Texts in Time

Islamic Intellectual Atlas | Critical reference and evidence register | Revision 7.2 | 30 October 2026

A source-qualified, selective map of late antique, Islamic and later philosophical, theological and mystical textual networks. This revision preserves the Greek Neoplatonic–Syriac–Arabic–Latin transmission bridge and adds eleven source-qualified Avicennian works, fourteen relationships and two textual families without implying doctrinal agreement.

Scholarly and contextual records	386
Textual relationships	362
Scholarly sources	359
Historical sources	72
Textual-family routes	20
Historical scholarly networks	5

Editorial warning

A commentary is not necessarily an endorsement; a translation may alter the source; the word “Aristotle” in the Arabic Theology is a transmitted pseudonymous attribution. A date may be an author’s activity envelope or upper bound, not a composition date. Schools and political periods are context unless a specific written source justifies an edge.

The PDF preserves metadata and evidence; the companion Avicennian Summa reader begins a bilingual primary-source translation series. It does not contain complete copyrighted third-party texts or manuscript images. The companion offline archive contains the revision-7.2 interactive atlas and the canonical JSON source register.

Contents

1. The Neoplatonic historical bridge
2. Named textual commentary and transmission families
3. Full scholarly work and context register (386 records)
4. Relationship evidence register (362 entries)
5. Historical political and school networks
6. Scholarly and historical source bibliography

1. The Neoplatonic historical bridge

Distinct scholarly settings and independently documented textual lineages, not an uninterrupted institutional succession.

Plotinus and Porphyry, c. 245-305

Greek Enneads (edited by Porphyry); Porphyry’s philosophical treatises and introductory logic; Greek original != Arabic Theology

Athenian Platonism, c. 410-529

Syrianus on Metaphysics B/Γ/M/N; Proclus on Timaeus and Parmenides; Platonic Theology; Damascius’ criticisms

Alexandrian commentary, c. 470-630

Ammonius, Asclepius, John Philoponus, Olympiodorus; Aristotelian scholastic curriculum and disagreements

Syriac teaching, c. 490-800

Sergius of Reshaina, Syriac Dionysius, adapted Alexander De principiis; variable scholarly networks rather than one necessary conduit

Baghdad and Arabic adaptation, c. 790-920

Arabic Plotinus, pseudo-Aristotelian Theology, Arabic Proclus, Book of Pure Good, al-Kindi milieu and several translation circles

Latin and other later receptions

Gerard’s Latin Liber de causis, Moerbeke’s Greek Proclus 1268, Aquinas’ comparison 1272, plus independent Jewish and Ismaili receptions

Key source families

Plotinus Enneads IV-VI -> Arabic Theology of Aristotle; Proclus Elements -> Arabic Book of the Pure Good -> Latin Liber de causis -> Aquinas. Greek Proclus -> Moerbeke’s Latin Elements is a separate Latin path. These relationships describe source-text correspondences or independently documented commentaries, not doctrinal agreement.

Important limits

The Arabic Proclus Timaeus fragment has no defensible translation date in this register and remains unplaced. The Harmony of the Opinions of Plato and Aristotle is attributed to al-Farabi with authorship contested. The Ashari and Maturidi overlays are small source-qualified samples, not exhaustive sectarian assignments.

2. Named textual commentary and transmission families

Members may belong to multiple routes. Membership denotes a selected textual network, not authorial school identity.

011 W165 Compendium of Plato’s Timaeus

Author / attribution: Galen | Date: 2nd–early 3rd c.; before c.216 | Region: Greek-speaking Mediterranean | Classification: ancient

A summary of Plato, distinct from Galen’s longer Timaeus commentary.

Date qualification: No more precise composition date is established here.

Sources: G20

012 W166 On the Intellect (De intellectu)

Author / attribution: Alexander of Aphrodisias (attributed) | Date: c.200; attribution debated | Region: Greek-speaking Mediterranean | Classification: ancient Preserved among the Mantissa materials; assigning every argument directly to Alexander is disputed.

Date qualification: No more precise composition date is established here.

Sources: G17

013 W168 Enneads (especially IV–VI)

Author / attribution: Plotinus; edited by Porphyry | Date: Treatises c.254–269; edition 301 | Region: Rome / later Porphyrian editorial context | Classification: neoplatonic

Composition dates and Porphyry’s later arrangement are separate. Arabic remnants mainly derive from IV–VI.

Date qualification: 254–269 is the main writing period; 301 is the edition, not Plotinus’ composition year. The 301 CE mark represents Porphyry’s edition, not Plotinus composing through 301.

Additional affiliation/reception: neoplatonic: direct philosophical school [NP01]

Sources: G06, G07

014 W169 Isagoge (Introduction)

Author / attribution: Porphyry | Date: Late 3rd c.; before c.305 | Region: Greek-speaking Mediterranean | Classification: neoplatonic

Introduction to logical concepts; a distinct work, not a running commentary on all of Categories.

Date qualification: No more precise composition date is established here.

Additional affiliation/reception: neoplatonic: direct philosophical school [NP01]

Sources: G07, G27

015 W167 Paraphrase of Aristotle’s On the Soul

Author / attribution: Themistius | Date: 4th c.; before c.388 | Region: Greek-speaking Mediterranean | Classification: ancient

A distinctive interpretation of Aristotle, not simply a neutral abbreviation.

Date qualification: No more precise composition date is established here.

Sources: G17, G44

016 W201 Paraphrase of Metaphysics Lambda

Author / attribution: Themistius | Date: Mid-4th c. proposed; before c.388 | Region: Constantinople | Classification: ancient Greek original lost; reconstruction rests on Arabic fragments and the fuller Hebrew translation.

Date qualification: Meyrav proposes the mid-fourth century; death supplies the conservative bound.

Sources: G48

017 W170 Elements of Theology

Author / attribution: Proclus | Date: 5th c.; before 485 | Region: Athens | Classification: neoplatonic

A systematic Neoplatonic treatise; later Arabic redactions alter its setting and claims.

Date qualification: No more precise composition date is established here.

022 W147 On the Creator and the true religion

Author / attribution: Theodore Abū Qurra | Date: late 8th–early 9th century | Region: Palestine / Harran | Classification: christian

Modern scholarship separates the conventionally titled treatise into multiple units. Included as dialogue context, without a fabricated direct arrow to Ashʿarī.

Date qualification: Approximate period or reported date; see the cited evidence.

Sources: E30

023 W185 On First Philosophy

Author / attribution: Abū Yūsuf al-Kindī | Date: c.833–842 (dedication context) | Region: Baghdad | Classification: falsafa

Only part survives. Aristotle, Neoplatonic metaphysics and Christian anti-eternalism are actively recombined.

Date qualification: Dedicated to al-Muʿtasim, whose reign was 833–842; this gives a context, not a precise completion date.

Sources: G15

024 W119 Reported theological teaching [lost corpus]

Author / attribution: Ibrāhīm al-Naẓẓām | Date: early 9th century (activity) | Region: Basra / Baghdad | Classification: mutazili

His criticism of atomism is part of early kalām diversity; Muʿtazilism was never a single atomist doctrine.

Date qualification: Approximate period or reported date; see the cited evidence.

Sources: E03

025 W118 Reported theological teaching [lost corpus]

Author / attribution: Abū al-Hudhayl al-ʿAllāf | Date: c.800–mid-9th century (activity) | Region: Basra / Baghdad | Classification: mutazili

No securely surviving authored book is used here. Doxographical reporting is shown separately from direct textual borrowing.

Date qualification: Approximate period or reported date; see the cited evidence.

Sources: E02

026 W148 Kitāb al-Burhān

Author / attribution: ʿAmmār al-Baṣrī | Date: first half 9th century | Region: Iraq | Classification: christian

An Arabic Christian author responding creatively to his Islamic intellectual setting. Shared topics alone do not identify a specific Muslim source book.

Date qualification: Approximate period or reported date; see the cited evidence.

Sources: E31

027 W120 Teaching on attributes and speech [lost corpus]

Author / attribution: ʿAbd Allāh b. Saʿīd Ibn Kullāb | Date: before / around 854 (activity bound) | Region: Basra | Classification: sunni

Reports in Ashʿarī supply identifiable evidence; a source-book title cannot be recovered for each doctrine.

Date qualification: Upper bound only; no exact composition year established.

Sources: E04

028 W125 Faḍīlat al-Muʿtazila [lost]

Author / attribution: al-Jāḥiẓ | Date: before 868/69 | Region: Basra / Baghdad | Classification: mutazili

Known through the ensuing polemical exchange.

Date qualification: Upper bound only; no exact composition year established.

030 W175 Risāla on the Syriac and Arabic translations of Galen

Author / attribution: Ḥunayn ibn Isḥāq | Date: First Arabic redaction 856; later updates | Region: Baghdad | Classification: translation

Documentary witness to translators, patrons and textual revision. It is not itself a source of Avicenna’s metaphysical doctrines.

Date qualification: 856 dates the first Arabic redaction; later revisions continued, including posthumous additions to the tradition.

Sources: G23, G24

031 W177 Theology of Aristotle (pseudo-Aristotle)

Author / attribution: Ibn Nāʿima al-Ḥimṣī; al-Kindī’s circle | Date: 9th c.; associated with al-Muʿtaṣim’s son | Region: Baghdad | Classification: translation

Adapted Plotinus under Aristotle’s name. The preface names translator and correction; exact allocation of interpolations is debated.

Date qualification: Patronage points to the ninth century; it does not by itself fix an exact year.

Additional affiliation/reception: neoplatonic: documented textual reception, not a school affiliation [NP11]

Sources: G10

032 W186 On the Intellect

Author / attribution: Abū Yūsuf al-Kindī | Date: 9th c.; exact date unknown | Region: Baghdad | Classification: falsafa

Early Arabic classification of intellect; not interchangeable with Farabi's later treatise.

Date qualification: No more precise composition date is established here.

Author / attribution: Wāṣil b. ʿAṭāʾ, ʿAmr b. ʿUbayd and later circles | Date: 8th–9th centuries (activity) | Region: Basra | Classification: mutazili

Broad historical setting, not a jointly authored book. Its hypothesis link does not assert Buddhist influence on Wāṣil or ʿAmr individually.

Date qualification: Approximate period or reported date; see the cited evidence.

Sources: E01

034 W123 al-ʿĀlim wa-l-mutaʿallim

Author / attribution: Attributed to Abū Ḥanīfa; transmitted by Abū Muqātil | Date: 8th–9th-century transmitted text; attribution disputed | Region: Kufa / Samarqand transmission | Classification: sunni

Do not equate the received text's date with Abū Ḥanīfa's death. Traditional attribution and modern source criticism diverge.

Date qualification: Approximate period or reported date; see the cited evidence.

Sources: E12, E13

035 W151 ʿIshrūn maqāla (Twenty Chapters)

Author / attribution: Dāwūd b. Marwān al-Muqammiṣ | Date: 9th century (approximate) | Region: Mesopotamia | Classification: jewish

Early Jewish Arabic systematic theology. Christian learning and Muslim debate form its setting; no direct source-book arrow is asserted here.

Date qualification: Approximate period or reported date; see the cited evidence.

Sources: E35, E36

036 W178 Discourse on the Pure Good / Book of Causes

Author / attribution: Anonymous Arabic redactor (pseudo-Aristotle) | Date: 9th c. (Kindian context probable) | Region: Baghdad context | Classification: translation

Proclean propositions reworked with Arabic Neoplatonic material; not a genuine work of Aristotle.

Date qualification: No more precise composition date is established here.

Additional affiliation/reception: neoplatonic: documented textual reception, not a school affiliation [NP11]

Sources: G43, G10

037 W199 Buddhist–kalām contact hypothesis

Author / attribution: Central Asian Buddhist schools; modern reconstruction | Date: Possible contact in 7th–9th c.; hypothesis studied in 2018/2022 | Region: Balkh / Central Asia | Classification: context

A thematic hypothesis concerning epistemology, Samaniyya and atomism. No surviving Buddhist-to-Arabic philosophical translation is established by this node.

Date qualification: Dates describe the proposed contact setting, not a text's composition.

Sources: G40, G41

038 W200 Arabic epitome: On the Contingency of the World

Author / attribution: Attributed to John Philoponus; Arabic redactor uncertain | Date: Arabic epitome probably 9th c.; attribution of milieu proposed | Region: Kindian circle proposed; later Christian Arabic preservation | Classification: christian

Partial Greek correspondence is established; Kindian production is Mandolino's reconstruction, not a surviving translation colophon.

Date qualification: No more precise composition date is established here.

Sources: G34

039 W202 Arabic Paraphrase of Metaphysics Lambda

Author / attribution: Themistius; Isḥāq ibn Ḥunayn (translation) | Date: Latter half of 9th c. proposed | Region: Baghdad | Classification: translation

Arabic fragments survive; Moshe ibn Tibbon's complete Hebrew version dates to 1255.

Date qualification: Range follows Meyrav's reconstruction, not a dated colophon.

Sources: G48

040 W190 Concise Exposition of Aristotle’s Metaphysics

Author / attribution: Thābit ibn Qurra | Date: Before 901 | Region: Harran / Baghdad | Classification: falsafa

Focuses on Lambda. A Harranian Sabian philosopher’s commentary, not a Christian or Muslim text by default.

Date qualification: No more precise composition date is established here.

318 W318 Sharḥ Tahdhīb al-manṭiq (Shāh Mīrī al-Shīrāzī)

Author / attribution: Hibat Allāh b. ʿAṭāʾ Allāh al-Ḥusaynī, known as Shāh Mīrī | Date: by 957 AH / 1550–51 (dated manuscript) | Region: Shiraz; manuscripts later copied in Iran | Classification: avicennan

A distinct mixed commentary (sharḥ mazjī) attested by al-Dharīʿa and Fanhā. The 957 AH manuscript provides a terminus ante quem. Do not conflate this author with the distinct Yazdī gloss or a doubtful Fayḍābādī attribution. Its confessional position is not inferred from the occurrence of a logic commentary in an Iranian manuscript.

Date qualification: A manuscript was completed in Dhu l-Qaʿda 957 AH; this establishes a copy-date terminus, not the author’s death or a composition year. Separate authored work revised in 898 AH.

322 W322 Heraclitus: surviving fragments of a lost book

Author / attribution: Heraclitus of Ephesus | Date: Approximate context 510 BCE–490 BCE | Region: Ephesus / Ionia | Classification: ancient

The supposed book is not extant as a complete work. Fragmentary testimony cannot fix a precise date of composition; no transmission to a later Arabic text is inferred.

Date qualification: The plotted interval or bound is a conservative contextual placement, not an independently verified composition year.

323 W323 Philosophical poem (traditionally On Nature)

Author / attribution: Parmenides of Elea | Date: Approximate context 500 BCE–450 BCE | Region: Elea / Greek Italy | Classification: ancient

‘On Nature’ is probably not the authentic title. Fragments survive through quotations in later writers, including Sextus and Simplicius; plotted span is broad scholarly context, not a dated composition.

Date qualification: The plotted interval or bound is a conservative contextual placement, not an independently verified composition year.

324 W324 Empedoclean poems: On Nature / Purifications

Author / attribution: Empedocles of Acragas | Date: Approximate context 460 BCE–430 BCE | Region: Acragas / Greek Sicily | Classification: ancient

Traditional two-title distinction is disputed; this is one analytic corpus entry, not a claim that two independent books were certainly composed. Four roots, Love and Strife appear in surviving fragments.

Date qualification: The plotted interval or bound is a conservative contextual placement, not an independently verified composition year.

328 W328 De rerum natura (On the Nature of Things)

Author / attribution: Lucretius | Date: Approximate context 65 BCE–50 BCE | Region: Rome / Latin Mediterranean | Classification: ancient

Latin philosophical epic presenting Epicurean atomism. Mid-first-century span is approximate; its presence in the atlas does not establish transmission into Arabic philosophy.

Date qualification: The plotted interval or bound is a conservative contextual placement, not an independently verified composition year.

376 W376 Jāmiʿ al-afkār wa-nāqid al-anẓār

Author / attribution: Muḥammad Mahdī al-Narāqī | Date: before 1795 | Region: Kashan / Iran | Classification: avicennan

Substantial independent late metaphysical work. The need of contingent beings for a cause is grounded in metaphysical possibility even during continuance. The book is not itself a formal commentary on Shifāʾ.

Date qualification: Death bound only; the modern print date is not composition.

Sources: AVP04, A23

377 W377 Ḥāshiya ʿalā Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Sabzawārī)

Author / attribution: Muḥammad Bāqir al-Sabzawārī | Date: before 1681 | Region: Safavid Iran | Classification: avicennan

Research bibliography reports a partial printed gloss responding to Ḥusayn al-Khwānsārī and defending aspects of Sadrian thought. This is a source-qualified bibliographical identification, not inspected manuscript evidence.

Date qualification: Death bound only; date and surviving scope of gloss require manuscript verification.

Sources: AVP01

378 W378 Second Ḥāshiya ʿalā Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Khwānsārī)

Author / attribution: Āqā Ḥusayn al-Khwānsārī | Date: before 1687 | Region: Isfahan / Safavid Iran | Classification: avicennan

Distinguished from Khwānsārī's first Shifāʾ gloss: scholarly research reports a second, apparently unpublished response to Muḥammad Bāqir al-Sabzawārī. Composition and manuscript witnesses not independently collated.

Date qualification: Upper bound by author death only; two glosses distinguished bibliographically.

379 W379 al-Hadiyya al-saʿīdiyya fī l-ḥikma al-ṭabīʿiyya

Author / attribution: Faḍl-i Ḥaqq al-Khayrābādī | Date: before 1861 | Region: India / South Asia | Classification: avicennan

Independent nineteenth-century Indian work of Avicennian natural philosophy, not a formal commentary on the Shifāʾ. Includes problems of matter, body, motion and philosophical method; precise Arabic excerpts remain to be collected.

Date qualification: Death bound only; publication and manuscript dates must be researched separately.

380 W380 Tarjamah wa sharḥ-i Ishārāt wa tanbīhāt-i Ibn Sīnā

Author / attribution: Ḥasan Malikshāhī | Date: 1984–1988 editions | Region: Iran / Persian commentary tradition | Classification: avicennan

Substantial two-volume modern Persian translation/commentary on the Ishārāt, covering its logic and philosophical divisions. A late commentary, not evidence that Malikshāhī held an anti-Sadrian doctrinal position.

Date qualification: Publication years from catalogue; not evidence that every section was written in those years.

Sources: AVP03

381 W381 al-Najāt

Author / attribution: Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna) | Date: before 1037 | Region: Isfahan / Hamadan; Iran | Classification: avicennan

Avicenna's philosophical compendium spanning logic, physics and metaphysics. The eighteenth-century British Library manuscript is a later witness, not evidence of composition then.

Date qualification: Author-death upper bound only, not a known year of composition or publication.

Sources: AVP07, AVP09

382 W382 Sharḥ Kitāb al-Najāh (qism al-ilāhiyyāt)

Author / attribution: Fakhr al-Dīn Muḥammad b. ʿAlī al-Isfarāʾīnī al-Nīsābūrī | Date: undated; see bibliographical note | Region: Nishapur / Khurasan; manuscript transmission | Classification: avicennan

Substantial commentary on the metaphysics of the Najāt; printed by Ḥāmid Nājī Iṣfahānī. Author's precise dates/identity require manuscript collation; he is NOT Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī.

Date qualification: No defensible work-composition date is available from the consulted catalogue; do not plot author death as work composition.

Sources: AVP08, AVP01

383 W383 ʿUyūn al-ḥikma

Author / attribution: Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna) | Date: before 1037 | Region: Iran; wider Islamic transmission | Classification: avicennan

Concise philosophical compendium in logic, natural philosophy and metaphysics; later commentary by Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī.

Date qualification: Author-death upper bound only, not a known year of composition or publication.

Sources: AVP09, AVP10

384 W384 Sharḥ ʿUyūn al-ḥikma

Author / attribution: Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī | Date: before 1210 | Region: Rayy / Khurasan; later transmission | Classification: avicennan

Critically engages Ibn Sīnā's compendium across logic, nature and metaphysics. The classification denotes textual reception, not doctrinal Avicennian allegiance.

Date qualification: Author-death upper bound only, not a known year of composition or publication.

Sources: AVP10

385 W385 ʿAwn ikhwan al-ṣafāʾ (selected marginalia on al-Shifāʾ)

Author / attribution: Bahāʾ al-Dīn al-Iṣfahānī (Fāḍil-i Hindī) | Date: before 1725 | Region: Isfahan; Iranian philosophical circles | Classification: avicennan

Shifāʾ marginalia principally on logic, with very brief metaphysics selections. Do not describe it as a complete commentary on the Ilāhiyyāt.

Date qualification: Author-death upper bound only, not a known year of composition or publication.

Sources: AVP01

386 W386 Nūr al-ʿurafāʾ fī sharḥ Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ

Author / attribution: Sayyid ʿAbd al-ʿAẓīm al-Linjānī | Date: undated; see bibliographical note | Region: Iran / India; manuscript transmission | Classification: avicennan

Adjudication of Khwānsārī and Ṣadrā concerning the opening of Ibn Sīnā's Ilāhiyyāt; reported to extend only through I.4. Date unknown: author attestation after 1816 cannot date the work.

Date qualification: No defensible work-composition date is available from the consulted catalogue; do not plot author death as work composition.

4. Relationship evidence register

A link requires a specified type and documentary evidence. Qualified influence is not silently upgraded to direct use.

001 F_e02 critique [qualified]

From: Avicennan philosophical teaching [corpus anchor] (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: Tahāfut al-falāsifa (Abū Ḥāmid al-Ghazālī)

Ghazālī targets Avicennan philosophical teaching. The earlier atlas used Shifāʾ as a surrogate for that corpus; the revised endpoint makes the actual scope explicit. No unique source book is proved here.

Sources: F36 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

002 F_e03 textual_use [direct]

From: Tahāfut al-falāsifa (Abū Ḥāmid al-Ghazālī)
To: al-Iqtiṣād fī l-iʿtiqād (Abū Ḥāmid al-Ghazālī)

Iqtisad explicitly refers to Tahafut. This establishes actual literary use, not merely the chronological order of the two works.

003 F_e04 broad_influence [qualified]

From: Avicennan philosophical teaching [corpus anchor] (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: al-Mabāḥith al-mashriqiyya (Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī)

Rāzī critically develops Avicennan philosophy; the particular source book remains unspecified.

From: al-Ishārāt wa-l-tanbīhāt (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: Sharḥ al-Ishārāt wa-l-tanbīhāt (Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī)

Razi’s work is explicitly a commentary on Avicenna’s Isharat, frequently raising objections to its arguments.

005 F_e06 commentary [direct]

From: al-Ishārāt wa-l-tanbīhāt (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: Ḥall mushkilāt al-Ishārāt / Sharḥ al-Ishārāt (Naṣīr al-Dīn al-Ṭūsī)

Tusi’s Sharh explains Avicenna’s Isharat in a sustained textual commentary.

006 F_e07 critique [direct]

From: Sharḥ al-Ishārāt wa-l-tanbīhāt (Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī)
To: Ḥall mushkilāt al-Ishārāt / Sharḥ al-Ishārāt (Naṣīr al-Dīn al-Ṭūsī)

McGinnis documents Tusi’s response to Razi’s objections within the commentary on Avicenna; Tusi is not merely commenting on Razi as his sole base text.

007 F_e08 critique [direct]

From: Muḥaṣṣal afkār al-mutaqaddimīn wa-l-mutaʾakhkhirīn (Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī)
To: Talkhīṣ al-Muḥaṣṣal / Naqd al-Muḥaṣṣal (Naṣīr al-Dīn al-Ṭūsī)

Tusi quotes Razi’s Muhassal and evaluates its claims. The historical bibliographical notice reproduces his explicit critical purpose and qāla/aqulu format.

008 F_e09 commentary [direct]

From: Muḥaṣṣal afkār al-mutaqaddimīn wa-l-mutaʾakhkhirīn (Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī)
To: al-Mufaṣṣal fī sharḥ al-Muḥaṣṣal (Najm al-Dīn al-Kātibī al-Qazwīnī)

Both the historical bibliography and modern manuscript publisher identify Mufassal as a commentary on Razi’s Muhassal.

To: Kashf al-murād fī sharḥ Tajrīd al-iʿtiqād (al-ʿAllāma al-Ḥillī)

Kashf al-murad is Hilli's explicit commentary on Tajrid; the relation is textual, beyond the author's personal association with Tusi.

010 F_e11 commentary [direct]

From: Tajrīd al-iʿtiqād / Tajrīd al-kalām (Naṣīr al-Dīn al-Ṭūsī)
To: Tasdīd al-qawāʿid fī sharḥ Tajrīd al-ʿaqāʾid (Shams al-Dīn Maḥmūd al-Iṣfahānī)

The critical edition identifies Tusi's text as Isfahani's base. A Sunni commentator here works directly on an Imami theological matn.

Sources: F19, F25 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

011 F_e12 gloss [direct]

From: Tasdīd al-qawāʿid fī sharḥ Tajrīd al-ʿaqāʾid (Shams al-Dīn Maḥmūd al-Iṣfahānī)
To: Ḥāshiya ʿalā Sharḥ al-Tajrīd (al-Sayyid al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī)

The edition distinguishes Jurjani's gloss from Isfahani's continuous commentary. Calling Jurjani's work a gloss directly on Qushji would be chronologically impossible.

To: Maṭāliʿ al-anẓār fī sharḥ Ṭawāliʿ al-anwār (Shams al-Dīn Maḥmūd al-Iṣfahānī)

Matali al-anzar is the named commentary on Baydawi's Tawali al-anwar, not a commentary on Tusi.

Sources: F33 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

013 F_e14 critique [direct]

From: Sharḥ al-Ishārāt wa-l-tanbīhāt (Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī)
To: al-Muḥākamāt bayna sharḥay al-Ishārāt (Quṭb al-Dīn al-Rāzī al-Taḥtānī)

Qutb al-Din's Muhakamat arbitrates between the two Isharat commentaries; Fakhr al-Din's is one of the explicitly identified pair.

Sources: F31, F34 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

014 F_e15 critique [direct]

From: Ḥall mushkilāt al-Ishārāt / Sharḥ al-Ishārāt (Naṣīr al-Dīn al-Ṭūsī)
To: al-Muḥākamāt bayna sharḥay al-Ishārāt (Quṭb al-Dīn al-Rāzī al-Taḥtānī)

Tusi's Isharat commentary is the second of the pair assessed by Qutb al-Din. The adjudication is not simply a further identical exposition.

015 F_e16 commentary [direct]

From: al-ʿAqāʾid al-Nasafiyya (Najm al-Dīn ʿUmar al-Nasafī)
To: Sharḥ al-ʿAqāʾid al-Nasafiyya (Saʿd al-Dīn al-Taftāzānī)

Taftazani's 1367 text comments directly on the creed attributed to Najm al-Din Umar al-Nasafi.

Sources: F05, F27 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

016 F_e17 commentary [direct]

From: al-Maqāṣid (Saʿd al-Dīn al-Taftāzānī)
To: Sharḥ al-Maqāṣid (Saʿd al-Dīn al-Taftāzānī)

Taftazani supplies both matn and sharh. The combined completion record does not make the two bibliographically identical.

017 F_e18 textual_use [direct]

From: al-Mawāqif fī ʿilm al-kalām (ʿAḍud al-Dīn al-Ījī)
To: Sharḥ al-Maqāṣid (Saʿd al-Dīn al-Taftāzānī)

Sharh Maqasid explicitly names and quotes Mawaqif in its account of necessary knowledge, and prefers sahib al-Mawaqif's account in the discussion of made quiddity. This proves textual engagement, not just earlier chronology.

Sources: F28, F29 | Evidence kind: primary-text witness or edition

018 F_e19 commentary [direct]

From: al-Mawāqif fī ʿilm al-kalām (ʿAḍud al-Dīn al-Ījī)
To: Sharḥ al-Mawāqif (al-Sayyid al-Sharīf al-Jurjānī)

Jurjani's 1405 work is a continuous commentary on Iji's Mawaqif; this is the unambiguous central genealogy of the later gloss tradition.

Sources: F30, F35 | Evidence kind: bibliographical identification

019 F_e20 textual_use [documented]

From: Muḥaṣṣal afkār al-mutaqaddimīn wa-l-mutaʾakhkhirīn (Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī)
To: al-Mawāqif fī ʿilm al-kalām (ʿAḍud al-Dīn al-Ījī)

TDV explicitly identifies verbatim headings and sentences taken from Razi's Muhassal, comparing Muhassal p.18 with Mawaqif p.14. This establishes work-specific borrowing independently of chronology or teacher narratives.

Sources: F35 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

020 F_e21 reported_source [documented]

From: Nihāyat al-ʿuqūl fī dirāyat al-uṣūl (Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī)
To: al-Mawāqif fī ʿilm al-kalām (ʿAḍud al-Dīn al-Ījī)

Jurjani's preface characterizes Iji's Mawaqif as containing the distilled substance of Nihayat al-uqul alongside Abkar al-afkar. This is explicit near-contemporary testimony to a named source, not a claim that Mawaqif is its commentary.

Sources: F37 | Evidence kind: near-contemporary source testimony

021 F_e22 reported_source [documented]

From: Abkār al-afkār fī uṣūl al-dīn (Sayf al-Dīn al-Āmidī)
To: al-Mawāqif fī ʿilm al-kalām (ʿAḍud al-Dīn al-Ījī)

Jurjani's preface specifically identifies the substance of Amidi's Abkar al-afkar within Iji's Mawaqif. This supports a source relation; no sole-source or complete-abbreviation claim is made.

Sources: F37 | Evidence kind: near-contemporary source testimony

022 F_e23 textual_use [documented]

From: Muḥaṣṣal afkār al-mutaqaddimīn wa-l-mutaʾakhkhirīn (Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī)
To: Ṭawāliʿ al-anwār min maṭāliʿ al-anẓār (Nāṣir al-Dīn al-Bayḍāwī)

Atay's textual comparison identifies copied phrases, definitions and technical terminology in Tawali from Muhassal, despite lack of acknowledgment in Baydawi's text. The work remains an independent synthesis.

Sources: F38 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

023 F_e24 hypothesis [proposed specific channel]

From: Muḥaṣṣal afkār al-mutaqaddimīn wa-l-mutaʾakhkhirīn (Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī)
To: Abkār al-afkār fī uṣūl al-dīn (Sayf al-Dīn al-Āmidī)

Hassan identifies Rāzī's atomism proof, with a Muḥaṣṣal locus, in Āmidī. Because it recurs in other Rāzī works, Muḥaṣṣal as the specific transmission channel remains a hypothesis. This edge is weaker than the demonstrated Rāzī-doctrine connection.

118 EE21 critique [documented]

From: Avicennan philosophical teaching [corpus anchor] (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: Tuḥfat al-mutakallimīn fī l-radd ʿalā l-falāsifa (Ibn al-Malāḥimī)

The refutation targets Ibn Sīnā's philosophical teaching; this does not isolate a single Avicennan source title.

119 EE22 critique [direct]

From: al-Iʿtiqādāt (Ibn Bābawayh al-Ṣadūq)
To: Taṣḥīḥ iʿtiqādāt al-Imāmiyya (al-Shaykh al-Mufīd)

Mufīd corrects Ṣadūq’s Iʿtiqādāt in a critical commentary.

122 EE25 critique [direct]

From: Refutation of the Christians [fragments] (al-Kindī)
To: Tabyīn ghalaṭ al-Kindī fī l-radd ʿalā l-naṣārā (Yaḥyā b. ʿAdī)

Yaḥyā quotes and counters al-Kindī’s Trinitarian critique. This is demonstrable reciprocal Christian–Muslim intellectual engagement.

123 EE26 textual_use [documented]

From: Teaching and works [corpus anchor] (Qāḍī ʿAbd al-Jabbār)
To: Kitāb al-Muḥtawī (Yūsuf al-Baṣīr)

Al-Baṣīr explicitly refers to ʿAbd al-Jabbār in Muḥtawī. This verifies reception of his teaching without establishing Mughnī as the exclusive source.

124 GE01 reported_doctrine [high]

From: Early Pythagorean teaching (no authentic book) (Pythagoras and early followers)
To: Republic (Plato)

Republic X.600b names Pythagoras and his followers. This is reception testimony, not evidence that Plato copied a Pythagorean book.

Sources: G02 | Evidence kind: primary-text witness or edition

125 GE02 reported_doctrine [qualified]

From: Early Pythagorean teaching (no authentic book) (Pythagoras and early followers)
To: Metaphysics (Aristotle)

Metaphysics I.5–6 discusses the so-called Pythagoreans. The group is not simply identical to the historical Pythagoras.

126 GE03 critique [high]

From: Timaeus (Plato)
To: On the Heavens (De caelo) (Aristotle)

On the Heavens III explicitly names Timaeus while criticizing mathematical construction of bodies.

Sources: G04 | Evidence kind: primary-text witness or edition

127 GE04 commentary [high]

From: Timaeus (Plato)
To: Compendium of Plato’s Timaeus (Galen)

Galen’s Compendium is a summary of this dialogue. Summary is indicated in the label, not a claim of running commentary.

129 GE06 textual_use [high]

From: Parmenides (Plato)
To: Enneads (especially IV–VI) (Plotinus; edited by Porphyry)

Plotinus interprets the One through Parmenides, notably Enneads V.1.8; this is a creative late antique reading.

Sources: G06 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

130 GE07 textual_use [high]

From: Republic (Plato)
To: Enneads (especially IV–VI) (Plotinus; edited by Porphyry)

Plotinus’ first principle engages Republic VI’s Good beyond being; the edge does not collapse Plato into later Neoplatonism.

131 GE08 textual_use [high]

From: Categories (Aristotle)
To: Isagoge (Introduction) (Porphyry)

The Isagoge prologue explicitly explains its preparatory relevance to Aristotle’s Categories, definitions and demonstration.

Sources: G27 | Evidence kind: primary-text witness or edition

132 GE09 commentary [high]

From: Categories (Aristotle)
To: Commentary on Aristotle’s Categories (Sergius of Reshaina)

The edited Syriac work expressly comments on Aristotle’s Categories.

135 GE12 translation_adaptation [high]

From: Metaphysics (Aristotle)
To: Arabic Metaphysics: Ustāth / Isḥāq versions (Aristotle; Ustāth, Isḥāq ibn Ḥunayn and others)

The target groups distinct versions rather than inventing a uniform translation event.

136 GE13 textual_use [high]

From: On the Soul (De anima) (Aristotle)
To: On the Intellect (De intellectu) (Alexander of Aphrodisias (attributed))

The attributed De intellectu interprets the Aristotelian intellect problem; its authorial attribution remains disputed.

Sources: G17 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

137 GE14 commentary [high]

From: On the Soul (De anima) (Aristotle)
To: Paraphrase of Aristotle’s On the Soul (Themistius)

Themistius’ work is a paraphrase of De anima, with substantial interpretive argument.

Sources: G17 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

138 GE15 translation_adaptation [high]

From: On the Intellect (De intellectu) (Alexander of Aphrodisias (attributed))
To: Arabic On the Intellect (Attributed Alexander; translator uncertain)

An extant Arabic version survives; uncertainty concerns translator attribution, not the existence of the textual relation.

Sources: G18 | Evidence kind: primary-text witness or edition

139 GE16 translation_adaptation [high]

From: Paraphrase of Aristotle’s On the Soul (Themistius)
To: Arabic Paraphrase of On the Soul (Themistius; probably Isḥāq ibn Ḥunayn)

The Arabic version is extant; probable attribution to Ishaq is qualified in the work entry.

141 GE18 translation_adaptation [high]

From: Enneads (especially IV–VI) (Plotinus; edited by Porphyry)
To: Theology of Aristotle (pseudo-Aristotle) (Ibn Nāʿima al-Ḥimṣī; al-Kindī’s circle)

Passages derive from IV–VI, with reordering and interpolations. Aristotle is the transmitted attribution, not the Greek author.

Sources: G10 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

142 GE19 translation_adaptation [high]

From: Elements of Theology (Proclus)
To: Discourse on the Pure Good / Book of Causes (Anonymous Arabic redactor (pseudo-Aristotle))

The Arabic work reworks propositions from the Elements; it is not merely a literal translation.

Sources: G43 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

143 GE20 critique [high]

From: Eighteen Arguments for the Eternity of the World (Proclus)
To: Against Proclus on the Eternity of the World (John Philoponus)

Philoponus’s Against Proclus directly answers the arguments for eternity.

Sources: G09 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

144 GE21 critique [high]

From: On the Heavens (De caelo) (Aristotle)
To: Against Aristotle on the Eternity of the World (John Philoponus)

Against Aristotle attacks the eternity/divinity of the heavens and fifth element; the treatise also addresses wider Aristotelian arguments.

Sources: G09 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

145 GE22 translation_adaptation [qualified]

From: Against Aristotle on the Eternity of the World (John Philoponus)
To: Arabic epitome: On the Contingency of the World (Attributed to John Philoponus; Arabic redactor uncertain)

Mandolino identifies correspondence with a Greek fragment preserved by Simplicius; the complete derivation of the epitome remains under reconstruction.

Sources: G34 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

146 GE23 broad_influence [qualified]

From: Against Aristotle on the Eternity of the World (John Philoponus)
To: On First Philosophy (Abū Yūsuf al-Kindī)

Kindi uses Philoponan strategies against an actual infinite past; this does not establish that he read the entire lost Greek treatise in one complete translation.

Sources: G16 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

147 GE24 textual_use [high]

From: Arabic Metaphysics: Ustāth / Isḥāq versions (Aristotle; Ustāth, Isḥāq ibn Ḥunayn and others)
To: On First Philosophy (Abū Yūsuf al-Kindī)

First Philosophy contains identifiable paraphrases from Metaphysics Alpha Elatton; no single version is asserted for all passages.

Sources: G14 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

148 GE25 broad_influence [qualified]

From: Theology of Aristotle (pseudo-Aristotle) (Ibn Nāʿima al-Ḥimṣī; al-Kindī's circle)
To: On First Philosophy (Abū Yūsuf al-Kindī)

Shared translation/editing context and philosophical correspondences warrant a qualified connection, not certainty about which text was first composed.

Sources: G15 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

149 GE26 textual_use [high]

From: Arabic On the Intellect (Attributed Alexander; translator uncertain)
To: Treatise on the Intellect (Abū Naṣr al-Fārābī)

Specialist analysis locates Farabi's intellect taxonomy in the Arabic Alexander tradition, including its distinctive interpretation of Aristotle.

Sources: G28 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

150 GE27 broad_influence [qualified]

From: On the Soul (De anima) (Aristotle)
To: Treatise on the Intellect (Abū Naṣr al-Fārābī)

Aristotle is the doctrinal reference, but whether Farabi used a complete direct Arabic De anima is disputed; Alexander is an explicit mediator.

Sources: G28 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

151 GE28 commentary [high]

From: Arabic Metaphysics: Ustāth / Isḥāq versions (Aristotle; Ustāth, Isḥāq ibn Ḥunayn and others)
To: On the Goals of Aristotle's Metaphysics (Abū Naṣr al-Fārābī)

The Goals is an introduction to the whole Metaphysics, not a commentary restricted to Lambda.

Sources: G14 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

152 GE29 textual_use [high]

From: Posterior Analytics (Aristotle)
To: On the Goals of Aristotle's Metaphysics (Abū Naṣr al-Fārābī)

Bertolacci identifies the Goals' dependence on the epistemology of the newly translated Posterior Analytics; the precise translation witness is not asserted.

Sources: G14 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

153 GE30 broad_influence [qualified]

From: On the Goals of Aristotle's Metaphysics (Abū Naṣr al-Fārābī)
To: al-Shifāʾ (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))

Farabi's account of the scope of metaphysics is a documented antecedent of Avicenna's project. Avicenna's autobiographical book anecdote alone cannot prove every Shifa passage derives from this short text.

Sources: G29 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

154 GE31 textual_use [high]

From: Arabic Metaphysics: Ustāth / Isḥāq versions (Aristotle; Ustāth, Isḥāq ibn Ḥunayn and others)
To: al-Shifāʾ (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))

Bertolacci documents Avicenna's use of the Arabic Metaphysics in the Ilahiyyat of Shifa, with multiple translation witnesses.

155 GE32 commentary [high]

From: Theology of Aristotle (pseudo-Aristotle) (Ibn Nāʿima al-Ḥimṣī; al-Kindī's circle)
To: Notes on the Theology of Aristotle (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))

The surviving notes explicitly comment on the pseudo-Theology; they do not imply acceptance of all its claims.

Sources: G33 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

156 GE33 commentary [high]

From: Arabic Metaphysics: Ustāth / Isḥāq versions (Aristotle; Ustāth, Isḥāq ibn Ḥunayn and others)
To: Commentary on Metaphysics Lambda 6–10 (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))

The surviving commentary compares Arabic readings and indirect Greek commentary traditions.

Sources: G33 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

157 GE34 commentary [high]

From: Metaphysics (Aristotle)
To: Concise Exposition of Aristotle’s Metaphysics (Thābit ibn Qurra)

Thabit’s edited work is an explicit exposition of the Metaphysics, focused on Lambda.

Sources: G32 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

158 GE35 broad_influence [qualified]

From: Republic (Plato)
To: Principles of the Opinions of the Virtuous City (Abū Naṣr al-Fārābī)

Farabi’s Platonic political inheritance was probably mediated by a Galenic compendium. This is not proof that a complete Arabic Republic was available to him.

159 GE36 claimed_lineage [qualified]

From: Early Pythagorean teaching (no authentic book) (Pythagoras and early followers)
To: Introduction to Arithmetic (Nicomachus of Gerasa)

Nicomachus belongs to the later Pythagoreanizing tradition; the long intervening transmission cannot be reduced to direct copying of Pythagoras.

Sources: G01, G35 | Evidence kind: authorial claim; historical transmission unproved

160 GE37 translation_adaptation [high]

From: Introduction to Arithmetic (Nicomachus of Gerasa)
To: Arabic Introduction to Arithmetic (Nicomachus; Thābit ibn Qurra (attributed translation))

The Arabic text is an identified translation of the Introduction; attribution to Thabit remains qualified.

Sources: G35 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

161 GE38 textual_use [qualified]

From: Arabic Introduction to Arithmetic (Nicomachus; Thābit ibn Qurra (attributed translation))
To: Epistles of the Brethren of Purity (Ikhwān al-Ṣafāʾ (collective, disputed identity))

Nicomachus is identifiable in Epistle 1 and related mathematics; assigning every passage to this particular Arabic version remains a qualification.

162 GE39 translation_adaptation [qualified]

From: Buddha-life narrative traditions (unidentified template) (Buddhist narrators; no single established author)
To: Bilawhar wa-Būdāsaf / Yūdāsaf (Arabic recensions) (Anonymous Arabic adapters; multiple recensions)

Buddhist origins of the story are secure, but the exact Indian template and Iranian/Manichaean intermediary are reconstructed. Confidence is qualified for the route, not for the broad narrative origin.

163 GE40 textual_use [high]

From: Bilawhar wa-Būdāsaf / Yūdāsaf (Arabic recensions) (Anonymous Arabic adapters; multiple recensions)
To: Kamāl al-dīn wa-tamām al-niʿma (Ibn Bābawayh al-Ṣadūq)

Saduq incorporates Bilawhar/Yudhasaf narratives and uses their motifs in Imami apologetics. This is not proof of a Buddhist origin for Imami metaphysics.

Sources: G39 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

164 GE41 commentary [high]

From: Metaphysics (Aristotle)
To: Paraphrase of Metaphysics Lambda (Themistius)

The transmitted paraphrase explicitly expounds Book XII/Lambda.

172 GE49 textual_use [high]

From: Enneads (especially IV–VI) (Plotinus; edited by Porphyry)
To: Elements of Theology (Proclus)

Elements §80 adopts the incorporeal-causality argument of Enneads IV.7.8a; this specific continuity coexists with major disagreements.

Sources: G08 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

173 GE50 broad_influence [qualified]

From: On the Soul (De anima) (Aristotle)
To: On the Intellect (Abū Yūsuf al-Kindī)

Kindi’s account develops the De anima III problem through late antique taxonomies; no one particular intermediary text is established by this edge.

174 GE51 textual_use [qualified]

From: Discourse on the Pure Good / Book of Causes (Anonymous Arabic redactor (pseudo-Aristotle))
To: al-Shifāʾ (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))

Parallels in Ilahiyyat VIII.4 support reception, but Bertolacci questions direct access, the version used and textual layers within Shifa. This is weaker than Avicenna’s explicit commentary on the pseudo-Theology.

274 KE51 critique [documented]

From: al-Ishārāt wa-l-tanbīhāt (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: Nihāyat al-bayān fī dirāyat al-zamān (Dāwūd al-Qayṣarī)

Avicenna’s account is scrutinized with Ṭūsī’s interpretation; direct versus mediated reading remains to be distinguished.

Sources: K42 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

275 KE52 broad_influence [qualified]

From: Fuṣūṣ al-ḥikam (Muḥyī al-Dīn Ibn ʿArabī)
To: Mujlī mirʾāt al-munjī (Ibn Abī Jumhūr al-Aḥsāʾī)

Schmidtkepp 407–408 identifies a parallel with Fuṣūṣ1:90; this comparison supports qualified doctrinal reception, not a verified direct quotation.

Sources: I07 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

276 KE53 textual_use [documented]

From: Kitāb al-Muʿtabar (Abū l-Barakāt al-Baghdādī)
To: Nihāyat al-bayān fī dirāyat al-zamān (Dāwūd al-Qayṣarī)

Toddpp 122–123 identifies Qayṣarī’s revision of the Muʿtabar’s theory of time.

277 KE54 commentary [direct]

From: al-Futūḥāt al-Makkiyya (Muḥyī al-Dīn Ibn ʿArabī)
To: Kitāb al-Mawāqif (ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Jazāʾirī)

Mawqif 366 explicates the Futūḥāt opening and repeatedly identifies that book; not a commentary on the whole Futūḥāt.

Sources: K37 | Evidence kind: primary-text witness or edition

278 KE55 commentary [direct]

From: Fuṣūṣ al-ḥikam (Muḥyī al-Dīn Ibn ʿArabī)
To: Kitāb al-Mawāqif (ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Jazāʾirī)

Mawqif 367 explicitly introduces and quotes the first Fuṣūṣ chapter, at Muḥammad al-Khānī's request.

280 CE02 author_reference [documented]

From: Ibn ʿArabī's teaching and writings [corpus] (Muḥyī al-Dīn Ibn ʿArabī)
To: Sharḥ al-Zawrāʾ (Jalāl al-Dīn al-Dawwānī)

Dawwānī names and praises Ibn ʿArabī at printed p.5 (Cairo 1908). The passage establishes explicit author-level reception, not demonstrated borrowing from a particular book.

Sources: K19 | Evidence kind: explicit author reference

281 CE03 broad_influence [qualified]

From: Ibn ʿArabī's teaching and writings [corpus] (Muḥyī al-Dīn Ibn ʿArabī)
To: Sharḥ Dīwān ʿAlī (including Fawātiḥ) (Qāḍī Mīr Ḥusayn al-Maybudī)

Dunietz identifies substantial Akbarian influence in this work. This is school/author-level reception; no unique source book is established.

Sources: K20 | Evidence kind: specialist reconstruction

282 CE04 broad_influence [qualified]

From: Akbarian conceptual reception [context] (Ibn ʿArabī, Qūnawī and later interpreters)
To: al-Anwār al-ilāhiyya fī sharḥ al-Muqaddima al-Sanūsiyya (ʿAbd al-Ghanī al-Nābulusī)

Work-specific scholarship establishes conceptual synthesis. The source is the Akbarian interpretive tradition, not every foundational text individually.

Sources: K28, K29 | Evidence kind: specialist reconstruction

283 CE05 broad_influence [qualified]

From: Akbarian conceptual reception [context] (Ibn ʿArabī, Qūnawī and later interpreters)
To: al-Taswiya bayna al-ifāda wa-l-qabūl (Muḥibb Allāh Ilāhābādī)

Nair studies a particular Avicennan–Akbarian synthesis. This connection does not imply agreement with every earlier Akbarian ontology.

284 CE06 translation_adaptation [documented]

From: Selected Upaniṣads [translation-source corpus] (Multiple Sanskrit authors; Brahman transmission)
To: Sirr-i akbar (Dārā Shukoh and collaborating pandits)

A collaborative translation of selected Upaniṣads with pandits. This is a seventeenth-century Hindu textual connection, not evidence of Buddhist ancestry for early kalām.

Sources: K41 | Evidence kind: specialist reconstruction

285 CE07 hypothesis [contested]

From: Buddhist–kalām contact hypothesis (Central Asian Buddhist schools; modern reconstruction)
To: Early Muʿtazilī / kalām settings [context] (Wāṣil b. ʿAṭāʾ, ʿAmr b. ʿUbayd and later circles)

A contested reconstruction of contacts with early kalām settings. No particular Buddhist source book, recipient theologian or secure chain of transmission is established.

Sources: G40, G41 | Evidence kind: research proposal; transmission unproved

286 CE08 critique [qualified]

From: Avicennan philosophical teaching [corpus anchor] (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: Ḥikmat al-ishrāq (Shihāb al-Dīn al-Suhrawardī)

Suhrawardī criticizes Avicennan doctrines; this corpus-level edge does not identify an exclusive source book.

346 NP_e34 textual_use [high]

From: Latin Elements of Theology (William of Moerbeke) (Proclus; translated by William of Moerbeke)
To: Exposition on the Liber de causis (Thomas Aquinas)

Aquinas compares Latin Proclus with the Book of Causes to identify the latter's Proclean origin.

347 NP_e35 translation_adaptation [high]

From: On the Principles of the Universe (lost Greek original) (Alexander of Aphrodisias)
To: Syriac adaptation of Alexander's On the Principles of the Universe (Sergius of Reshaina)

Sergius' sixth-century Syriac adaptation modifies Alexander's De principiis; the lost Greek original cannot be reconstructed from Syriac alone.

349 AVP_e01 gloss [documented]

From: al-Shifāʾ (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: Ḥāshiya ʿalā Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Sabzawārī) (Muḥammad Bāqir al-Sabzawārī)

Rizvi's bibliography identifies a gloss on the Shifāʾ's metaphysics associated with Sabzawārī, engaging the objections of Ḥusayn Khwānsārī. Manuscript coverage and exact textual loci have not yet been verified.

Sources: AVP01 | Evidence kind: scholarly bibliography

350 AVP_e02 gloss [qualified]

From: al-Shifāʾ (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: Second Ḥāshiya ʿalā Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Khwānsārī) (Āqā Ḥusayn al-Khwānsārī)

A second gloss by Ḥusayn Khwānsārī is reported; it is distinct from his earlier annotations, and remains a bibliographic witness pending manuscript authentication.

351 AVP_e03 critique [documented]

From: Ḥāshiya ʿalā Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Ḥusayn al-Khwānsārī)
To: Ḥāshiya ʿalā Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Sabzawārī) (Muḥammad Bāqir al-Sabzawārī)

The later research overview records Sabzawārī's response to Khwānsārī's first set of objections; this is a reported historical exchange, not a collated textual parallel.

Sources: AVP01 | Evidence kind: scholarly bibliography

352 AVP_e04 critique [qualified]

From: Ḥāshiya ʿalā Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Sabzawārī) (Muḥammad Bāqir al-Sabzawārī)
To: Second Ḥāshiya ʿalā Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Khwānsārī) (Āqā Ḥusayn al-Khwānsārī)

Khwānsārī's second reported gloss is described as an answer to Sabzawārī; argumentative specifics cannot be inferred until its manuscript witnesses are inspected.

353 AVP_e05 broad_influence [qualified]

From: Sharḥ Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Mullā Ṣadrā)
To: Ḥāshiya ʿalā Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Sabzawārī) (Muḥammad Bāqir al-Sabzawārī)

Sabzawārī is reported to defend Sadrian positions against an Avicennian objection. This edge DOES NOT assert a verified quotation from Ṣadrā's Shifāʾ commentary.

Sources: AVP01 | Evidence kind: qualified secondary research

354 AVP_e06 broad_influence [qualified]

From: al-Shifāʾ (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: Jāmiʿ al-afkār wa-nāqid al-anẓār (Muḥammad Mahdī al-Narāqī)

Narāqī's independent work treats Avicennian problems; naming the Shifāʾ as a conceptual anchor here does not demonstrate literal borrowing from that particular book.

355 AVP_e07 commentary [direct]

From: al-Ishārāt wa-l-tanbīhāt (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: Tarjamah wa sharḥ-i Ishārāt wa tanbīhāt-i Ibn Sīnā (Ḥasan Malikshāhī)

The catalogued two-volume work is explicitly a translation and commentary on Ibn Sīnā's Ishārāt; published 1984–1988.

Sources: AVP03 | Evidence kind: published bibliographic record

356 AVP_e08 broad_influence [qualified]

From: al-Shifāʾ (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: al-Hadiyya al-saʿīdiyya fī l-ḥikma al-ṭabīʿiyya (Faḍl-i Ḥaqq al-Khayrābādī)

The Oxford study situates Khayrābādī's natural philosophy in the post-Avicennian tradition. This does not establish direct use of Ibn Sīnā's Shifāʾ, hence qualified rather than a quotation edge.

Sources: AVP02 | Evidence kind: specialist secondary account

357 AVP_e09 commentary [direct]

From: al-Shifāʾ (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: ʿAwn ikhwan al-ṣafāʾ (selected marginalia on al-Shifāʾ) (Bahāʾ al-Dīn al-Iṣfahānī (Fāḍil-i Hindī))

Rizvi reports the ''Awn ikhwan al-ṣafā'' gloss, predominantly on logic and with short metaphysics selections. Full primary-text collation is outstanding.

Sources: AVP01 | Evidence kind: scholarly bibliography

360 AVP_e12 commentary [documented]

From: al-Shifāʾ (Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna))
To: Nūr al-ʿurafāʾ fī sharḥ Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Sayyid ʿAbd al-ʿAẓīm al-Linjānī)

Rizvi records the named partial commentary up to book I.4; it is not a comprehensive Shifāʾ commentary.

361 AVP_e13 textual_use [qualified]

From: Ḥāshiya ʿalā Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Ḥusayn al-Khwānsārī)
To: Nūr al-ʿurafāʾ fī sharḥ Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Sayyid ʿAbd al-ʿAẓīm al-Linjānī)

Rizvi reports Linjānī's comparison with Khwānsārī; direct lemmata not yet collated.

Sources: AVP01 | Evidence kind: scholarly bibliography

362 AVP_e14 textual_use [qualified]

From: Sharḥ Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Mullā Ṣadrā)
To: Nūr al-ʿurafāʾ fī sharḥ Ilāhiyyāt al-Shifāʾ (Sayyid ʿAbd al-ʿAẓīm al-Linjānī)

Rizvi reports Linjānī's comparison with Ṣadrā; this does not establish wholesale doctrinal agreement.

5. Historical political and school networks

Political and scholarly bands are separate. Political coexistence is not textual influence, nor does a network imply a continuously operating academy.

Political periods

Medinan community under Muḥammad | 622–632

Begins with the Hijra to Medina; this is a political-community interval, not the beginning of Islam’s prophetic chronology.

Sources: HE01

Rāshidūn caliphs | 632–661

Conventional four-caliph period; Ḥasan’s brief succession in 661 complicates an absolutely sharp endpoint.

Sources: HE02

Umayyad caliphs at Damascus | 661–750

Caliphal dynasty based in Damascus; its Iberian successor branch is shown separately.

Sources: HE03

ʿAbbāsid caliphs in Iraq | 750–1258

Caliphal office, not continuous territorial sovereignty; regional control and political strength varied greatly.

Sources: HE04, HE05

ʿAbbāsid caliphs in Cairo | 1261–1517

Predominantly ceremonial caliphal office under Mamluk sultans, not a restoration of the Baghdad empire.

Sources: HE04

Fāṭimid caliphate | 909–1171

Founded in North Africa; Egypt conquered in 969 and the caliphal court transferred to Cairo in 973.

Sources: HE06

Umayyad emirate of Córdoba | 756–929

Independent Umayyad emirate; the same ruling line assumed a caliphal title in 929.

Sources: HE07

Umayyad caliphate of Córdoba | 929–1031

A rival caliphal claim concurrent with Abbasid and Fatimid claims; political fragmentation preceded formal abolition.

Sources: HE07

Aghlabids | 800–909

Regional dynasty acknowledging nominal Abbasid suzerainty; included here as western Islamic political context.

Sources: HE08

Zīrids of Ifrīqiya | 972–1148

North African branch only; the Hammadids and the separate Andalusian Zirid branch have different endpoints.

Sources: HE09

Almoravid movement and rule | c. 1040–1147

The early bound dates the movement; Marrakesh-centred state formation belongs to the later eleventh century.

Sources: HE10, HE11

Almohad movement and rule | 1121–1269

The movement begins before conquest of Marrakesh in 1147; regional control subsequently changed.

Sources: HE10, HE11

Marīnid rule: post-Almohad phase | 1269–1465 (Marrakesh phase)

The bar begins with the fall of Almohad Marrakesh, not the earlier emergence of the Marinid dynasty.

Sources: HE11

Ḥafṣids | 1229–1574

Broad dynastic span in Ifrīqiya; political authority and territorial extent varied during these centuries.

Sources: HE11

Naṣrids of Granada | 1232–1492

Dynastic rule ended with Granada’s surrender; this date does not mark the disappearance of Iberian Muslims.

Sources: HE13

Zayyānids / ʿAbd al-Wādids | c. 1235–c. 1555 (bounds differ)

Sources give 1235–1550 or 1236–1555; the dynastic span includes interruptions, notably Marinid occupations.

Sources: HE11, HE12

Sāmānid emirate | 819–999; resistance to 1005

The main regime fell in 999; longer dynastic chronologies include subsequent resistance ending in 1005.

Sources: HE14, HE15

Būyid principalities | c. 932–1062

Several branches: Baghdad was controlled in 945–1055, while the dynasty’s Fars branch survived until 1062.

Sources: HE16, HE17

Ghaznavids | 977–1186

Broad dynastic span; its later territorial centre and reach differed substantially from those of its expansionary phase.

Sources: HE14

Great Seljuq dynasties | 1038–1194 (broad dynastic span)

A broad chronology combining changing centres of power and regional branches, rather than one unchanged imperial territory.

Sources: HE14

Anūshteginid Khwarazmshahs | 1097–1231

Begins with the ruling dynasty proper; Anūshtegin’s earlier nominal appointment around 1077 is a different chronological marker.

Sources: HE18

Seljuqs of Rūm | c. 1081–1308

Origins are poorly documented; the approximate opening follows Iranica, while later rulers operated under Mongol dominance.

Sources: HE19

Ayyūbid rule in Egypt | 1171–1250 (Egypt)

Egyptian sultanic rule only; other Ayyubid branches survived the Egyptian transition to Mamluk government.

Sources: HE20

Mamluk sultanate | 1250–1517

Sultanic government in Egypt and Syria; the contemporary Cairo Abbasid office is represented separately.

Sources: HE21

Sasanian Empire: background | 224–651

Non-Islamic context. The conventional dynastic endpoint is the last ruler’s death, after substantial territorial losses during the conquests.

Sources: HE35

Eastern Roman / Byzantine context | c. 330–1453 (conventional bounds)

Non-Islamic context. Constantinople’s refoundation supplies the conventional beginning; Latin occupation in 1204–1261 displaced Byzantine rule to successor states.

Sources: HE36

Delhi Sultanate | 1206–1526

A succession of dynasties, not one royal house or a constant territorial extent.

Sources: HL16

Ilkhanids: united state | 1256–1335

The united state ends in 1335; later Ilkhanid claimants explain the broader 1256–1353 dynastic period.

Sources: HL01

Ottoman state and empire | c. 1300–1922

Approximate emergence;1922 marks abolition of the sultanate, while the caliphal office survives until 1924.

Sources: HL11, HL13

Ilkhanid successor claimants | 1335–1353

Fragmented successor claims follow the united dynasty; this bar does not assert continuing empire-wide control.

Sources: HL01

Timurid dynasties | 1370–1507

Regional branches outlast Timur’s empire; the end marks the loss of the major Central Asian and Khurasanian centres.

Sources: HL02

Aq Qoyunlu | 1378–1508

Dynastic span; their major Iranian-Iraqi territorial phase begins in 1469. It overlaps other regional regimes.

Sources: HL03, HL04

Qara Qoyunlu | 1380–1468

Conventional dynastic span; territorial extent and effective control changed substantially.

Sources: HL03

Safavids: principal rule | 1501–1722

The 1722 fall of Isfahan ends principal rule; Safavid claims continue until Nāder’s 1736 coronation and beyond.

Sources: HL05, HL07

Mughal dynasty | 1526–1858; Delhi control interrupted 1540–1555

Mughal dynastic continuity and presence in exile must be distinguished from continuous control of Delhi. Afghan Suri rule displaced Mughal territorial rule in 1540–1555; the atlas draws a dashed interruption across the dynastic band. Later Mughal effective sovereignty declined sharply; an imperial label is not a uniform territorial claim.

Sources: HL17, HL18, HL30

Suri rule at Delhi | 1540–1555

Dates the interruption of Mughal control at Delhi, rather than every surviving Suri claimant.

Sources: HL17

Nawabs and kings of Awadh | 1722–1856

Regional autonomy grew within the weakening Mughal order; British annexation ended the state in 1856.

Sources: HL20

Āṣaf Jāhīs / Hyderabad | 1724–1948

Regional state established from a Mughal governorship; incorporated into the Indian Union in 1948.

Achaemenid Empire (regional context) | c. 550–330 BCE

Achaemenid administrative and political background to Ionian, Classical Greek, and eastern Mediterranean intellectual history. Dates are conventional dynasty-period boundaries, not dates of transmission or a uniform territorial extent.

Sources: GNA-H01

Hellenistic successor kingdoms | 323–31 BCE (conventional Hellenistic era)

Collective background period for the independent Ptolemaic, Seleucid, Antigonid, and other successor states; not one polity, state, dynasty or coherent empire. The endpoint is a historiographical convention.

Sources: GNA-H02

Roman imperial world (to division) | 27 BCE–395 CE (divided administration thereafter)

Broad chronological setting for Roman-era Stoicism, Platonism, skepticism and Christian/Jewish philosophical works. The imperial polity continued in both western and eastern forms; eastern Roman/Byzantine chronology is displayed separately from its conventional 330 CE beginning.

Scholarly networks

Plotinus and Porphyry: Rome and eastern Mediterranean teaching | c.245–305 CE (scholarly milieu)

A philosophical transmission milieu centered on Plotinus and Porphyry, not a state, a continuous formal institution or an inference that every contemporary work was composed in Rome.

Sources: NP01, NP02

Late Platonist teaching in Athens | c.410–529 CE (conventional)

Athenian teaching setting of Syrianus, Proclus and Damascius. The conventional 529 restriction should not be interpreted as an instantaneous extinction of Greek philosophy or total closure of all teaching.

Sources: NP01, NP05, NP22

Alexandrian Neoplatonic Aristotelian school | c.470–630 CE (pedagogical continuity)
