lies between extravagance and stinginess, and courage between recklessness and cowardice, and similarly in other cases. Such is “Be moderate in your walking” [Q 31:19]. God also indicates this kind of moderation in “Those who, when they spend …” [Q 25:67].

The second is an indirect expression for something intermediate between the praiseworthy and the blameworthy: it lies between something praised and something blamed, as between justice and injustice, or the near and the far. Such is “Among them are those who wrong themselves, and among them are those who take a middle course” [Q 35:32]. “And a journey of moderate length” [Q 9:42] means an intermediate journey, not extremely distant; it is sometimes explained as a short journey.

The true sense is what I have explained. Aqṣada al-sahm means that the arrow struck and killed on the spot, as though it had found its mark. The poet says: “It struck your heart, though you were not killed outright.” Inqaṣada al-rumḥ means that the spear broke; taqaṣṣada, that it broke into pieces; and qaṣada al-rumḥ, that he broke it. A camel called qaṣīd is compact and full-fleshed. Qaṣīd in poetry is that in which one half of its metrical structures is complete.

Editorial note. The digital witness has هي البعد where في البعد is required by the sense; the translation reads “in distance”. The final prosodic definition is translated as transmitted, without silently replacing it with a modern definition of qaṣīda.

An equivocal expression for which one of its senses has been preferred by predominant judgement. Whenever you consider an expression’s position and, by a kind of judgement, direct it from its several possible senses to a particular one, you have interpreted it accordingly. “Of an equivocal expression” is an incidental qualification, not a necessary one: the problematic and the obscure are also interpreted when known through judgement. Predominant judgement is specified because, were the preference established by an explicit text, the expression would be explained rather than interpreted.

In ordinary language: replacement, removal, and elimination. One says “The sun removed the shade” when it eliminates it. In revealed law: a legal proof arrives later than another legal proof and requires a ruling contrary to it. It is replacement relative to our knowledge, but clarification of the ruling’s duration relative to God’s knowledge.

Also in revealed law: clarifying the termination of a legal ruling from the Lawgiver’s standpoint. Its termination was known to God, whereas in our knowledge it continued and endured. Through the abrogating proof we learn its termination; for us this is replacement and change.

147. naẓar نَظَر

In the Darūrī: Inquiry or reflective consideration, including the disciplined examination of evidence; more specific than casual “looking.”

naẓar · النظر

طلب المعنى بالقلب من جهة الذكر، كما يطلب إدراك المحسوس بالعين، ذكره الحرالي، قال: وأول موقع العين على الصورة نظر، ومعرفة خبرتها الحسية بصر، ونفوذه إلى حقيقتها رؤية. فالبصر متوسط بين النظر والرؤية كما قال تعالى {وَتَرَاهُمْ يَنْظُرُونَ إِلَيْكَ وَهُمْ لَا يُبْصِرُونَ}. وقال غيره: تقليب البصر أو البصيرة لإدراك الشيء ورؤيته، وقد يراد به التأمل والفحص، وقد يراد به المعرفة الحاصلة بعد الفحص، واستعمال النظر في البصر أكثر عند العامة، وفي البصيرة أكثر عند الخاصة.

Seeking a meaning with the heart through recollection, just as one seeks to apprehend something sensible with the eye: this is al-Ḥarāllī's account. He says: the eye's first encounter with a form is looking; acquaintance with its sensible character is sight; and penetration to its reality is vision. Sight thus lies between looking and vision, as in God's saying, 'You see them looking towards you, but they do not see' [Q 7:198]. Another account is: directing sight or insight about in order to apprehend and see a thing. It may mean reflection and examination, or the knowledge obtained after examination. Ordinary people more often use naẓar for bodily sight; the select more often use it for insight.

God's looking towards His servants means His beneficence towards them and His pouring out blessings upon them. Naẓīr means a counterpart; its origin is munāẓir, as though each looks towards the other and calls to him. Munāẓara is mutual investigation and competing in inquiry. Naẓar also means investigation: it is more general than syllogistic reasoning, since every syllogism is inquiry, but not conversely.

148. naql نَقْل

In the Darūrī: Transmission; also a word's transfer from one usage to another. Context distinguishes the two technical senses.

هو ما كان مشتركا بين المعاني وترك استعماله في المعنى الأول ويسمى به لنقله من المعنى الأول والناقل إما الشرع فيكون منقولا شرعيا كالصلاة والصوم فإنهما في اللغة للدعاء ومطلق الإمساك ثم نقلهما الشرع إلى الأركان المخصوصة والإمساك المخصوص مع النية وإما غير الشرع وهو إما العرف العام فهو المنقول العرفي ويسمى حقيقة عرفية كالدابة فإنها في أصل اللغة لكل ما يدب على الأرض ثم نقله العرف العام إلى ذات القوائم الأربع من الخيل والبغال والحمير أو العرف الخاص ويسمى منقولا اصطلاحيا كاصطلاح النحاة والنظار أما اصطلاح النحاة فكالفعل فإنه كان موضوعا لما صدر عن الفاعل كالأكل والشرب والضرب ثم نقله النحويون إلى كلمة دلت على معنى في نفسها مقترنة بأحد الأزمنة الثلاثة وأما اصطلاح النظار فكالدوران فإنه في الأصل للحركة في السكك ثم نقله النظار إلى ترتب الأثر على ما له صلوح العلية كالدخان فإنه أثر يترتب على النار وهي تصلح أن تكون علة للدخان وإن لم يترك معناه الأول بل يستعمل فيه أيضا يسمى حقيقة إن استعمل في الأول وهو المنقول عنه ومجازا إن استعمل في الثاني وهو المنقول إليه كالأسد فإنه وضع أولا للحيوان المفترس ثم نقل إلى الرجل الشجاع لعلاقة بينهما وهي الشجاعة.

A transferred expression is one shared between meanings whose use in its first meaning has been abandoned. It is so named because it has been transferred from that first meaning. The transferring agency may be the revealed law: it is then a legally transferred expression, such as ṣalāh and ṣawm. In ordinary language these mean supplication and unrestricted abstention, respectively; the law then transferred them to the specified ritual components and to the specified abstention accompanied by intention. Alternatively, the agency is something other than the law. If it is general custom, the expression is customarily transferred and is called a customary literal usage: for example, dābba originally means anything that moves upon the earth, but general custom transferred it to four-footed horses, mules, and donkeys. If it is a particular custom, it is called a technically transferred expression, as in the terminology of grammarians and speculative investigators. In grammar, fiʿl was assigned to what proceeds from an agent, such as eating, drinking, and striking; grammarians then transferred it to a word signifying a meaning in itself together with one of the three tenses. Among speculative investigators, dawarān originally meant movement through streets; they transferred it to an effect's following something capable of being its cause. Smoke, for example, is an effect following fire, which is capable of being its cause. If the first meaning has not been abandoned and the word is still also used in it, its use in the first, original meaning is called literal, and its use in the second, transferred meaning is called figurative. Thus asad was first assigned to the predatory animal and then transferred to a courageous man through a relationship between the two, namely courage.

151. wājib وَاجِب

In the Darūrī: Obligatory: legally demanded. Alternative duties, extended times, necessary means and culpability prevent a merely schematic definition from doing all the work.

Text: §17 · §18 · §21 · §23 · §243

wājib · الواجب

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 1596. Source ↗

في اللغة عبارة عن السقوط قال الله تعالى فإذا وجبت جنوبها الجمع 36 أي سقطت وهو في عرف الفقهاء عبارة عما ثبت وجوبه بدليل فيه شبهة العدم كخبر الواحد وهو ما يثاب بفعله ويستحق بتركه عقوبة لولا العذر حتى يضلل جاحده ولا يكفر به في العمل اسم لما لزم علينا بدليل فيه شبهة كخبر الواحد والقياس والعام المخصوص والآية المؤولة كصدقة الفطر والأضحية.

In ordinary language it denotes falling: God’s saying “When their sides have fallen” means that they have fallen. In jurists’ convention it is that whose obligation is established by a proof admitting a possibility of non-establishment, such as a solitary report. Its performance is rewarded and its omission merits punishment in the absence of an excuse, so that its denier is judged mistaken but not an unbeliever. As a practical obligation it names what binds us through a proof admitting uncertainty, such as a solitary report, analogy, a specified general expression, or an interpreted verse; examples include the end-of-Ramaḍān alms and the sacrificial offering.

The intrinsically necessary is an existent whose nonexistence is impossible, and whose existence is not from another but from its own essence. When the necessity of existence belongs to it through itself, it is called intrinsically necessary; when through another, necessary through another.

Editorial note. The legal definition is Ḥanafī in orientation and distinguishes wājib from farḍ. The Qurʾanic verse is Q 22:36, not the erroneous sūra label in the witness. The metaphysical paragraph is a distinct technical sense.

152. waḍʿ وَضْع

In the Darūrī: Assignment or institution of a word's meaning; distinguish original linguistic assignment from subsequent transfer and specialized legal usage.

Text: §153 · §199

waḍʿ · الوضع

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 1619. Source ↗

في اللغة جعل اللفظ بإزاء المعنى وفي الاصطلاح تخصيص شيء بشيء متى أطلق أو أحسن الشيء الأول فهم منه الشيء الثاني والمراد بالإطلاق استعمال اللفظ وإرادة المعنى.

In ordinary language: setting an expression in correspondence with a meaning. Technically: assigning one thing to another such that whenever the first is uttered or perceived, the second is understood from it. Utterance here means using the expression and intending the meaning.

Perception means use of the expression more generally, whether or not the meaning is intended. In the philosophers' terminology, position is a configuration occurring to a thing because of two relations: the relation of its parts to one another, and their relation to things external to it. Standing and sitting are each a configuration occurring to a person through the relations of the limbs to one another and to external things.

153. yaqīn يَقِين

In the Darūrī: Certainty: assent not merely outweighed probability. Its sources and possible degrees are discussed without reducing it to a transmitter count.

yaqīn · اليقين

al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī [L] · Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt · online entry 1644. Source ↗

في اللغة العلم الذي لا شك معه وفي الاصطلاح اعتقاد الشيء بأنه كذا مع اعتقاد أنه لا يمكن إلا كذا مطابقا للواقع غير ممكن الزوال والقيد الأول جنس يشتمل على الظن أيضا والثاني يخرج الظن والثالث يخرج الجهل والرابع يخرج اعتقاد المقلد المصيب وعند أهل الحقيقة رؤية العيان بقوة الإيمان لا بالحجة والبرهان وقيل بمشاهدة الغيوب بصفاء القلوب وملاحظة الأسرار بمحافظة الأفكار.

In ordinary language: knowledge accompanied by no doubt. Technically: believing a thing to be thus, together with believing that it can only be thus, in conformity with reality and incapable of cessation. The first qualification is a genus also including opinion; the second excludes opinion; the third excludes ignorance; and the fourth excludes the belief of an imitator who happens to be correct. Among the people of spiritual realization, it is immediate vision through the strength of faith, not through argument and demonstration; or, it is said, witnessing unseen things through purity of hearts and observing mysteries through watchfulness over thoughts.

It is also said to be the heart's tranquillity regarding a thing's reality. Water is said to yaqina in a basin when it settles there.

وقيل اليقين رؤية العيان وقيل تحقيق التصديق بالغيب بإزالة كل شك وريب وقيل اليقين نقيض الشك وقيل اليقين رؤية العيان بنور الإيمان.

Other definitions are: immediate vision; realizing assent to the unseen through removing every doubt and uncertainty; the opposite of doubt; and immediate vision through the light of faith.

Also: the disappearance of uncertainty in witnessing the unseen; or knowledge acquired after doubt.

d. 816 AH / 1413 CE · 113 selected complete articles.

ʿAlī b. Muḥammad al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī, Kitāb al-Taʿrīfāt. Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyya, first edition, 1403/1983. Digital witness: OpenITI, Shamela0007312-ara1. The separate JK000768-ara1 witness and Wikisource reproduction are comparison controls where expressly noted. Entries identified by an online entry number instead of a printed page use the separately cited Islamicbook transcription. Their numbering is that witness's numbering, not an invented page reference. Punctuation and spacing are editorially regularized.

Historical Arabic source; digital transcription, not fresh manuscript collation.

Text and translation

The running Darūrī text and notes are retained from the preceding scholarly reading edition: the al-ʿAlawī 1994 base, compared with Bou Akl's printed 2015 edition, French translation and apparatus. The Escorial codex has not been independently inspected. The authorial completion in 552 AH and copyist's notice of 606 AH are distinct.

The historical authors' definitions, examples and doctrinal positions are translated as evidence, not endorsed as universally accepted accounts. A Ḥanafī distinction is not silently generalized to every school. Multiple senses and apparently extraneous examples remain where part of the selected article.

Modern website labels, menus, editorial bibliographical footnotes and translations into other European languages are not attributed to the historical authors.

Scope remains selected-source coverage, not an exhaustive concordance of every relevant lexicon. In particular, this release does not supply a complete Tāj al-ʿArūs article set, nor all Kashshāf or Lisān articles for all 153 terms. Some compounds have only clearly marked related-headword evidence. The audit below records those relations so that numerical coverage cannot conceal them.

Headword-relation audit

The 153 dossiers are listed in Arabic alphabetical order. “Exact” refers to the source headword, not to an assertion that all of its senses occur in Ibn Rushd. Any other relation is stated explicitly. Full texts are printed once; links may legitimately point to an article elsewhere in the appendix.
